HOUSE WILL PASS BOND ISSUE BILL AT SESSION TODAY

DEBATE RANGES WIDELY

Gardner Urges Command for Roosevelt and an Expedition to the Trenches.

KITCHIN PILOTS THE BILL

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Without display of partisanship the House today began consideration of the bill authorizing the issue of $5,000,000,000 in bonds and $2,000,000,000 in certificates of indebtedness. The bill will go to a vote tomorrow. General debate on the measure was concluded early tonight. The reading of the bill for amendments and discussion under the five-minute rule will precede its passage tomorrow afternoon.

In presenting the bill to the House, Representative Kitchin, the Democratic floor leader, said it represented "the most momentous project ever undertaken by our Government, and carried the greatest authorization for bonds ever contained in a bill submitted to any legislative body in the world."

Representative Fordney, ranking Republican of the Ways and Means Committee, said that he would vote for the bill, and there was no indication of any serious opposition.

Two amendments suggested by Representative Lenroot, a Wisconsin Republican, will be accepted by those in charge of the bill tomorrow. These amendments are regarded as unnecessary by the Administration leaders, but after a conference with Secretary McAdoo Mr. Kitchin announced that they would not be opposed. There was Republican criticism today of the fact that the bill does not state specifically that the loan to foreign Governments shall be made during and not after the war. The Lenroot amendments would specify directly that the loan of $3,000,000,000 shall be made during the war, and to nations engaged in war with the German Government.

Democratic speakers said that there was no necessity for the amendments, as the Secretary of the Treasury undoubtedly would not attempt to make a loan under the bill after the close of the war, nor would he lend to any save the allied Governments now arraigned against Germany.

Mr. Mondell of Wyoming first suggested that the bill should state specifically that the three billion dollar loan must be made while the war continues. Mr. Fordney replied that no one should assume the Secretary of the Treasury would make loans after the war. Nevertheless, this point was brought up frequently during the debate and the Democrats finally agreed to accept the Lenroot amendments. One of these amendments reads:

"Provided, That the authority granted by this section to the Secretary of the Treasury to purchase bonds of foreign Governments as aforesaid shall cease upon the termination of the war between the United States and the Imperial Government of Germany."

The second Lenroot amendment provides that the section authorizing the purchase by the United States of "the obligations of foreign Governments" shall be so amended that it is stated specifically that the loan provision shall be "for establishing credits in the United States for foreign Governments engaged in war with the Imperial German Government, or with any other Government with which the United States shall be at war."

The impression conveyed by the debate today was that the United States intended promptly to make the vast loan to the Allies, and the restriction that the loan must be made while this country and the German Government are at war was therefore regarded as precautionary only. Its inclusion in the bill is primarily to bring about comparatively harmonious action in the House on the measure.

Wide Range of Debate.

The debate today took a wide range. Representative Shackleford of Missouri, a pacifist Democrat, demanded that "there be conscription of the wealth of the country if there is to be conscription of our young men for the battlefields of Europe." He said that he would offer an amendment for drastic increases in the rates of taxation on incomes and excess profits.

Representative Mondell, a Wyoming Republican, said that he was opposed to the conscription plan.

"I am yet to be convinced," he said, "that an army made up of slackers who have to be conscripted will make the best army for us."

While criticising some of the features of the bill which bestow wide powers upon the President and the Secretary of the Treasury, Representative J. Hampton Moore, a Pennsylvania Republican, announced his support of the measure.

"I shall vote for this bill," said Mr. Moore, "trusting to the Commander in Chief of our army and navy to prosecute vigorously this war and to bring us speedily to an honorable and permanent peace."

Leader Kitchin Questioned.

Mr. Kitchin, when questioned, said he did not feel at liberty to disclose the plans

Washington Gets Report of Peace Move by Germany

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Another peace report came into notice in Washington today, accompanied by details that attracted attention to it as possibly having some foundation. It was that the State Department had been informed by the American Legation at Stockholm that the German Government had requested the King of Sweden to offer in its behalf to abandon ruthless submarine warfare as an inducement to the United States to resume friendly relations with Germany.

A State Department official denied that any information had come of such a move. The story, said to have been based on advices from the American Legation in Stockholm, had it that King Gustav had full power from the Kaiser or the German Government to make terms satisfactory to the United States.

Official reports received in Washington from Berne state that a former Austro-Hungarian Ambassador to Great Britain is attempting to open negotiations with England looking to the conclusion of a separate peace between London and Vienna. Another story, which cannot be authenticated, but which is widely accepted here, is that Emperor Charles is not in sympathy with the imperialistic designs of Germany and would be willing to conclude peace if the status quo ante bellum of his dominions, with the exception of a portion of Galicia for the new Polish State, should be guaranteed him.

NEW YORK GUARD MAY BE FIRST TO GO

Gen. O'Ryan Says Those Who Enroll Here Must Be Prepared to Serve Abroad.

CHANCES FOR PROMOTION

When Recruiting Is Resumed, Those Who Registered for Enlistment Will Be Given Preference.

Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan of the New York National Guard issued a statement yesterday, saying that the New York Division would probably be among the first to be sent abroad, and that those who enrolled in the New York Guard now be prepared for active service there. He said:

"By reason of its past record in the civil and Spanish-American wars and its recent services on the Mexican border, the New York Division will probably be among the first troops to see active service abroad. In furtherance of this end it is desired that no men seek enlistment here who are not anxious for service at the front.

"At the present time we are not authorized by the War Department to recruit to our full strength. In the meantime many men have applied for enlistment in the guard regiments. As soon as the order referred to is modified vacancies that exist in the regiments will be filled by enlisting the best men of the enrolled applicants. There is ample opportunity for promotion.

"Young men who are exceptionally fit physically, who have no immediate members of their families dependent upon them for support, who are fitted for military service, and who possess the fighting spirit, combined with the desire for active service at the front, may apply now for enlistment to the recruiting officers."

The following changes affecting officers in the National Guard were announced yesterday at guard headquarters:

William L. Forbes, Jr., has been commissioned First Lieutenant and Battalion Adjutant in the Seventy-first Regiment.

Captain Edwin H. Moody, First Infantry, has resigned his commission.

Captain Frederick H. Ryan, First Field Artillery, has been transferred to the Reserve.

Edwin Sterling Munson has been commissioned Second Lieutenant in Company C, Seventh Regiment.

John G. K. Lawrence has been honorably discharged from Troop B, Squadron A, to enable him to accept a commission in the Naval Reserve.

J. Stanley Moore, who was Military Secretary to the Governor, with the rank of Major, and left the guard in 1915, has been placed on the reserve list.

Captain Moses Ashby Stivers has been promoted to be a Major in the Medical Corps.

John Ogden Outwater, Second Lieutenant, has been promoted to be First Lieutenant, Company H, Fifteenth Infantry.

Stephen Cleaver has been commissioned a First Lieutenant in the Medical Corps and assigned to duty in the Twenty-third Regiment.

Guernsey Wilder has been commissioned First Lieutenant in Company F, Third Infantry.

Sidney D. Palmer has been commissioned First Lieutenant in the Medical Corps and assigned to duty in the Twelfth Regiment.

First Lieutenant Ellis Robertson, Seventy-first Regiment, has been promoted to be Captain of the Headquarters Company.

First Lieutenant Nils Larsen of the Medical Corps has been assigned to the Twenty-third Regiment.

Raymond W. Lewis has been discharged from the Hospital Corps of Squadron A to enable him to accept a commission in the Medical Officers' Reserve Corps.

First Lieutenant S. Morris Pike, Battalion Adjutant, Second Infantry, has been promoted to Captain of Company D of the same regiment.

Major Charles J. Ahern of the Quartermaster's Corps has been detailed for duty at the State Arsenal.

First Lieutenant John D. Little, Medical Corps, has been assigned to duty with the Sixty-ninth Regiment.

Second Lieutenant Marston E. Drake of Company G, Seventh Regiment, has been promoted to be First Lieutenant in the same company.

Captain Charles W. Lynn, Medical Corps, has been promoted to Major.

First Lieutenant Bernard Guise, Company I, Fourteenth Infantry, has been promoted to be Captain of Company M, same regiment.

J. Herbert Clairborne, who served as Captain of the Twelfth Regiment in the Spanish-American war and left the guard after that war, has been promoted to the Reserve Corps with his former rank.

Whitman Appoints Patriotic Body to Promote Agriculture—Railroads Will Assist.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 13.—As the first move in a State-wide campaign to increase the crop production in New York it was announced today at a special meeting here of the New York Agricultural Society that certain public spirited men in New York City were prepared to lend the farmers of this and neighboring States an unlimited amount of money to enable them to buy seed and fertilizers and to pay for the labor and other expenses necessary to place every acre in their possession under cultivation.

In the Chase National Bank of New York there had been deposited, it was stated, $500,000 in cash to guarantee $10,000,000 for the loan. Two and three times $10,000,000 has been promised if it is needed. The money is to be loaned through local committees composed of two members of the Grange or other agricultural organizations, and if possible a banker. No mortgage will be asked on farm, tools, or crops. The only guarantee required will be an approved individual application with a note signed by the farmer. Interest at the rate of 4½ per cent. will be charged on the money.

The headquarters of the organization will be at the Chase National Bank. The executive secretary is Marc W. Cole of Albion. It is not necessary for a man to be a member of a farm organization to obtain a loan. Any farmer in this State, or renter of a farm, of good moral character will be accepted. The notes are payable on Dec. 1, but renewals will be granted to enable farmers needing the money to market their crops profitably. Efforts will be made to see that the food reaches the consumer from the farmer, so that the speculator may be eliminated and the farmer receive a fair price for his labor. The co-operation of the State Department of Food and Markets will be sought for the marketing and distribution of the food products.

Railroads to Co-operate.

An effort will be made to reach men unaccustomed to doing banking business, and, therefore, will not encroach upon the business of up-State banks. Railroad officials will co-operate by leaving supplies of application blanks with local ticket and freight agents, and by having agents advise their agricultural departments of the needs of farmers within their territory for seed, fertilizer, &c., and in the location of sources of supply for these needs.

This patriotic loan fund has the indorsement of the New York State Agricultural Society, the State Grange officials, and other agricultural interests. Immediate loans will be granted for buying seed and fertilizer. Later, when when the crops are in the ground, farmers will be further assisted, if necessary, with loans to pay their labor, caring for and harvesting their crop.

In this afternoon's meeting the New York State Agricultural Society took up the problem of labor which the farmer faces even though money be plentiful. A plan which was adopted and will be presented to Governor Whitman for his consideration, proposes that all the students in colleges, agricultural, normal, and high schools of the State who can be induced to enlist in an unorganized force of farm cadets to do actual work for the increasing farm production, be released from their studies May 1 that Regents examinationss held in June be deferred until the late Fall; that class credits for meritorious farm work service be awarded; that the acceptance and recognition of such enlistments and service receive military or semi-military recognition, and that suitable badges be given at the end of service for meritorious conduct.

A special committee is provided for to consist of four persons representing agricultural interests and as ex officio members the Commissioner of Agriculture, the Commissioner of Foods and Markets, the Commissioner of Education, the Master of the State Grange, the President of the State Agricultural Society, the Dean of the College of Agriculture, and the Director of Farm Bureaus.

The Governor is fully aware of the serious danger which threatens the State of a shortage of crops in 1917. It was announced today that he would send an emergency message to carry out plans for increasing agriculture production. The State survey of foods directed by Commissioner of Agriculture Wilson a few weeks ago indicated a shortage of seed, and it is feared that this year's production may be less than that of last year.

A patriotic Agricultural Service Committee was appointed by the Governor to formulate plans for increasing production on the farms. This committee, which will have charge of the disposal of the appropriation of $250,000 to be

Expect Our Navy In Big Sea Fight

BERNE, April 13, (via Paris.)—The military critic of the Basle Nachrichten believes that the entrance into the war of the powerful American fleet will "sooner or later lead to a revival of an aggressive sea policy against Germany and will probably culminate in a gigantic battle which will put the Dardanelles fight in the shade." The writer says that the allied fleets will find behind the German coast defenses "an opponent who knows what disastrous results the success of such an Anglo-American undertaking would have for his fatherland."

This observer further believes that if America attempts to transport troops to Europe Germany will abandon her submarine campaign in the Mediterranean and mass all available U-boats against the American transports.

He is dubious of the present value of America as a military aid, and thinks that the standing army, the only present force fit for modern war, is needed at home to watch Mexico. He calculates, however, that the United States has 13,000,000 men of military age whom it can equip and train, and that the Entente has acquired an ally who may prove the decisive factor in the war.

ALLIES TO TELL US OF ERRORS IN WAR

JUSSERAND SEES WILSON

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Plans for effective co-operation between the American forces and those of the Entente to be brought to bear in the war against the German Government are going ahead rapidly in conferences between officials of the Governments in Washington, London, and Paris.

Ambassadors Page and Sharp are in daily conference with British and French officials. Ambassadors Spring-Rice and Jusserand are likewise in almost daily conference with American Government officials in Washington. Secretary Daniels and Assistant Secretary Roosevelt of the navy had numerous conferences with British and French naval officers, both those attached to the embassies here and the officers in the staffs of Vice Admiral Browning of the British Navy and Rear Admiral Grasset of the French Navy, whose cruisers ride at anchor in an American port, while they are in conference with American naval officials planning co-operation.

Jules J. Jusserand, the French Ambassador, had a half hour conference today with President Wilson at the White House on various important phases of the international situation. It is understood the chief object in his seeing the President was to arrange for the formal reception of the French commission headed by M. Viviani, which is soon to come to the United States, and that they discussed informally certain preliminary matters connected with M. Viviani's mission. The French and British commissions coming to this country will be the most important international groups ever sent to this country, embracing, as they will, Mr. Balfour, Minister of Foreign Affairs; former Premier Viviani, General Joffre, the great French Army leader, and prominent representatives of British and French army, navy, and Governmental departments.

Rear Admiral William S. Sims, who, as reported in a special cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES, arrived in London yesterday, and was greeted by Ambassador Page, has been sent there on an important naval mission. Admiral Sims, who was recently designated as head of the Naval War College, is one of the ablest officers in the navy and is considered an ideal choice for the peculiarly important and difficult mission he is now performing.

It was intimated today that the British and French missions would be clothed with plenary powers, and thus would be enabled to join the United States in any proposal this country might make, as well as to bind America to any undertaking that might be suggested by them.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The International War Council to assemble here within the next week and to which Great Britain and France are sending eminent statesmen, soldiers and sailors was stated officially today to have very largely for its purpose enabling the United States to avoid the mistakes and difficulties which beset the Allies when they entered the war.

American officials in all Departments will have a chance to meet the foreign commissioners personally, discuss with them the lessons taught by the war, and consider the broad principles whereby the United States can marshal its forces for the great struggle with a minimum of waste and delay. It is realized that this country faces a stupendous task in converting itself, almost overnight, from a peace basis to a universal military, naval, industrial, and agricultural mobilization. The problem is to fill all these separate and unexpected demands without having each cripple the other. The Entente nations, particularly England, were faced at the beginning of the war by similar problems and learned to solve them only by bitter experience.

There will be some discussion in the conferences of the attitude of the United States toward ultimate peace terms. It is understood that the Entente Powers plan to agree to such terms as will warrant the United States in fighting unreservedly with them to a common end.

The highest honors that the United States can offer are planned for the British and French Commissioners. The leaders of the British party, who are expected here several days before the French Commissioners, will have the use of the handsome home of Franklin MacVeagh, former Secretary of the Treasury. Breckenridge Long, Third Assistant Secretary of State, who was about to move into the house with his family, has offered it to the Government for the time necessary.

Tell People the Truth, It Says, That Germany Can't Dictate to a "Hostile World."

LONDON, Saturday, April 14.—According to an unconfirmed report, received at The Hague, Emperor William has arrived at or is expected at the Castle of Middachten, near Arnhem, Holland, says a dispatch to The Times from the Dutch capital.

The Castle of Middachten belongs to the Bentick family, and the German Emperor visited there some years before the war.

Arnheim, near where is situated the Castle of Middachten, is the capital of the Province of Gelderland, and is on the River Rhine, fifty miles southeast of Amsterdam.

Arnhem is fifteen miles north of Cleves, the nearest German city, with which it is connected by a railroad. The German border reaches to within ten miles of Arnhem.

The Castle of Middachten lies close to the railway running from Arnhem northeast to Zutphen, and between the stations of De Steed and Dieren.

GERMAN PRESS SPEAKS OUT.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Saturday, April 14.—In connection with comment on the latest declaration of the Russian Government, the Berlin Vorwärts, according to an Amsterdam dispatch to The Daily Chronicle, says:

"The German Government must tell the people the whole truth, and that is, that one cannot dictate terms to a hostile world."

The Vorwärts says on the subject of peace:

"In the hands of the liberated Russian people now lies the decision regarding peace and war. It depends upon them whether in a reasonable time wisdom and justice will triumph over the loosened spirit of destruction or whether a long misery of war lies before us. All the world, therefore, will seek to read its fate in the new declaration.

"Matters between the Central Powers and Russia on the basis announced in the Russian program can be settled without a further drop of blood being shed. Neither Germany nor Austria-Hungary wishes to humble Russia nor keep a bit of her territory. In Germany, as in Austria-Hungary, we wish for peace, and the Provisional Government's statement shows that the same feeling in Russia is very great.

"To meet that feeling is the duty of the German Government, which must say that Count Czernin's proposal is its proposal, too, and that it has no intention to put forward at the suggested conference demands which only a defeated opponent could accept."

Severest Food Crisis at Hand.

AMSTERDAM, April 13, (via London.)—The Düsseldorf General Anzeiger explains in an article to the hard-working population of the Rhinelands of Westphalia that hard necessity has driven the country to the new food rationing, due to begin Sunday, and including a reduction of 25 per cent. in the bread ration.

The newspaper says that the old crop must serve for four months, but that there are supplies for only one month.

No peace, the newspaper adds, even if it came tomorrow, would alter the situation, and even after peace it will be a long time before the food situation is again brought to normal.

The newspaper concludes by saying that the Rumanian wheat crop must be rushed up, now that the Danube is free from ice, and that the people must hold out. It says that there is no alternative.

The Cologne Volkszeitung, after abusing President Wilson in the style that appears popular in Germany at present, says:

"We are entitled to a thumping war indemnity, and we do not care who pays it. Those States which have sacrificed immense sums will be unable to pay it. Therefore, America, which has earned thousands of millions through munitions and supplies, will have to unbutton its pockets. We need not force America itself to pay, but we hold so many pledges in hand that for the Entente it is most important to have America as a banker behind them."

Denounces Pan-German "Rubbish."

On the other hand the Frankfurter Zeitung in a remarkably outspoken article, freely admits that the constant pan-German sabre rattling has been to a large extent the cause of world-wide hostility toward Germany. The newspaper discusses a new pamphlet on "The Pan-German Movement in America," by Otto Baumgarten, which consists of a

Bolivia Hands Passports to German Minister; Argentina Crowds Now Clamor for War

LA PAZ, Bolivia, April 13.—The German Minister and his staff have received their passports from the Bolivian Government, with a note declaring that diplomatic relations between Bolivia and Germany have been severed.

BUENOS AIRES, April 13.—The Argentine sailing ship Monte Protegido has been sunk off the European coast, according to an official announcement made here today.

The announcement was made by the Minister of Foreign Affairs, who said he had received official information to this effect. A complete inquiry into the sinking of the ship has been ordered by the Government.

According to the newspapers, the ship was sunk by a German submarine, which fired upon it twice, wounding a member of the crew.

The news created a great sensation in Buenos Aires. An excited crowd marched through the streets shouting "Down with the German assassins!" Groups of students also paraded the streets singing patriotic songs.

Two German newspapers published in Buenos Aires, in view of threats by the crowds, closed their offices.

The news of the sinking of the ship was announced at the Military Club of Argentina as a reception to the French Military Attaché was in progress, and resulted in a remarkable demonstration. A crowd of students gathered in front of the club, singing the "Marseillaise" and cheering for France, the United States, and other members of the Entente.

The French Attaché and several high Argentine army officers appeared on the balcony of the club and saluted the crowd. The French officer cried, "Vive Argentina!" and was given a great ovation.

There were other demonstrations before the different newspaper offices, and the excitement is increasing.

GERMANS EXPECT WAR WITH BRAZIL

Press Thinks Other Latin-American Countries Also May Line Up.

DEPENDENT ON US, IT SAYS

Subjected to Our 'Unscrupulous Pressure'—Brazil Also Influenced by Portugal.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 12, (via Copenhagen, April 13.)—Up to a late hour last night nothing was known here as to whether or not Brazil really had such serious intentions regarding her diplomatic relations with Germany as are imputed to her Government by the Reuter, Havas, and other hostile news agencies.

The evening papers publish Reuter and Havas telegrams according to which not only Brazil but the whole South and Central American Republics are ready to join the United States in unreserved and unconditional solidarity. But the newspapers simultaneously warn their readers not to take too much stock in this "mixture of lies and truth, the main purpose of which is to create confusion, anger and complications." The Vossische Zeitung, however, says:

"It would not be impossible if some of the Central and South American Republics, who are more or less economically and financially dependent on the northern republic, should have been worked up to a state of great excitement by the unceasing, unscrupulous agitation of the United States and the rest of the Entente, whose aim undoubedly is to induce them all to break with Germany. In Brazil they seem very near accomplishing their purpose. There the die may be cast at any time. It may be assumed, however, that before taking a decisive step the Brazilian Government will await the result of the investigation into the sinking of the Brazilian steamer Parana, with which it has commissioned the Brazilian Consul at Havre.

"We should not be surprised if Brazil gave way to its hostile press, because that country most of all has been under pressure of the agitation described above since the beginning of the war. Inasmuch as Portugal entered the war, it has become even more likely that Brazil will follow suit since despite the separation of a hundred years both countries have remained closely bound together by ties of language and a steady flow of emigrants which in some years have reached a hundred thousand. Many Portuguese who became wealthy in Brazil returned to Portugal to spend the rest of their lives, in the times of the kingdom at least, as barons of castles in which they once served. No wonder the Portuguese looked on Brazil as a land of honey and freedom and Brazilians on Portugal as a land of cheap titles, orders and honors. There is not much hope of Brazil remaining out of the war."

Peru also is considered as inclining toward the Entente, while Argentina is still considered doubtful, this country having done the largest business of any of the South American countries with Germany. It,s hoped she, like Chile, will make an honest effort to maintain her neutrality.

BRAZILIANS URGED TO HURRY FROM GERMANY

Anti-German Demonstrations in the Republic Continue—Newspaper Plant Wrecked.

RIO JANEIRO, April 13.—Foreign Minister Lauro Muller has cabled the Brazilian Minister in Berlin asking him to urge all Brazilians in Germany to leave the country within twenty-four hours. A decree has been issued withdrawing the exequaturs of the German Consuls. The Ministers of France, Great Britain, and Italy conferred at length with Dr. Muller.

An official inspection of the German ships seized in Brazilian ports shows that important parts of the engines are missing, rendering the vessels practically useless.

Renewed anti-German demonstrations occurred last night. Crowds gathered before the German Club and hooted, after which they proceeded to the

VICTORS AT VIMY SURPRISE ENEMY

TROOPS SUFFER IN COLD

By PHILIP GIBBS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, April 13, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—The enemy's headquarters staff is clearly troubled by the enormous successes gained by the British troops during these first days of the battle of Arras, and all attempts to repair the damage to his defensive positions upon which his future safety depends have been feeble and irresolute. It is certain he desired to make a heavy counterattack upon the northern edge of Vimy Ridge. The prisoners taken yesterday all believed this would be done without delay.

The Fifth Grenadiers of the Prussian Guards Reserve were hurriedly brought up to support the Bavarian troops, who had suffered frightfully, and were massed in the wood called Bois de l'Hirondelle (Swallows Wood,) in order to steal through another little wood called Bois en Hache, to a hill known by us as the Pimple, and so on to recapture Hill 145, taken by the Canadians on Monday night, after heavy and costly fighting. This scheme has broken down utterly. Swallows Wood was heavily bombed by British airplanes, so that the massed Prussians had an ugly time there, and yesterday morning the Canadian troops made a sudden assault upon Pimple, which is a knoll slightly lower than Hill 145, to its right, and gained it in spite of a fierce machine gun fire from the garrison, who defended themselves stubbornly until they were killed or captured. At the same time Bois en Hache, which stands on rising ground across the little valley of the River Souchez, was attacked with great courage and the enemy driven out.

Difficulties of the Attack.

It was difficult work for the infantry and gunners. The ground was a bog of shell craters and mud, and there was a blizzard of snowflakes. The attack was made with a kind of instinct, backed with luck. The British stumbled forward in the wake of snowsqualls and shells, fell into shell holes, climbed out again, and by some skill of their own kept their bombs and rifles dry. Machine gun bullets whipped the ground about them. Some fell and were buried in snowdrifts, others went on and reached the goal, and in the white blizzard found out the enemy and his machine guns. It was an hour or two later that German officers, directing the operations at a distance and preparing a counterattack on Vimy Ridge, heard that Pimple and Bois en Hache were both gone—the only places which gave observation on the south side of Vimy and made effective any attack. Their curses must have been deep and full when that message came over the telephone wires. They ordered their batteries to fire continuously on those two places, but they remain in British hands, and the troops have endured an intense barrage without losing ground.

Now the British have full and absolute observation over Vimy Ridge to the enemy's side of the country, reversing all the past history of this position. The British are making full and deadly use of it. The enemy still clings to Vimy village, on the other side of the slopes, and to the line of railway on the eastern side of Farbus, but it is an insecure tenure, and the British guns are making life hideous for the German soldier in those places and in the villages fur-

BIG BATTLE AT ST. QUENTIN

LONDON, April 13.—By a sudden sweep north from their new positions east of Arras the British troops drove back the Germans today on a front of twelve miles, capturing six villages and seriously threatening the important coal mining centre of Lens.

The line of advance extends from the Scarpe River to Loos, north of Lens. The town of Vimy was captured, as well as Ancres, which with Lievin protects Lens on the southwest. The depth of the advance was about a mile.

The far-reaching, important and sweeping success of the battle of Arras is being revealed in successive chapters to the British public, which hardly realizes yet that it is the most effectual and decisive event to the credit of the British army during the war. It may well rank with the battle of the Marne and may prove the turning point of the whole war in the West and change the balance of the world war.

Field Marshal Haig's bulletin tonight, giving the number of guns captured as 166 and the aggregate of prisoners as 13,000, and the details of new territory gained for France from the invader, marks the battle of Arras as a great victory. But the significant statement from Field Marshal Haig is that the British are "astride" the Hindenburg line.

The famous Hindenburg line had been proclaimed by its author, as well as by German experts, as a sort of great wall of China which would be impregnable to all assaults. The German belief has even served to hypnotize part of the British public.

A number of European military writers have taken the view that the Hindenburg line was a myth painted to hearten the German people. But the British General Staff for some time has known that there is a definite Hindenburg line upon which the German Staff was basing its defense, and has known exactly where that line was drawn.

"In falling back the Germans are making in the direction of an emergency auxiliary line to the rear of the Hindenburg line, called the Drocourt-Queant line," says a dispatch from the British front. "Work on this position is far from complete and the Germans seem to have had no idea of using it except as a last resort. They are now fighting under orders to delay the British advance at every possible point to permit the completion of the work of making the new position defendable.

"On retiring from the Somme last month the Germans apparently expected to hold all the Hindenburg line, running southeast from Arras in front of Cambrai and through St. Quentin and Laon. The important point at the northern end of this line was Vimy ridge. There is no doubt the Germans never expected to be driven off that ridge by a frontal attack, as was done by the Canadians on Monday. Anticipating a northern offensive, however, and the possible outflanking of the Vimy positions, the Drocourt-Queant switch running north from the Hindenburg line was planned."

Wide Advance Near Le Catelet.

The British also attacked last night on a wide front west of Le Catelet, from Metz-en-Couture, south of the Bapaume-Cambrai Railway, to north of Hargicourt, a distance of about nine miles. Several wooded positions of considerable strength were captured after sharp fighting, the principal position being the village of Gouze au court, which stands on a knoll traversed by the highroad from Péronne to Cambrai.

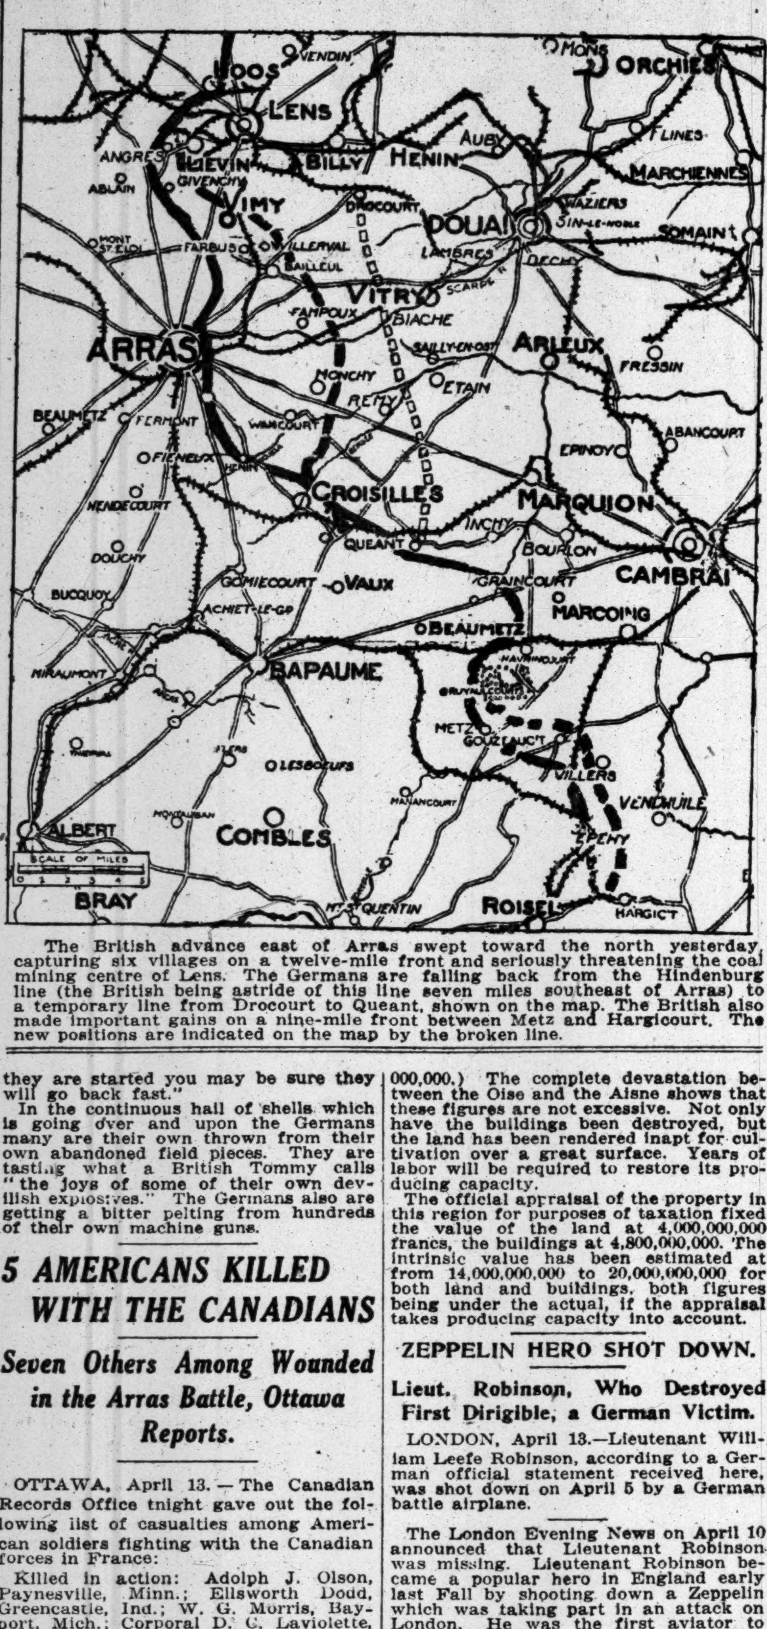
The area of active operation extended today toward the north. East and north of the Vimy Ridge our troops pressed back the enemy on our whole front north of the River Scarpe to south of Loos.

We have seized the villages of Bailleul, Willerval, Vimy, Petit Vimy, Givenchy-en-Gohelle, and Angres, and have gained a footing in the enemy's trenches northeast of Lens. In this area we have captured prisoners and guns.

South of the Arras-Cambrai Road we have captured Wancourt Tower on a spur east of Wancourt Village, and have advanced astride the Hindenburg

British Gain Toward Douai and Cambrai



The British advance east of Arras swept toward the north yesterday, capturing six villages on a twelve-mile front and seriously threatening the coal mining centre of Lens. The Germans are falling back from the Hindenburg line (the British being astride of this line seven miles southeast of Arras) to a temporary line from Drocourt to Queant, shown on the map. The British also made important gains on a nine-mile front between Metz and Hargicourt. The new positions are indicated on the map by the broken line.

We have also made further progress on the high ground east of Le Verguier and in Havrincourt Wood, (northwest of St. Quentin.)

Much useful work was done by our airplanes yesterday, although the weather continued unfavorable for flying. The only hostile formation encountered was severely handled by one of our patrols, which drove down four enemy machines out of control. One other hostile airplane was destroyed by us during the day. Three of our machines are missing.

The number of prisoners taken since the commencement of our operations now exceeds 13,000, including 285 officers. We have also captured 166 guns, including eight 8-inch howitzers, twenty-eight 5.9 inch howitzers, 84 trench mortars, and 250 machine guns, in addition to a considerable number of guns, trench mortars, and machine guns which were demolished or buried by shell fire and cannot be enumerated.

Many of the captured guns have been turned upon the enemy by us with good effect.

General Haig's early announcement follows:

> We attacked last night in the region between St. Quentin and Cambrai. After sharp fighting we captured the enemy's positions on a wide front from north of Hargicourt to Metz-en-Couture. We now hold Sart Farm, Gauche Wood, Gouzeaucourt Village, and Gouzeaucourt Wood.
>
> During the night our troops carried out a successful raid southwest of Loos. The enemy's dugouts were bombed and considerable damage was done to his defenses.
>
> In the neighborhood of Ploegsteert a hostile raiding party came under our machine gun fire, failing to reach our trenches.

Berlin's Version of the Battle.

BERLIN, April 13, (via London.)—On the northern wing of the Arras battlefield, says the official statement issued today by the German Army Headquarters Staff, preliminary successes of strong British attacks against Angres and Givenchy-en-Gonelle were balanced by German counterthrusts.

On the roads from Péronne to Cambrai and Le Catelet minor engagements occurred yesterday between Gouzeaucourt and Hargicourt.

From the Arras-Gavrelle road to the River Scarpe, says the statement, British divisions which twice attacked were repulsed with heavy losses. Southeast of Arras several attacks in which cavalry participated failed.

Lively artillery fire against St. Quentin and adjoining lines to the southward of that city was continued, preparatory to French attacks this morning on both banks of the River Somme. The attacks, it is said, failed.

Fierce artillery fighting along the Aisne and in the western Champagne continued yesterday. Reconnoitring detachments which frequently endeavored to feel their way forward were repulsed by the Germans, who captured 100 French.

The War Office communication issued this evening says:

> "It is officially reported that there have been no engagements near Arras, and only strong firing in the vicinity of Bullecourt. Near Auberive, in Champagne, a French attack failed."

GREAT BATTLE RAGES SOUTH OF ST. QUENTIN

PARIS, April 13.—A great battle is raging south of St. Quentin, on which, it is believed here, the fate of the city depends. The French troops attacked the German positions early this morning, and despite the desperate resistance of the enemy, carried several lines of trenches between the Somme and the railway running from St. Quentin to the Oise. In front of these captured positions the battle is still raging tonight, the Germans showing a stubborn resistance. The French guns meanwhile are throwing a hail of shell behind the German lines.

In the wooded district south of the Oise the French are moving forward slowly, fighting for every inch of the ground. The artillery combats continue along the Aisne front and in Champagne.

The afternoon statement follows:

> Between the Somme and the Oise our troops this morning attacked German positions south of St. Quentin. Notwithstanding desperate resistance by the enemy, we carried several lines of trenches between the Somme and the St. Quentin Railway. We brought back prisoners and a number of machine guns.
>
> South of the Oise our advanced troops made progress east of Coucy-la-Ville and took prisoners and material.
>
> There was artillery fighting in the region of the Aisne and in the Champagne.
>
> Near Verdun two surprise attacks were made by the enemy. They were broken up by our fire.
>
> The night was calm on the remainder of the front.

The evening statement reads as follows:

> The battle continues in front of the positions our troops captured this morning to the south of St. Quentin. The enemy is offering stubborn resistance. Our artillery has violently bombarded German organizations between the Somme and the Oise.
>
> To the south of the Oise and to the north of the Ailette we carried out with success some detailed operations, in the course of which we brought back about sixty prisoners.
>

BRITISH GUNS BLEW TOP OFF VIMY RIDGE

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, April 13, (via London.)—From the Vimy Ridge late today fires could be seen burning in the German lines and Canadian patrols had advanced beyond the outskirts of Givenchy.

An exploration of Vimy Ridge shows that the British artillery virtually blew the top off it and the German stronghold which had resisted all efforts of the French and British during more than two years of war was finally forced into such a position by high explosives that it could not resist infantry charges. These charges, of course, were backed up by continuous gunfire and accompanied by all the terrible machines and devices of modern war.

Walking on the top of the ridge is virtually impossible, and it is just one continuous climb from one shell crater to another. Two surmounting knobs, known only on military maps as numbered hills, had attracted the fire of the heaviest British guns and had been shattered into unrecognizable butts on the landscape.

It is little wonder that the Germans made such desperate efforts to hold Vimy Ridge and to retake certain portions of it by counterattacks, which failed miserably. The ridge stood as a natural barrier between the Germans and their opponents and was a great protective chain of hills shielding invaluable coal, iron, and other mineral lands which Germany had wrested from France in the first onrush of the war in 1914. The City of Lens, now within sight of the British lines, is a great mining centre. It is generally believed that in yielding the mines which have been such help to the Germans the latter will undoubtedly try to wreck them by every means. But even if France does not regain the immediate use of the mines, the shutting off of Germany from their precious products will mean an important step toward the ultimate allied victory.

From the top of Vimy Ridge the British now look down on the plain of Douai and toward the great industrial sections of France, which so long have been in enemy hands.

"We are the top-dogs at last," said a Canadian officer to The Associated Press correspondent today. "We have the Germans on the down hill and once they are started you may be sure they will go back fast."

In the continuous hail of shells which is going over and upon the Germans many are their own thrown from their own abandoned field pieces. They are tasting what a British Tommy calls "the joys of some of their own devilish explosives." The Germans also are getting a bitter pelting from hundreds of their own machine guns.

5 AMERICANS KILLED WITH THE CANADIANS

OTTAWA, April 13.—The Canadian Records Office tonight gave out the following list of casualties among American soldiers fighting with the Canadian forces in France:

Killed in action: Adolph J. Olson, Paynesville, Minn.; Ellsworth Dodd, Greencastle, Ind.; W. G. Morris, Bayport, Mich.; Corporal D. C. Laviolette, Rapid River, Mich.; Sapper Ainsley Laird, 403 South Bonniebrae Street, Los Angeles, Cal.

DAMAGE IN FRANCE COMPUTED

Technical Commission Estimates It at Fifteen Billion Francs.

PARIS, April 2, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—The Entente Allies had since the battle of the Marne and prior to the battles around St. Quentin liberated about 70 per cent. of the French territory invaded by the Germans.

With the advance of the British troops east of Roisel and east of Croisilles, the Department of the Somme was entirely liberated, and the occupied territory in the Pas de Calais reduced to 10 per cent.

The French are wearing down the Germans' hold on the Department of the Aisne, having reduced it from 100 per cent. at the time of the battle of the Marne to 55 per cent. at present.

The territory invaded in August and September, 1914, was 8 4-10 per cent. of all of France; at the beginning of this year the Germans held 3 7-10 per cent. of the whole. Since March 15 they have relinquished more than 10 per cent. of their holding.

In proportion as the occupied territory is liberated the magnitude of the damage becomes more apparent. A technical commission, basing its figures on inventories of known damages, estimated the probable total damage in the North of France at 15,000,000,000 francs, ($3,000,000,000.) The complete devastation between the Oise and the Aisne shows that these figures are not excessive. Not only have the buildings been destroyed, but the land has been rendered inapt for cultivation over a great surface. Years of labor will be required to restore its producing capacity.

The official appraisal of the property in this region for purposes of taxation fixed the value of the land at 4,000,000,000 francs, the buildings at 4,800,000,000. The intrinsic value has been estimated at from 14,000,000,000 to 20,000,000,000 for both land and buildings, both figures being under the actual, if the appraisal takes producing capacity into account.

ZEPPELIN HERO SHOT DOWN.

Lieut. Robinson, Who Destroyed First Dirigible, a German Victim.

LONDON, April 13.—Lieutenant William Leefe Robinson, according to a German official statement received here, was shot down on April 5 by a German battle airplane.

The London Evening News on April 10 announced that Lieutenant Robinson was missing. Lieutenant Robinson became a popular hero in England early last Fall by shooting down a Zeppelin which was taking part in an attack on London. He was the first aviator to bring down a Zeppelin and was awarded the Victoria Cross.

NEW POST FOR CROWN PRINCE.

He Now Commands Centre Army Groups on Western Front.

AMSTERDAM, April 13, (via London.)—The German Crown Prince now commands the German Centre army groups on the western front, according to the Frankfurter Zeitung. On the Crown Prince's right is Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria and on his left Grand Duke Albrecht of Württemberg, who previously commanded the German forces in Flanders.

It was recently reported in the Entente press, says the newspaper, that the German Crown Prince had been sent home to Berlin in disgrace.

KING'S AID KILLED AT MONCHY.

Gen. Bulkeley-Johnson Leads Cavalry in Famous Charge.

LONDON, Saturday, April 14.—According to The Daily Express, Brig. Gen. Charles Bulkeley-Johnson, a famous cavalry leader, was killed during the brilliant cavalry charge which contributed to the capture of Monchy le Preux. General Bulkeley-Johnson was an aide-de-camp to King George.

Germans Shell Belgian Lines.

HAVRE, April 13 (via Paris.)—The Belgian War Office issued the following statement today:

> The Belgian lines to the south of the ferryman's house were violently bombarded during the night. The Belgian artillery replied with energy. During the day reciprocal artillery actions were reported.

ther back in the direction of Douai and along the road which he is using for his transport.

In the village of Bailleul down there are a number of batteries which the enemy vainly endeavored to withdraw. The British are smothering them with shellfire and he will find it difficult to get them away, although he can ill afford the loss of more guns. The enemy has been in great trouble to move his guns away rapidly enough owing to the dearth of transport horses. Even before the battle of Arras began the German batteries had to borrow horses from each other because there was not enough for all, and some of his guns have been abandoned because of that lack. He cannot say he left only broken and useless guns.

When the Scottish and South African troops made the great attack on Monday last the South Africans were led forward by their Colonels and took the first German line without a single casualty. Afterwards they fought against wicked machine gun fire, but sweeping all before them and gathering in hundreds of prisoners, they seized a number of guns, including several 5.9 howitzers. A vast amount of ammunition lay about in dumps and the British turned the guns about and are using them against the enemy.

During this fighting the British airmen have flown with extraordinary valor, and have done great work. They flew in snowstorms, circled round for hours taking photographs of enemy positions, spotting his batteries so accurately in spite of the weather, which half blinded them, that German gunners who are now prisoners say they were terrorized by being made targets for the British fire.

Further south yesterday and today the British made new breaches in the Hindenburg line by the capture of Wancourt and Heninel villages, south of Monchy. The fighting here has been most severe, and the British, lying out on the open slopes in deep snow and under icy gales at night, swept by machine-gun barrages from Guemappe, and with the sky above them flashing with shrapnel bursts and high explosives, had to endure a very terrible ordeal. They have done so with noble spirit. Young wounded men to whom I spoke yesterday all spoke of their experience as though they would go through as much again in order to insure success. It is to end this filthy war quickly that the British are fighting so grimly, and with such deadly resolution. So they fought their way into Wancourt and Heninel. There were great uncut belts of wire before them. The men were held up by those great stretches of wire before them, and were menaced most evilly by an enfilading fire of machine guns from Guemappe and a high point to the south.

Two tanks came to the rescue and did most daring things. They came up in their elephantine way, getting the most out of their engines, and most skilfully guided by young officers and crews who were out on a great and perilous adventure, climbing over rough ground, cleaving through snowdrifts and mudbanks, and their steel flanks thrusting blunt noses above the old trenches and sandbag barricades. They made straight for the great hedges of barbed wire and drove straight through, leaving broad lanes of broken strands. One crushed into Wancourt, followed from a distance by the shouts and cheers of the infantry. It wandered up and down the village like a bear on a prowl for something good to eat. It found human food and trampled upon the machinegun redoubts, firing into the German hiding places.

The second tank struck a zigzag course for Heninel, and in that village swept down numbers of German soldiers so that they fled from this black monster, against which bombs and rifles were of no avail. Forty hours these two tanks did not rest but went about on their hunting trail, breaking down wire and searching out German strong points so that the way would be easier for the infantry. Even then the men had no easy fighting. The enemy defended themselves stubbornly in places. Their snipers and bombers and machine gunners did not yield at the first sight of the bayonet. While some of the troops bombed their way down the trenches towards Wancourt others worked up from the south. At last both parties met exultantly behind this section of the Hindenburg line, greeting each other with cheers.

Nearly 200 prisoners were taken hereabouts. All were Silesian mechanics, rather miserable men, with no heart in the war because, as with the Poles, it was none of their making. It is true to say, utterly true, that all the prisoners the British have taken this week, Prussians, Bavarians, and Hamburgers, have lost all spirit for this fighting. They hate it, loathe it as a devilish fate from which they have luckily escaped at last with life. Not one prisoner has said now that Germany will win on land. Their best hope is that the submarine campaign will force an early settlement. Their pockets are stuffed with letters from wives, sisters, and parents telling of starvation at home. It is not good literature for the spirit of an army.

In one of the prisoners' inclosures when a British escort brought food the men fought each other like ravenous wild beasts, and had to be separated by force and threats. The officers in charge of these prisoners' camps are overwhelmed by the masses of men. In one of them, where 4,000 are gathered, they broke the barriers. A captain and subaltern were alone to deal with the situation, but their own non-commissioned officers helped to restore order. The position of the enemy is now full of uncertainty for him. It is possible he will try to avoid any disaster by falling back further to the Drocourt-Queant line and by slipping away further north. The Hindenburg line is pierced, but he has established serious switch lines which will enable him to stand until the British guns are ready again to make those positions untenable. The weather so far is in his favor, except his troops are suffering as much as the British from the cold and wet.

ASKS BAKER TO CALL RESERVE CORPS NOW

Coast Fortifications Available for Handling Young Recruits—Many Old Rifles.

Major Gen. Leonard Wood, commanding the Eastern Department of the army, has recommended to Secretary of War Baker that there be called into the Federal service for a period of intensive training all the officers of the Reserve Corps who live in the States included in the present territory of the department. There are between 800 and 900 reserve officers in the department, a majority of whom live in New York, Pennsylvania, and the New England States. General Wood's suggestion is for two camps, one in the North, probably in New York State, and the other in one of the Southern States.

New officers of the Reserve Corps are being commissioned every day, and as all of them will exercise junior command in the armies which will shortly be called for, General Wood thinks that no time should be lost in getting these men into camp, where they can receive a maximum of practical and field training in the shortest time. His suggestion is now under consideration by Secretary Baker and the General Staff.

"In my opinion," said General Wood yesterday, "every one of these men should be in camp at the earliest possible moment. Every hour of additional training that can be possibly be provided should be given to these men. They hold important commissions in our service now, and nothing should be left undone to fit them to exercise efficiently whatever commands they will have in the armies that are to be organized."

General Wood is also of the opinion that practically all of the seacoast fortifications are now available for training young men. To these reservations could be sent thousands from all parts of the country. It is estimated that Fort Munroe, Va., alone can care for at least 500. Fort Hamilton could care for another 200, Fort Totten the same number, and the other forts between Galveston and Portland, Me., from 50 to 300 young men. The General would give to those who attend these fort training camps the status of cadets.

The Government now has in reserve about 600,000 old type Springfield rifles, and about 300,000 Krag-Jorgensens. General Wood thinks that these guns could be used in training men in all parts of the country, the men to receive the regular army Springfield as fast as those guns can be turned out.

"How about uniforms for these thousands of men who would be in attedance at these camps?" General Wood was asked.

"Like the guns that can be attended to later," General Wood replied, "for if a man can be taught to handle a gun properly we need have little worry about how he will wear his uniform when he gets it. If necessary we can train our men in civilian clothing. That was done in England at the beginning of the war."

"The college and university corps are doing splendid work, and I am hoping that it will be possible to keep them in continous training until they may be needed by the army. Princeton, Harvard, Yale, the University of Pennsylvania, Columbia, Wesleyan, Cornell, in fact practically every leading college and university in this part of the country now has a corps of students undergoing a course of military training directed by army officers. I think these organizations should be continued all Summer if necessary. They have the dormitories, mess halls, and the drill grounds, and there is no reason why any college corps should be disrupted and the men transferred to any other camp or organization."

General Wood has not forgotten the Plattsburghers either, and is anxious to get two training camps for business and professional men going at the earliest possible moment.

SPAIN ASKS GERMANY TO PAY FOR SHIP SUNK

LONDON, April 13.—A demand for indemnity for the sinking of the Spanish steamship San Fulgencio has been made on Germany by the Spanish Council of Ministers, the Madrid correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company cables.

A new commercial convention between Spain and Great Britain has been concluded. Among its stipulations is an agreement that Great Britain shall supply 150,000 tons of coal monthly to Spain. In return Spain will export to England as much ore as is required.

The Spanish Government agrees to permit the chartering of Spanish ships by the British Government.

PARIS, April 13.—A note of protest by the Spanish Government to Germany on the sinking of the Spanish steamer San Fulgencio has been completed, but it will not be published until it has been presented to Germany.

The note is said to contain an energetic protest, on which all the members of the Cabinet agreed. Count de Romanones, the Spanish Premier, according to advices received from Madrid, said with regard to the note:

"The unanimity of my colleagues of the Cabinet relieves my mind and gives me strength to persevere in the line of conduct which the circumstances compel us to follow."

The San Fulgencio was torpedoed without warning, being the first Spanish ship to be sunk by the Germans under these conditions. A London dispatch of Wednesday said the Spanish Government had made a strong protest to Germany.

LEAVE AUSTRIA TODAY.

American Embassy and Consular Staffs Going to Switzerland.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The State Department today received a dispatch from American Chargé d'Affaires Grew at Vienna stating that he, together with the members of the embassy staff and American consular officers in Austria-Hungary, with their families, would leave Vienna tomorrow for Switzerland.

Some members of the party, number and persons as yet undetermined, will be reassigned to other ports in Europe, but the larger number are expectedto return immediately to the United States vio France and Spain. It is thought likely that unofficial American citizens in Austria-Hungary will come out with the official body, except those who desire to remain in that country.

Higher War Premiums Announced.

The New England Mutual Life Insurance Company of Boston, in announcing yesterday the conditions under which new policies would be issued, called attention to the fact that an extra premium of $50 per thousand would be charged, while some of the other companies were charging $100 additional for assuming the war risk. For officers of the navy and naval militia the extra charge will be $100, and for members of the Naval Reserve the payment of an extra premium of $50 will be required for service limited to American waters and seas.

TWO HOSPITAL SHIPS SUNK IN WAR ZONE

One Torpedoed in Channel and All on Board Saved—52 Lost on Ship Which Hit a Mine.

LONDON, April 13.—The British hospital ship Gloucester Castle was torpedoed without warning in the English Channel on March 30. All the wounded on board were saved.

Another announcement made today told of the loss of the British hospital ship Salta as the result of striking a mine in the English Channel on April 10. Fifty-two persons were drowned on this vessel, which carried no wounded.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Saturday, April 14.—A dispatch from a "South Coast Port" says:

"The Gloucester Castle was torpedoed in mid-channel. Magnificent work was done by the nurses and medical staff in securing the safety of the large number of wounded on board. Absolutely regardless of their own lives they went to work, calmly and methodically, to remove the patients to the upper deck, and then trasferred them to the rescuing boats when these arrived on the scene. All aboard showed admirable spirit. There was no panic and discipline thoughout was perfectly maintained.

"The vessel was struck about 3 A. M. Her call for help was responded to instantly by a large number of craft of every description, and the work of transferring the wounded was carried on with the utmost despatch.

"A member of the crew of one of the rescuing vessels told me that those aboard the Gloucester Castle stated that they distinctly saw the submarine in the distance. All agreed the torpedoing took place absolutely without warning. The torpedo made a hole inside the vessel, through which four men could walk abreast.

"A number of the members of the engine room staff were injured, many of them being badly scalded."

The British steamship Gloucester Castle, 7,999 tons gross, was built in Glasgow in 1911 and owned in London. The Salta was a vessel of 7,284 tons gross, and had been in the British Admiralty service since the start of the war.

SCOUT REPORTS OF RAIDERS

Navy Cannot Find Basis for Any of Them, Says Secretary Daniels.

GALVESTON, Texas, April 13.—Information that a German commerce raider, in the guise of a sailing ship, has entered the Gulf of Mexico was reported today in Galveston. This news was received from an unnamed British steamer in a radio message to a ship anchored here. The vessel is said to be equipped with auxiliary power. It also has been reported that a German submarine is operating in the Eastern Gulf.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Many reports of German raiders and submarines lying in wait near American ports to destroy commerce reached the Navy Department today through civilian channels, but official information was lacking. Secretary Daniels said the utmost vigilance was being exercised, and, although hundreds of rumors had been investigated, no basis had been found for any.

Official denial by the Cuban authorities that the British vessel Treveal was sunk off Cienfuegos by a German submarine was cabled here yesterday to the Republic of Cuba News Bureau. The story of the sinking was given out last night at Key West, Fla., by C. Peterson, claiming to be a number of the Treveal's crew.

TO ENLIST BRITISH HERE.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The object of the Administration measure to authorize recruiting by the Entente Allies in the United States is especially to benefit Great Britain, it was learned today. England, which has some 100,000 subjects in America, a goodly proportion of whom might be available for service in the army, has no reservists, while her allies who do have them have thus possessed an advantage over Great Britain, in that they could call their subjects in this country to the colors, and England could not.

The legislation will remove the disability of Great Britain in this respect, enabling her to recruit soldiers in the United States from among her own subjects, and possibly from Americans as well. The legislation will not, however, enable any foreign Government to conscript its subjects in this country, as this would authorize France, for example, to conscript American citizens.

WANT LAND WAR RISKS.

Produce Exchange Asks McAdoo to Extend Bureau's Field.

The New York Produce Exchange sent to Secretary McAdoo yesterday a telegram signed by O. M. Mitchel, Chairman, asking the establishment of a bureau of war risk insurance to cover property on land on lines similar to the work of the bureau now covering war risk insurance of shipping.

"Private underwriters," says the telegram, "are unable to write these land risks to any amount at all commensurate with the requirements of our inland transportation and warehousing. Because our merchants naturally hesitate to assume risks which will run into an enormous money value our trade, both domestic and export, is already hampered and restricted. The prompt establishment of a bureau as outlined above is an immediate necessity for the carrying on of our business in grain, grain products, provisions, and allied articles.

"We suggest that the result may be more quickly reached by the extension of the field of the present Government war risk insurance bureau to cover similar risks on land."

ROYALTY RATIONED ALSO.

British Court Adopts the National Rule of Economy.

LONDON, April 13.—It is announced that, realizing the urgent need for economy, particularly with regard to breadstuffs, the King and Queen, together with their household and servants, have adopted the scale of national rations since early in February.

KING HEADS FLYING CORPS.

LONDON, April 13.—King George has become Colonel in Chief of the naval and military wings of the Royal Flying Corps "to mark his admiration of the splendid services both wings have rendered since the commencement of the war."

Foreign Aviators Coming.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—All the information and experience of the French and British airmen is to be placed immediately at the disposal of the United States Aviation Corps by officers detailed by their Governments to proceed immediately to Washington and become attached to the office of the chief of the army aviation section. The officers are expected to arrive within a week.

Philippine Teachers Will Drill.

MANILA, April 13.—Plans are being made by the Philippine Department of Education to give military training to teachers in the Summer assembly at Baguio, Luzon. An army officer will act as instructor.

SUFFRAGISTS AID DRIVE FOR RECRUITS

With Mayor's Committee Will Visit Homes and Impress on Women the Need of Men.

GET AUTOS FOR CAMPAIGN

"Wake Up, America," Day in All Parks of the American League—Posters in Fifth Ave. Windows.

More than 300 members of the Woman Suffrage Party of New York, acting with the Mayor's Committee on National Defense, will make a house-to-house canvass for recruits through the greater city today. They will visit every home to impress upon mothers, sisters, and sweethearts the country's need of men, and will distribute about 15,000 recruiting posters in stores, shops, offices, lobbies, and wherever else such material might be of value.

A large number of autos were placed at the disposal of the campaigners, many of them being loaned by anti-suffrage workers, who were eager to co-operate with their opponents. Among the leaders who will have charge of the campaign are Mrs. William G. Willcox, Mrs. Daniel Palmer, Mrs. David R. Rogers, Miss K. Cunningham, Miss Ethel Stebbins, Mrs. Charles L. Guy, Miss A. Matthews, Miss Camilla Morgan, Miss B. C. Howard, Mrs. Edward Van Zile, Mrs. Robert T. Allen, and Miss Emily Hooper.

The Mayor's Recruiting Committee was informed by B. B. Johnson, President of the American Baseball League, that he would help the recruiting movement by having "Wake Up America Day" on April 19 observed in all the parks of the league. Before every game on that day he will have announcements made, calling the attention of the crowds to the need of recruits.

The Fifth Avenue Association, comprised of all the prominent business firms in the Fifth Avenue section, had 5,000 recruiting posters printed yesterday for display in their windows.

Recruiting for the army and navy yesterday showed a falling off from Thursday. There were seventy enlistments for the regular army from the entire city, while the navy got only thirty-three enlistments out of more than 100 applications. The fact that yesterday was Friday, the 13th, apparently tended to discourage recruiting.

The National Special Aid Society of 250 Fifth Avenue has purchased four automobiles for the use of recruiting officers and has obtained fifteen loaned cars for use on certain days of the week. Mrs. Charles A. Childs of the society's Automobile Committee convassed owners of automobiles and raised the money to buy the other cars.

One of these was turned over to Lieutenant Commander T. H. Taylor, in charge of the navy recruiting station at 34 East Twenty-third Street; another to Captain F. E. Evans, for the Marine Corps; the third to Commander F. B. Upham of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, and the fourth was held in reserve.

According to announcement made yesterday the Central States lead in enlistments in the Marine Corps, although the Eastern States have by far the most applicants for enlistment, and the Southern States furnish the least number of "Soldiers of the Sea," according to statistics just made public.

The general poor physical condition of Easterners, the healthy outdoor life which young men of the interior enjoy, and the proportionate scarcity of Marine Corps recruiting stations in the South account for these differences, say recruiting officials.

It was announced yesterday that 2,500 men have been enlisted in the Naval Coast Defense Reserve. Captain J. F. Wright, member of the Enrolling Committee of the Naval Training Association, went to the Bush Terminal Docks in Brooklyn yesterday and addressed hundreds of the employes at a meeting during the noon hour, which resulted in the enlistment of sixty-seven longshoremen, lightermen, and seamen. A member of the committee said:

"We shall send a couple of bluejackets and speakers to the boxing bouts throughout the city to get recruits, on the theory that men who like a fight ought to be willing to do some fighting for their country."

Among the enlistments in the Naval Coast Defense Reserve yesterday were the Rev. William A. Nichols, Vicar of St. Timothy's Episcopal Church, Brooklyn, who signed as Chief Boatswain's Mate; John R. Schley, 22 years old, a cousin of the late Admiral W. S. Schley and a relative of Rear Admiral Braisted, Chief of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, Washington. Young Schley, who came to enroll from his class at Lehigh, said:

"Every generation of the family has been in the sea service since 1774, and I have to keep up the habit." Another recruit was George Tyrrell, son of Commissioner Tyrrell of the City Standardization Bureau. An entire delegation of twenty-five men from Montclair, N. J., was accepted. The youngest was 18 and the oldest 24 years.

W. J. Love, Treasurer of the Naval Coast Defense Reserve, made a public appeal yesterday for additional funds to provide the men with warm clothing and other necessaries for their work at sea in all sorts of weather. The appeal was indorsed by Rear Admiral N. R. Usher.

4,871 NAVAL RECRUITS IN LAST TWELVE DAYS

Enlisted Strength Nearly 70,000 and Big Guns Are Being Made Daily.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The tremendous recruiting campaign for the navy is beginning to show results. During the first twelve days of April a net gain of 4,871 men for the regular service was recorded. The figures for the last two days of that period were respectively 535 and 556 men, showing the steady increase in the daily average of applicants.

The total enlisted strength now is approaching the 70,000 mark. President Wilson has already authorized recruitment to 87,000, the maximum allowed by law, and pending legislation will provide for a total force of 197,000, including the coast defense reserve, the only present volunteer element.

When the 87,000 figure has been reached, it is possible that subsequent enlistments will be permitted "for the duration of the war," which would enable the active service to be filled up with war volunteers.

HOUSE WILL PASS BOND BILL TODAY

of the Administration regarding the loan to the Allies. He could not say what particular securities would be acquired by this Government.

"Will we take the bonds of one nation or a group of nations?" asked Representative Huddleston of Alabama.

"I think we will take the bonds of a nation, but they will not be backed by any group arrangement; that is, we will take the bonds of this nation or that and not 'group bonds.'"

Mr. Focht of Pennsylvania then asked: "Are we going to give the Allies this money to purchase the implements of war and bring Germany to terms, as the President suggested, or are we going to make a loan in anticipation of peace and attempt to rehabilitate the Allies after peace?"

"I think this money certainly will go for the implements of war," Mr. Kitchin replied. "We are not anticipating rehabilitation after peace of the Allies."

Mr. Kitchin, Mr. Fordney, and others said that much of the money loaned would be spent in this country, but agreed that Congress should not attempt to specify that the money loaned must be spent here.

In a speech in favor of giving the President all the means at the disposal of Congress, Representative Gardner said:

"For four years this has been a rubber stamp Congress when there was no need of it. Now the time has come when there is imperative need of it, and yet we start to boggle over the Army bill. Well, I for one, here and now, announce that so far as these war measures are concerned, I propose to be a rubber stamp Congressman, and I believe that the large majority of the Republicans in this House have exactly the same intention.

"I appeal to my Republican colleagues in this House to join with me in voting for what the President wants without a day's delay. We have been talking a lot about rising above partisanship; now let's quit talking about it and proceed to do it. What the President says he needs, that I shall vote to give him, not because I want to shove off my responsibility on him, but because he knows what is going on and I don't.

"As sure as you are an inch high, the people want us to send any troops we can spare over to France right off quick. Even if we can only send a small brigade of regulars, the people want the Stars and Stripes waving over those trenches just as quick as the color bearer can get there. They want a first-class sample of our manhood to go over and slap the Allies on the back and wish them well and tell them to hang on till we can get there to help them.

"If you want enthusiasm in this country, pitch in. Don't hang around the edges. Don't try to fight a duel with swords at thirty paces. If it takes us a year to get a trained army of half a million Ironsides, all right; we must wait, that's all. Meanwhile, if Roosevelt or any other Pied Piper can whistle 25,000 fanatics after him, for Heaven's sake give him the chance. He may whistle his division into the trenches half trained, of course, but I'll wager that they'll make up in nerve what they lack in drill. Roosevelt's no fool. He'll not make a botch of it. He'll do the same sort of job with his division that he did with his Rough Riders if you only give him the chance."

Legations of Chile and Argentina and cheered the Ministers of the two sister republics. The League of Friends of the Allies has approved the following propositions which have been placed before the President:

"First, the disarming of the confederated German rifle societies in Southern Brazil; second, the prohibition of correspondence between German subjects through either foreign or domestic mails, and a rigorous surveillance of all Germans resident in Brazil; third, the suspension of German newspapers and publications which spread ideas calculated to alarm or confuse the public mind; fourth, to offer the Allies and the United States the co-operation of the Brazilian fleet; fifth, to sequestrate all German ships until more radical measures can be taken; sixth, the dismissal of Dr. Lauro Muller as Foreign Minister and the appointment of Ruy Barbosa as his successor."

SAO PAULO, Brazil, April 13.—The offices of the Diario Alemano, a pro-German organ, were wrecked last night by a mob of pro-Ally sympathizers. The presses were destroyed.

In concluding an editorial comment upon the anti-German riots reported from Brazil, the New-Yorker Staats-Zeitung said yesterday afternoon:

"Even embittered Germans must admit that thus far our country has remained free from such outbreaks. Our Government, with President Wilson at the head, his Ministers, Congress, the Governors, with Whitman and Edge first of all (only Holcomb of Connecticut is one of the inglorious exceptions,) the Mayors of our cities—all have warned and admonished unceasingly, have appealed to the Americans' spirit of fair play. And not in vain. The few isolated cases where Americans forgot themselves and showed blind hatred against those who had been guilty of nothing wrong have remained exceptions.

"The duty of the Germans and Austrians who are here as involuntary guests to repay this attitude of the Americans through tactful conduct increases with every day. If both sides continue to remember their duties in the way they have done so far, we shall never have occasion to be ashamed to be called Americans."

PERU REGRETS WAR.

No Mention of Neutrality Made in Note to President Wilson.

LIMA, Peru, April 13.—The reply of the Peruvian Government to the note from the United States, announcing the existence of a state of war with Germany, says that Peru deplores the fact that the United States has been compelled to take such action and expresses the hope of a speedy ending of the great war.

No reference is made to the neutrality of Peru.

BRAZIL TO ARM SHIPPING.

German Vessels to be Seized "to Protect Them from Damage."

RIO JANEIRO, April 13.—It is officially announced that the Government has decided to arm Brazilian merchantmen which purpose to make voyages into the German submarine zone. The ships, however, will be provided with instructions of a purely defensive character.

It has been decided to seize for their own protection from damage German ships interned in Brazilian ports.

SPANISH CABINET CRISIS OFF

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, April 13, (Dispatch to The London Times.)—The distress caused by the German submarine blockade and the recent labor unrest has somewhat weakened the position of the Government, and public speculation was busy reshuffling the Cabinet when the news came that Brazil had broken off relations with and Cuba had declared war against Germany, and that other South American States were about to follow their example. The news was both unexpected and unwelcome.

The entry of the United States into the war caused surprise enough. The Spaniards had too readily assumed that the American policy was based purely on utilitarian considerations, and would never lead to war while neutrality meant good business. Responsible Spanish opinion as expressed by the Epoca and the Prime Minister's organ, the Diario Universal, made speedy amends by paying an enthusiastic tribute to American idealism as expounded in President Wilson's address to Congress, but the old spirit of antagonism and resentment dating from the Cuban war is industriously fostered by the Germanizing press, which still discovers selfish motives for American action, and insists that American aid will not, and is not intended to, have practical value for the Allies.

The South American decision touches Spain more nearly because of her prescriptive right to the moral and sentimental hegemony of the Spanish-speaking world. To this is always attached a peculiar value, a value never greater than today. Spanish neutrality has acquired sanction and support from the association of her daughter States across the sea. Their entry into the war would deprive her of this comfort and leave her to defend a unique position singlehanded.

The question has a more serious side. Hitherto the German submarine threat, while forbidding Spanish shipping to trade with the Allies, has permitted trade with neutrals, and Spanish ships continued accordingly to ply to the United States, Cuba, and Argentina, but if the blockade area is now extended to the American continent, what becomes of Spanish commerce?

The torpedoing without warning of the San Fulgencio, carrying British coal for Barcelona, wounds Spain at the tenderest point, and shows again the scant regard the Germans have for Spanish neutrality. Public opinion remains quiet and conciliatory, but the repeated attempts to force Spain into the war are creating a feeling of uneasiness. In view of the gravity of the situation the ministerial crisis is postponed.

MEXICO TO WORK FOR PEACE

Carranza to Outline Country's Position in Message to Congress.

MEXICO CITY, April 13.—In its answer to the American Government's notice of the existence of a state of war between Germany and the United States, made public here tonight, the Mexican Government announced in effect that it regretted the United States has been unable to solve its difficulties with Germany in a peaceful manner, but that Mexico, inspired by the desires expressed in her recent peace note, would omit no effort to contribute to the bringing about of peace.

The Foreign Office today was officially notified of the declaration of martial law in Guatemala by the Mexican Minister there. The statement was made here that Mexico had no information of border disturbances alleged to have been fomented by Germans on the Guatemalan frontier. The Guatemalan Minister has made no representations in this respect.

Wide publicity has been given to the note presented by the Argentine Government to the United States, in which Argentina recognizes the justice of the action taken by the United States.

It is expected that the Mexican Government shortly will take some action to regulate food prices, as there has been a heavy increase in the cost of necessities, such as flour, beef, and corn. Severe penalties will be provided for persons influencing the prices of merchandise.

General Carranza will deliver his message to the newly elected Congress at 6 o'clock Sunday evening. The message will outline Mexico's position in the international crisis, it is understood.

SAYS TINOCO WILL FAIL.

Washington Won't Recognize Him, Costa Rican Minister Avers.

The offer by the Washington agent of General Tinoco, the de facto ruler of Costa Rica, to put the waters and ports of that country at the disposal of the United States in the war with Germany, as announced in the papers yesterday morning, is regarded by the Costan Rican Minister as a further attempt on the part of Tinoco to obtain recognition by the United States. Señor Quesada, the Minister, said that he had assurance from the State Department that this Government had no intention of recognizing Tinoco.

ORGANIZE COLUMBIA FLIERS.

Students and Alumni Will Form Coast Patrol Unit No. 4.

The National Coast Patrol Commission has decided to form the 125 students and members of the alumni of Columbia University, who have volunteered for airplane service, into the Aerial Coast Patrol Unit No. 4. Clarence Martin, an alumnus of 52 William Street, organised the Columbia unit, which will have as its instructor Philip Sims, an American aviator who served in the Royal Flying Corps of Great Britain.

The Unit may purchase Howard S. Borden's seaplane for the use of the aviators, and their training ground will be a field on the Shrewsbury River, in New Jersey. It is planned to send six men there next Monday to begin practice. Those who do not qualify as aviators may be used as mechanics. More than $6,000 has been subscribed for the use of the Unit.

Reserves Join Navy Today.

The Second Battalion, Naval Militia, will leave its armory at the foot of Fifty-second Street, Brooklyn, at 2 P. M. today, marching down Fourth Avenue to Flatbush Avenue and through Flatbush Avenue extension to Sands Street and to the Navy Yard to be taken into Federal service

BARRED ZONES HEM ALL OUR HARBORS

President Proclaims Defense Areas and Entrance and Exit of Every American Port.

ALL GUARDED BY PATROLS

Closed at Night, and Any Vessel Failing to Stop May Be Fired On by War Craft.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Defensive war zones around the coasts of the United States were announced in an Executive order issued by President Wilson on April 5, the text of which was made public today.

To prevent surprise attacks against New York and other coast points by German submarines or raiders, a barred zone has been established, extending for a distance of from two to ten miles from great harbors.

Special regulations to prevent enemy vessels from entering the forbidden territory were put into effect a week ago, but news of the order was made public today for the first time.

Executive Order Establishing Defensive Sea Areas.

In accordance with the authority vested in me by Section 44 of the act entitled "An act to codify, revise, and amend the penal laws of the United States," approved March 4, 1909, as amended by the act "Making appropriations for the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1918, and for other purposes," approved March 4, 1917, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, do order that defensive sea areas are hereby established, to be maintained until further notification, at the places and within the limits prescribed as follows, that is to say:

The responsibility of the United States of America for any damage inflicted by force of arms with the object of detaining any person or vessel proceeding in contravention to regulations duly promulgated in accordance with this Executive order shall cease from this date.

WOODROW WILSON.

The White House, April 5, 1917.

Regulations of Enforcement.

The regulations for carrying into effect the executive order of the President establishing defensive sea areas are as follows:

Whereas, In accordance with Section 44 of the act entitled, "An act to codify, revise, and amend the penal laws of the United States," approved March 4, 1909, as amended by "an act making appropriations for the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1918, and for other purposes," approved March 4, 1917, defensive sea areas have been established by my order of April 5, 1917.

Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, do hereby authorize and promulgate the following orders and regulations for the government of persons and vessels within the limits of defensive sea areas; which orders and regulations are necessary for purposes of national defense.

I.—In the neighborhood of each defensive sea area entrances have been designated for incoming and outgoing vessels, including, in the case of areas across which more than one channel exists, an entrance for each channel. These entrances are described in Article X. of these regulations in conjunction with the areas to which they respectively pertain.

II.—A vessel desiring to cross a defensive sea area shall proceed to the vicinity of the entrance to the proper channel, flying her national colors, together with International Code number and pilot signal, and there await communication with the Harbor Entrance Patrol. It is expressly prohibited for any vessel to enter the limits of a defensive sea area otherwise than at a designated entrance and after authorization by the Harbor Entrance Patrol.

III.—Boats and other craft employed in the Harbor Entrance Patrol will be distinguished by the Union Jack, which will be shown from a position forward; they will also fly the usual naval pennant. At night they may show a vertical hoist of three lights—white, red, and white, in the order named.

IV.—On receiving permission from the Habor Entrance Patrol to enter a defensive sea area, a vessel must comply with all instructions as to pilotage and other matters that she may receive from proper authority, either before or during her passage across the area. It is understood that only upon condition of such compliance is the said permission granted.

All Barred at Night.

V.—No permission will be granted to other than a public vessel of the United States to cross a defensive sea area between sunset and sunrise, nor during the prevalence of weather conditions that render navigation difficult or dangerous. A vessel arriving off a defensive sea area after sunset shall anchor or lie to at a distance of at least a mile outside its limits until the following sunrise; vessels discovered near the limits of the areas at night may be fired upon.

VI.—No vessel shall be permitted to proceed within the limits of a defensive sea area at a greater speed than five (5) knots per hour.

VII.—All matters pertaining to fishery and the passage of small craft within a defensive sea area shall be regulated by the senior officer of the Harbor Entrance Patrol.

VIII.—These regulations are subject to modification by the senior officer of the Harbor Entrance Patrol when the public interest may require; and such notification as circumstances may permit will be issued regarding modifications thus made.

IX.—Any master of a vessel or other person within the vicinity of a defensive sea area who shall violate these regulations, or shall fail to obey an order to stop or heave to or shall perform any act threatening the efficiency of mine or other defenses or the safety of navigation, or shall take any action inimical to the interests of the United States in its prosecution of war, may be detained therein by force of arms and renders himself liable to prosecution as provided for in the Act to codify, revise, and amend the penal laws of the United States, approved March 4, 1909, as amended by "the act making appropriations for the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1918, and for other purposes" approved March 4, 1917.

Legal Entrances to Harbors.

X.—The designated entrances to defensive sea areas referred to in Article 1 of these regulations shall be as follows:

The Secretary of the Navy will be charged with the publication and enforcement of these regulations.

WOODROW WILSON.

The White House, April 5, 1917.

GERMANY FOLLOWS OUR RULES FOR ALIENS

Will Not Intern Americans, but Treat Them as We Treat German Residents.

BERLIN, April 12, (via London.)—There will be no interment of Americans in Germany.

After a conference between the political and military authorities tonight, it was announced that the German Government would treat Americans here on virtually the same lines as those laid down in President Wilson's proclamation concerning the treatment of Germans in the United States.

Americans here will have almost every freedom, and so far have enjoyed the same freedom as is accorded to neutrals, except they are not allowed to reside in fortified places and are subject to stricter police registration requirements. They may carry on their businesses as before.

U-BOATS WORK IN DISGUISE.

American Seamen Tell How Vessels Are Trapped.

Five American seamen who were members of the crew of the Swedish steamship Skogland, which was torpedoed off the Spanish coast on Feb. 18, arrived here yesterday with details of the manner in which the U-boats disguise their craft as small coasting steamships by using old canvas and wooden frames to cover the sides. Leo H. Cartwright of Portsmouth, N. H., one of the five, said that the Skogland was the fourth vessel that had been sunk under him since the war began. The first was the Wilson freighter Arturo, the second the Cynthiana, and the third the Thurso of Christiania.

The crew had ten minutes to leave the Skogland, he continued, and the Captain of the submarine sent a few shells along to hurry them up.

While the boats were pulling away from the sinking steamer the crew saw the U-boat, disguised as a small tramp, destroy one British, one Spanish, and two Italian vessels.

Survivors of the British schooner Greenwood and the Danish steamship Daisy, which were torpedoed in the Mediterranean, also arrived yesterday.

Greek Steamer Is Sunk.

LONDON, April 13.—An Athens dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company says the Greek cargo boat Livatho, Saloniki for New York, without cargo, was torpedoed on Sunday.

The Greek steamship Livatho was of 1,904 tons. She sailed from New York on Dec. 2 for Piraeus, arriving at Gibraltar on Dec. 27. No further movements of the vessel are recorded in available shipping records.

ESPIONAGE BILL TO GO TO SENATE

MAKES MANY AMENDMENTS

Bitter Fight Predicted When the Measure Is Debated—Apparent Plan to Rush Action.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The Espionage bill, prepared by the Department of Justice, and introduced in both houses by the Chairmen of the Committees of the Judiciary, will be reported to the Senate on Monday. At a meeting of the Judiciary Committee today a favorable report on the measure was ordered, although several members were absent. It is said that scores of amendments to the bill have been made by the committee.

Great secrecy surrounds the work of the committee on this measure, which is being criticized as striking as much at liberty of speech and of the press as at those who may attempt to obtain information detrimental to the best interests of the United States in time of war.

There is an apparent intention on the part of some members of the Senate Committee to rush the bill through the Senate if possible. Even Senators who endeavored this afternoon to obtain copies of the amendments made by the Judiciary Committee, for the purpose of studying them, were informed by the committee's clerk that he had been ordered not to furnish copies. The attitude of the Senate committee is different from that of the House Committee on the Judiciary, which has given hearings to interested persons, and has shown a disposition to ascertain whether there is basis for the charge that the measure will be a curb on the expression of proper public sentiment.

Several Senators are understood to be aroused over portions of the bill, and particularly over Subsection (c) of Section 2, the text of which was printed in an editorial article in THE NEW YORK TIMES today. This subsection makes no distinction between information obtained or published in an effort to bring remedial action and information obtained for the use of a public enemy with intent to injure the United States. It gives such wide latitude to public officials that a corrupt or revengeful official could bring proceedings with the intent to inflict severe penalties on a newspaper publisher, editor, or writers for publishing, or even obtaining, information concering military matters when the plain intent would be to use this information only to call attention to defects in the conduct of a war, just as Lord Northcliffe's newspapers did in England. The fear is expressed that those responsible for the Espionage bill not profit in drafting it by the mistakes made by the British Government in the first two years of the war with respect to press censorship.

It is expected that the bill will be bitterly attacked when it comes up for consideration in the Senate on the ground that it strikes at one of the fundamental principles of the American Government—liberty of speech and the press. Some Senators are understood to believe that the bill is in itself unconstitutional, but they realize that once its is enacted great harm can be done under its provisions before its constitutionality can be determined in the courts. Except for the appearance of some critics of the measure before the House Committee on the Judiciary, nothing has been produced to indicate that there is any particular interest in it among American citizens, one of whose most highly prized rights, it is asserted, is menaced by the bill. It is realized here that if the bill is enacted in the form in which it was drawn in the Department of Justice, the impression may be created among the people that information and comment showing that the war is being conducted improperly is being suppressed.

What was said to be the most important amendment adopted by the Senate Judiciary Committee was proposed by Senator Poindexter of Washington. It bars from the mails all publications violating the provisions of the bill and all publications of an anarchistic, seditious, or treasonable nature.

While authority to bar such publications is vested in the Postmaster General, the committee added a new section permitting a review by the Federal district courts. As the Poindexter emendment was ordered printed for the use of the Senate at the time Mr. Poindexter gave notice if his intention to offer it, the tex is available for publication. It follows:

Section 1—Every letter, writing, circular, postal card, picture, print engraving, photograph, newspaper, pamphlet, books, or other publication, matter, or thing, of any kind, in violation of any of the provisions of this act, or intended or calculated to induce, promote, or further any of the acts or things by any provision of this act declared unlawful, is hereby declared to be nonmailable matter and shall not be conveyed in the mails or delivered from any Post Office or by any letter carrier.

Section 2—Every letter, writing, circular, postal card, picture, print, engraving, photograph, newspaper, pamphlet, book, or other publication, matter, or thing, or any kind, containing any matter of a seditious, anarchistic, or treasonable character, is hereby declared to be nonmailable.

Section 3—The Postmaster General may, upon evidence satisfactory to him, that any person, concern, association, or company is engaged in using the mails for the circulation or dissemination of any matter by this act declared to be nonmailable, forbid the use of the mails by any such person, concern, association, or company.

Section 4. Whoever shall use or attempt to use the mails or postal service of the Government for the transmission of any matter declared by this act to be nonmailable, shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than five years or both. Any person violating any provision of this chapter may be tried and punished either in the district in which the unlawful matter or publication was mailed, or to which it was carried by mail for delivery according to the direction thereon, or in which it was caused to be delivered by mail to the person to whom it was addressed.

ARCHITECT ARRESTED, WITH MAPS, AS ENEMY

Charts Blocked Out in German Army Method—Mothet, Son, and Daughter Held.

BOSTON, April 13.—The arrest of Erwin F. Grossman of Wilmington, N. C., an architect in the employ of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad at that city, as an alien enemy, threatening the peace and security of the United States, was announced by United States Marshal John J. Mitchell tonight. Grossman had maps of this city and of Boston Harbor, and a pencil sketch of Quincy. He pleaded not guilty in the Federal District Court and was committed to jail in default of $10,000 bail.

The maps, Grossman explained, were intended for publication as guides to the shortest way between certain points in the areas involved. They were blocked out in the method used by German military authorities, and this he said was done because it was the best way. Each map was indexed, showing public buildings, transportation facilities and other features.

Grossman, 49 years old, was a Lieutenant in the German Army when he retired ten years ago, Federal officials stated. He came here from Wilmington, N. C., just before Easter to visit his wife, who was employed as a housekeeper in Hyde Park, he said.

EL PASO, Texas, April 13.—Federal indictments were returned today against Mrs. Amelia Toenniges, Clarence Toenniges, and Josephine Toenniges, her son and daughter, and Henry Beach, all Germans, charging them with "conspiracy to levy war against the United States by inducing and instigating Mexican military commanders to invade the United States from Mexico."

Indictments were returned also against four Americans and two Mexicans charging conspiracy to ship 200,000 rounds of ammunition from Douglas, Ariz., to Mexico. The Americans were J. E. Anderson, Bernard Schuster, Arthur Schuster, and V. B. Andreas. The Mexicans were Emilio Ortiz and C. H. Armijo.

PORTLAND, Me., April 13.—William Hay, a guard at the Grand Trunk Railway Bridge, was fired on last night by a man who climbed onto the drawbridge from a motor boat. The bullet grazed his arm. Hay's assailant and a companion exchanged shots with the guard before they disappeared in the darkness.

SEATTLE, Wash., April 13.—Wireless apparatus set up in their home by Baron and Mrs. Frederick von Lichtenow has been seized. It is said Baroness von Lichtenow recently admitted that before coming to Seattle from Germany she passed number one in a competitive examination for telegrapher in a German military office.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 13.—Private Murphy, member of a military guard protecting a Western Pacific Railroad tunnel in the Sierra Nevada Mountains, was shot three times last night from ambush with a high-power rifle, according to information reaching Western Pacific officials here today. Murphy was wounded seriously. His assailant escaped.

PENACOOK, N. H., April 13.—Two National Guardsmen on duty at a railroad bridge reported tonight that four shots were fired at them, without effect. They could find no trace of their assailant.

MINES FOUND IN NAVY YARD.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., April 13.—Placed so as to blow up the two interned German war vessels at League Island as soon as any attempt was made to move them, two large submerged mines were discovered in the back channel of the yard on Wednesday afternoon. A disengaged float from one of the mines gave the clue to their presence, according to sailors from the navy yard.

Preparatory to moving the Eitel Fredrich and the Kronprinz Wilhelm, a Government tug was sent to the two vessels about 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Fity feet from the stern of the Kronprinz Wilhelm a member of the crew of the tug noticed a corw float on the water. He immediately recognized it as one of the kind which is frequently anchored to a submerged mine to locate it. The tug had evidently severed the line connecting the mine and the float.

A small boat with a dredge attachment was ordered to drag the bottom of the channel near the two interned liners to see if the bottom was really mined. A member of the crew of the dredge said last night that the sailors discovered the first submerged mine about fifty feet astern of the Wilhelm, almost directly under where the float had first been seen. The other mine was a short distance away. The sailor who was with the party that found the mines said they contained enough explosives to blow the vessel to pieces. None of the men who told of the affair had any idea where the Germans could have bot the mines.

Preparations have been made to receive the two boats at the immigration station at Gloucester. The authorities, it is said, are considering the advisability of manning them with men from the naval coast defense reserve.

INDICTED AS GERMAN AIDS.

Failed to Manifest Rubber Going by Way of Denmark.

Joseph and Oscar Newman, brothers; Reginald R. Hansen, chief steward of the steamship Kristianiafjord, and William Hein, a mechanic, were indicted in the Federal Court yesterday on a charge of conspiring to violate the customs regulations. The indictment charges failure to manifest a lot of dental rubber, which they intended to ship to Denmark. The manifest described it as baggage.

There have been many attempts to send rubber to Denmark and Sweden by persons supposed to be acting for Germany, where rubber is greatly needed. Other persons convicted of similar offenses have escaped with fines, but there was no war between this country and Germany. The maximum penalty for the offense is two years imprisonment and $10,000 fine, or both.

Diplomats Coming from Austria.

BERNE, April 13, (via Paris.)—Forty-three American diplomatic and consular officials will arrive here on Sunday from Austria-Hungary. They will be accompanied as far as Zurich by an equal number of non-official Americans, including physicians who have been working in Austrian hospitals. Secretary Grew has assumed responsibility for this latter party, so as to avoid such frontier incidents as occurred when Mr. Gerard left Germany.

TELL THE TRUTH, GERMAN PAPER SAYS

collection of articles on pan-Germanism, and especially the chapter, entitled "The Pan-German Threat to America," in which is reproduced the appeal made in July, 1915, by Baron Kurt von Strantz to "the 30,000,000 Germans in the United States to form with the Irish an independent State."

The Frankfurter Zeitung also cites violent tirades by various writers against all non-German people, the advocacy of frightfulness, the exaltation of hatred, and says:

"All this sorry rubbish, especially the ever-recurring idea that Germany will seize parts of South America, serves nothing but to strengthen the hands of Germany's enemies in America. These are the people who have harmed our cause abroad immeasurably, and they have made foreigners believe that their views are those of the German nation."

Otto Hoetcsh, a prominent writer, reviewing the German-American clash in the Kreuz-Zeitung, contends that Germany has a perfect right to make her own international law as far as submarines are concerned and also in regard to neutrals, for whoes future interests, he says, Germany is fighting. Herr Hoetsch charges that America was never neutral from the beginning of the war, which, he says, would have been over long ago if America had not abetted the Entente. He continues:

"Germany, in always trying to avoid a German-American conflict, played into the hands of her opponents.

"The German Embassy in Washington should be blamed for this. It was the weakest spot in the whole diplomatic service. Apart from its glaring mistakes the Embassy lacked an understanding of American psychology, the best proof of this being the failure of the whole German propaganda. * * *

"It is to the Kaiser's lasting merit that he made every effort to hold America's friendship. We cannot blame him because America is against us, but we do blame the German-Americans, who must realize that the Fatherland is deeply disappointed in them."

Reform Spirit Spreading.

COPENHAGEN, April 13, (via London.)—The movement for electoral reform has been making itself felt generally throughout the German Empire since Emperor William's Easter rescript, his phrase that there was no room in Germany for class franchise, in view of the achievements of the people during the war, having been taken to heart in the States still retaining parts of this system.

The Republic of Hamburg, the Government of which is still established on the lines of the days of the Hanseatic League, which gives a preponderating influence in elections to the richer classes, will require modernization. Even commercial leaders and Conservatives admit the necessity of this, but they advocate a postponement of it until the return of the soldier voters after the war.

Brunswick, where an attempt at reform a few years ago failed in the parliamentary stages, will, like Saxony and Lippe-Detmold, resume its endeavors.

The Mecklenburg Duchies urgently need modern Constitutions, but the general opinion it that the Reichstag will have to take the matter in hand, the nobles and clergy, who retain the veto power on all legislation, having again blocked all reforms.

Hopes Czernin Plan Is Buried.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 13.—Count Reventlow says in the Tages-zeitung that if any hopes of peace exist they lie in the direction of Russia and not in the mysterious reported visits to Stockholm of the Social Democrats, Scheidemann, Dr. Adler, &c. He adds that the Lloyd George Government would hardly put the responsibility for the first steps in peace negotiations in the hands of these gentlemen, whose ideas of peace conditions would hardly coincide with those of the Government or of the highest ruler.

Count Reventlow insists that Count Czernin's proposals are impractical and injurious and expresses the hope that they are buried forever.

REJECTS LIBERTY BY 'GRACE OF WILSON'

Dr. Haas, Reichstag Member, Says Democracy Is No Real Guarantee of Peace.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 13, (via London.)—Discussing America's attitude in the Tageblatt, Dr. Ludwig Haas, member of the Reichstag, said that many Germans characterized President Wilson's address as a document of shameful hypocrisy, but he asked, had not Wilson many millions of Americans behind him. He went on:

"One man may be a hypocrite, but never a whole nation. If the American people accept this message without a protest, then a tremendous abyss separates the logic of Germans from that of other nations."

Germany today was paying too heavily in blood and treasure, Dr. Haas said, for the shortcomings of the old system. That could not be denied even by the Conservatives.

Notwithstanding this, it was only a mass-meeting phrase to say that democracy in itself guaranteed peace. It was nationalism that drove a people, whether democrat, constitutional or absolutist, to disaster, the democratic nations seeming to be especially powerless to resist nationalism, as for instance, Italy, Rumania, Serbia, and France. He went on:

"Russia's later parties have turned most eccentric somersaults in nationalism, which our pan-Germans might envy. Milukoff, like our own Dietrich and Schaefer, would have the people spill the last drop of blood for their ideas of what the respective maps of Russia and Germany ought to be.

"Good old Woodrow Wilson has laboriously constructed his own philosophical system of foreign policy, but he has never given any consideration to what France, Serbia, Italy, and Rumania desired to conquer. Nor does he seem aware that the healthy English democracy has a splendid digestion.

"No doubt the world is growing more democratic through this war. After it is over the democracy of the whole world will find it incumbent to oppose unhealthy nationalism wherever the professors and other spectacled persons raise their voices in its favor.

"Woodrow Wilson is not so far wrong if he means the planning of war might be prevented if the peoples asserted the right to know everything about the foreign policies of their countries. But the President seems blind to the fact that a handful of men have made it their secret and uncontrolled business to direct the fate of the European democracies. With the press at one's command one can easily drive a poor people to a mania of enthusiasm, when they will carry on their shoulders the criminals who have led them to the brink of disaster.

"President Wilson's philosophical system might seem worthy of serious consideration if two fundamental laws were established throughout the countries of the world. These are, first, that all the matters and facts of foreign policy shall be communicated to the full parliament, and, second that any Minister of Foreign Affairs who lies to Parliament shall be punished by imprisonment for not less than ten years. But even that is no perfect safeguard, as the American Congress has proved clearly, that the whole Parliaments may become enraptured with a war for which, from the viewpoint of the masses, there is no reason whatever.

"Wilson's heart belonged to England and France when they were yet united in friendship to the Czar. Now he rejoices over the collapse of czarism, and he would probably rejoice just as honestly if czarism had defeated Germany. He permitted his people to aid the Czar in every way to defeat the Central Powers. No doubt if the Russian revolution had waited a few days longer the little father would have appeared as a most honorable member in his league of honor.

"President Wilson wants to liberate Germany from autocracy and for the sake of this delivery he has blessed us with mountains of American munitions. It takes astonishing American ignorance regarding everything European and a huge lack of tact to venture to suggest such a foundation for our liberty. We will take care of it ourselves. The German democracy rejects liberty by the grace of Mr. Wilson.

"It would be better if he thought first of making over his democracy of corrupt officials and his democracy of industrial magnates into true democracies before bestowing his blessings on Germany. He might also abolish the outrages against the colored people in his own country. If Americans lynch a poor negro, all is well and good, but if a negro happens to perish on a torpedoed ship, Mr. Wilson shouts, 'Citizens, your country is in peril. American honor is violated.'"

APPLAUDS WILSON'S IDEAS.

Belgian Socialist Says His Program Means World's Salvation.

THE HAGUE, April 13.—Camille Huysmans, Secretary of the Socialist International Congress, said today that he and the Continental Socialists were in entire sympathy with President Wilson's program and ideals, as set forth in the President's speeches and messages, and that, while theoretically the Socialists were pacifists, he regarded America's war on Germany as the logical outcome of the President's consistent policy.

M. Huysmans, who is a Belgian, said he saw salvation for the present and future in the President's idea of a universal system of democracies and a peace league of democracies, declaring that the introduction of democratic liberty in Germany and Austria would go far to solve the Polish problem, even if a united Poland at present was impracticable.

Meantime, M. Huysmans said, he thought that Emperor William's Easter message had hardly changed the situation in Germany, as it did not mention parliamentary reforms, making the Ministers responsible to the Reichstag, which was the principal thing to be desired.

According to M. Huysmans, all the Belgians deported into Germany have now been repatriated, except those who are staying there voluntarily. The reversal of the policy of deportations by the German authorities, M. Huysmans concluded, was due to an emphatic demand by Germans, working through unions, and by the majority and minority Socialist Parties, who wholly disapproved of the deportations.

PARIS, April 13.—The Socialist newspapers of France have cabled to President Wilson resolutions adopted by them welcoming his appeal to the spirit of independence against the spirit of autocratic domination and assuring him of their hearty support.

AMERICA TO OPERATE FRENCH AMBULANCES

Negotiations for Transfer of the Entire Service Said to be Progressing.

AS EVIDENCE OF HARMONY

British Work on West Front Also May Be Taken Over—Growth of the Red Cross.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—One of the movements undertaken in the direction of close harmony between the United States and its European allies in the conduct of the war contemplates the transfer of the entire ambulance service of the French army in the field to the control of the United States Government, probably in connection with the American Red Cross.

Officials were not inclined to go into details in discussing the matter to-day because the arrangement has not been completed. The impression was gathered that the proposal had been considered in a spirit of great cordiality and that it seemed certain to be accomplished.

It is believed that the project embraces the transfer of the entire French ambulance service to the United States for its operation and control. The American Ambulance Corps in France has made a record for efficiency, dash, and initiative, and it is supposed that the French Government is willing to intrust the ambulance service of its entire forces to American management. One of the main objects of the proposed transfer is to give the United States Government an official status in the theatre of hostilities and thus stimulate enthusiasm in both France and the United States.

It is understood that consideration is being given also to the question of transferring British ambulance corps on the western front to the United States, but this matter has not progressed so far as has the arrangement to transfer the French corps.

The War Department has been consulted with reference to the French transfer, and it is supposed from this that United States army surgeons will be sent to take charge of units of the American ambulance service on the Western front.

The American Red Cross announced today that since the declaration of a state of war between the United States and the German Government applications for membership in the Red Cross were being received at the National Headquarters here at the rate of 3,000 to 4,000 a day. Only a year ago the society had fewer than 50,000 members. It now has upward of 300,000.

Intense rivalries are springing up among the larger cities to outdo one another in enlisting Red Cross members. The organization in Cleveland, Ohio, telegraphed today its intention of becoming the largest Red Cross Chapter in the world as the result of the membership campaign just starting. The Red Cross Chapter in Pittsburgh announced that it was about to become the largest in the United States, the enrollment there having reached nearly 50,000. The supremacy of New York, with its 100,000 Red Cross membership, is not yet threatened by either Cleveland or Pittsburgh.

The most remarkable outpouring of volunteers for the Red Cross was in Bridgeport, Conn., where, between March 10 and 20, about 20,000 Red Cross members, or 14 per cent. of the population, were obtained. Ridgewood, N. J., with 7,000 population, got 2,000 Red Cross members in two weeks, the highest percentage in any American city. Another high record was made by Lewiston, Penn., 10,000 population, in which 1,000 Red Cross members were enrolled.

Through Mrs. Edward H. Binns of Pittsburgh the chapter in that city is prepared to furnish a convalescent hospital equipment at Wildwood, N. J.

SERBIAN PEOPLE RISE AGAINST BULGAR RULE

Insurgents Destroy Bridges and Railroads and Take to the Mountains.

LONDON, April 13.—An uprising of Serbians against the Bulgarians who are now occupying their country is reported in an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Athens.

As a result of pressure exerted by the Bulgarians, the Serbian population revolted and took to the hilly country. The insurgents divided into battalions and companies, and are engaged in destroying bridges, railways, and other means of communication.

The Bulgarian Government has dispatched troops to Nish to suppress the disorders, which are said to have reached grave proportions.

Although not generally known it has, nevertheless, been once officially announced that in Serbia there still remains a little army which for seventeen months has gallantly held its own against the superior bodies of Austrian and Bulgar troops sent against it.

Supply trains have been periodically wrecked on lines so widely separated as the Ushitze-Krushevatz and the Leskoyatz-Vrania, and small Austrian outposts have been surprised, and once, near Mitrovitza, an Austrian divisional staff was disarmed and deprived of its horses. Various detachments of Austrians and then of Bulgars were sent against them, but without coming in contact.

A French aviator who went north on a scouting survey from below Dorian last June reported that his machine having broken down he had descended upon a small plateau on the Shar Dagh and had suddenly been surrounded by hundreds of Serbian troops. They told him that they had retreated from Nish in November, 1915, and had tried to reach Montenegro, via Novi Bazar, but had been prevented by the presence of a large Austrian army at Amselfeld, or the Plain of the Blackbirds, and had then swung south into the mountains.

Here they had since remained, doing what they could to destroy the enemy's lines of communication. They were happy, well fed, had plenty of ammunition for their small army, but sorely needed cartridges for their mountain artillery, of which they had nine batteries.

$10,000,000 TO AID NEW YORK FARMERS

asked by Governor Whitman, if the money is made available, is composed as follows: Commissioner Wilson, A. R. Mann, Dean of the State College of Agriculture, Ithaca; M. C. Burritt, Director of Farm Bureaus, Ithaca; John H. Finley, State Commissioner of Education; J. J. Dillon, Commissioner of Foods and Markets, New York; S. J. Lowell, Master of the State Grange, Fredonia; Fred W. Sessions, President of the New York State Agricultural Society, Utica; R. D. Cooper, President of the Dairymen's League, Little Falls; S. J. Bush, President of the Western New York Horticultural Society, Morton.

One of the first steps planned by the committee is the finding of available labor. High school and college students, clubs, and other organizations from whose ranks farm labor may be enlisted will be canvassed in the effort. The labor problem is one of the most difficult to be solved. A canvass of available labor in towns and villages is expected to yield good results. The committee also will get in touch with farmers to find out their needs as to labor.

Another step announced by Commissioner Wilson is a census of seed. Seed will be located and farmers desiring it will be informed as to where it is obtainable and the price. The first meeting of the committee will be held in Ithaca next Monday morning.

The State Agricultural Society to-day adopted resolutions favoring the prohibition of the manufacture and sale of all intoxicants in the State during the war emergency in order to conserve grain products, the enactment of the Wicks Foods and Markets bill in its present form, and the creation of additional State Fair premiums to encourage poultry and egg production especially.

RUSSIAN SOCIALISTS DIDN'T SEE GERMANS

PARTY SUPPORTS CABINET

Only the Extremists Causing Trouble in Petrograd — Soldiers Threaten Workingmen.

PETROGRAD, April 13.—The Executive Committee of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Deputies, comprising representatives of all branches of the Socialist Party, has authorized the official news agency to say that neither the committee nor the leaders of the Socialist Party know anything of the reported negotiations at Copenhagen between Russian and German Socialists. The Russian Socialist Party has sent no delegates to any such conference.

COPENHAGEN, April 12, (via London, April 13.)—The German Socialist newspaper Vorwärts, according to Berlin dispatches, denies current reports of Socialist conferences abroad on the subject of peace. It asserts in particular that Philipp Scheidemann, the Socialist leader, has not left Berlin. The mention in these dispatches of Herr Scheidemann's presence in Copenhagen was based on the positive statement of a German Socialist publicist now here, who declared that Herr Scheidemann called upon him during his stay.

The mission of the Danish Socialist Juppe Borgbjerg to Petrograd on a similar errand appears to have encountered difficulties, a dispatch from Haparanda, Sweden, stating that Borgbjerg was not permitted to cross the frontier.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, April 13, (Dispatch to the London Morning Post).—With reference to the arrival of Scheidemann, the German Socialist member of the Reichstag in Stockholm, I wish to point out that Scheidemann must have been allowed by the German Foreign Office to undertake the journey, as every German, including even members of the Reichstag, has to mention the object of a voyage abroad before his passport is handed to him.

A Vienna dispatch says that last Wednesday Dr. Adler, Dr. Renner, and Herr Seitz, leaders of the Austrian Socialist Party, had a conference with Count Czernin which lasted about three hours. Immediately afterward these leaders left for Copenhagen via Berlin, where Scheidemann joined the party. I am informed that Scheidemann spent Easter in Stockholm, whence he returned to Berlin, and subsequently he went to Copenhagen accompanied by his Austrian friends.

SOCIALISTS BACK CABINET.

Only Extremists Causing Trouble—Soldiers Threaten Workmen.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, April 11, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.) — The publication of the Government statement of war aims has cleared the air. Feeling about the war is growing firm and definite at last. Nearly all the Socialist papers which a few days ago were obscuring the facts of the war by excited discussion of its ultimate aims have willingly accepted the Government statement as an expression of will and purpose of the Russian democracy.

They now appeal for a vigorous prosecution of the war, and declare the Government statement if supported by the western Democrats will throw the whole odium on the shoulders of the German Imperialists, and will rally to our side all waverers. One Social Democratic group takes a very energetic line against German militarism, and expresses warm sympathy with the democracies of England and France, while it demands tireless organization for victory under the lead of the Provisional Government.

The group of extreme Social Democrats continue to make trouble in their papers, the Pravda in Petrograd and the Social Democrat in Moscow and stop short at no misrepresentation of facts in the hope of maintaining disorder. Their reckless and unscrupulous attacks not only on the Government, but on every Socialist group except their own, has provoked a healthy reaction, and they are becoming isolated. Their wild advocacy of peace at any price is supported intentionally by purely German arguments, and they are not deterred by the fact that already several agents provocateurs have been discovered in their midst. Their leader, Lenin, a returned political refugee, even thought it necessary to make the ridiculous statement that the British and French Embassies at Petrograd started the revolution because they were afraid we would make a separate peace.

The agitation of these extremists has had a bad effect on the less intelligent workers, but against all labor disorders strong opposition has grown up among the soldiers. Yesterday, for instance, a delegation of the Tsarskoe Selo garrison appeared in one factory and demanded that the workers should immediately work full time, otherwise 75,000 bayonets would show them the reason why. The workers proceeded to work with great alacrity. The worst phase of the labor troubles seems to be over. A meeting of representatives of the whole Petrograd garrison has passed a strong resolution demanding unswerving support of the Provisional Government in the war to victory.

Altogether the new régime is hardening up, reason is gaining the upper hand, and the authority of the Provisional Government is steadily increasing.

Workmen's Deputies to Push War.

PETROGRAD, April 12, (via London, April 13.)—The Congress of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Deputies, after a two days' discussion, adopted by a vote of 325 to 55 a resolution which, while reasserting the determination of the Russian democracy to realize in the sphere of foreign politics the same principles of right and liberty proclaimed in the revolution and recognizing that the official renunciation by all Governments of any program of annexation would constitute a powerful means of bringing the war to an end on such conditions, agrees that as long as the conditions are unfulfilled and the war continues the Russian democracy recognizes that any disorganization in the army or weakening of its fighting capacity would deal a mortal blow to the cause of liberty and to the vital interests of the country. The Congress, therefore, appealed to all workmen to expend their hardest efforts in maintaining the supplies of the army.

The resolution was submitted to the Congress in a telegram sent by M. Bertelli, a member of the second Duma, who is on his way to Petrograd from exile.

Provisional Government, Through Foreign Minister Milakoff, Expresses Joy to President Wilson.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The White House today made public the following cablegram which President Wilson received on April 10 from Dr. Paul Milukoff, the Foreign Minister of the new Russian Government:

"Petrograd.

"His Excellency Mr. Woodrow Wilson,
"President of United States,
"Washington.

"In answer to your Excellency's message, I am happy in the name of the Provisional Government and of the Russian democracy, newly liberated from the oppression of centuries, to send our congratulations on account of your magnificent action in declaring state of war between United States and Germany. We all enthusiastically greet the momentous decision which brought the great democracy of the New World to the side of the justice of right of liberty of small nations against only remnants of theocratic and paternal autocracy and of aggressive militarism.

"We firmly believe that the cause we all fight for will win and that our victory over forces of the past will be accelerated by your active participation in the world's contest. Free Russia is particularly indebted to the United States for having promptly recognized the new order established in this country which brings our two democracies so much closer to each other. The Provisional Government has joyfully accepted it as a token of a concordant and steady collaboration for the work of war as well as for the work of peace.

"MILUKOFF."

Population Turns Out to Welcome Aged "Grandmother of Revolution" from Exile.

KERENSKI AT THE STATION

PETROGRAD, April 11, (via London, April 13.)—The arrival in Petrograd today of Mme. Catherine Breshkovskaya was the occasion of a dramatic gathering of veterans of the former revolutionary and terrorist times to give her an enthusiastic and emotional welcome.

All Petrograd, in fact, turned out to acclaim the "Grandmother of the Revolution" on her homecoming from Siberia, where she had spent forty-four of her seventy-three years in exile. A vast crowd, waving red flags and singing the "Marseillaise," extended down the west end of the Nevsky Prospect as far as the Nikolaievsk Railway Station.

When The Associated Press correspondent arrived he found the crowd trying to storm the station, to which were admitted only veteran Nihilists and a deputation from the Ministry of Justice, headed by Minister of Justice Kerenski, together with delegations of welcome from Petrograd, Moscow, and Dorpat Universities and high schools.

At the suggestion of M. Kerenski, the Reception Committee adopted a plan unique in Russian history for the welcoming of Mme. Breshkovskaya—a plan symbolizing Russia's transition from autocracy to democracy. The welcome took place in the gorgeous suite in the railway station called the Imperial Reception Rooms, which under the old régime were used only for the reception of royal personages. The large drawing room in this suite, which had been the scene of meetings of the world's most powerful monarchs, was now the gathering place of the world's most extreme democrats, republicans, and socialists. Around the room were scores of baskets and wreaths of flowers, the scarlet tulip predominating—a flower which bids fair to become the floral emblem of the New Russia. The flowers bore various inscriptions, such as "To Our Dear Grandmother," "To Russia's Martyr Heroine."

Among the revolutionary veterans the correspondent found Mme. Vera Figner, Mlle. Vera Zassulich, the former Duma member Pianuich, and Professor Nicholas Morosoff. Mme. Figner spent twenty years in jail, but was released some years ago through a whim of Nicholas II. after he had been pleased with the singing of her brother at a concert. Under her heavy fur cap she looked like the typical heroine of a Nihilist romance. Beside her stood Mlle. Zassulich, first among the most extreme women terrorists under Alexander II., who thirty-six years ago, then a slight, pretty girl of an aristocratic family, shot and dangerously wounded General Trepoff, the despotic Governor of Petrograd, in vengeance for his reputed torturing of political prisoners. By an irony of the revolution, General Trepoff's son, former Premier Trepoff, is today a prisoner in the Fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul.

Conversing with Mlle. Zassulich was M. Pianuich, who sat in the second Duma under Premier Stolypin and was sentenced to death on a trumped-up charge of conspiracy to murder Emperor Nicholas and was led through the streets of Petrograd in chains.

Also there was Professor Morosoff, a famous chemist and commentator of the Apocalypse, who was suspected of advising the conspirators who made the bomb that killed Alexander II. Professor Morosoff for twenty-three years never left his cell in the Schlusselburg Fortress. He was released after the revolution of 1905, but was again imprisoned a year later.

"Tell your people the revolution this time has achieved a final and irrevocable triumph," he said to the correspondent. "A new era has come, which will transfigure Russia and irradiate the whole world."

As the train arrived the crowd again attempted to storm the station, crying, "Let us see Grandmother." The militia quieted them, explaining the danger of a crush and assuring them they would all be allowed to participate in the welcome of Mme. Brushkovskaya, who was eager to see all her "grandchildren" and be seen by them.

LVOFF AT BATTLE FRONT.

Kronstadt Included in Petrograd Military District.

PETROGRAD, April 13.—M. Kerenski, Minister of Justice and a Socialist, has been presiding at the meetings of the Russian Cabinet during the absence of Premier Lvoff, who is visiting the battle front.

SHELL AUSTRIAN TROOPS.

Italians Bombard Calliano Station and Spring a Countermine.

ROME, April 13.—The War Office report to-day reads:

On the Trentino front yesterday the artillery was active between the Adige and San Pullegrino valleys. Our medium calibre batteries employed effective bursts of fire against the railway station of Calliano, where an unusual movement of trains was observed. On the Colbricon massif, in the upper Cismon valley, the enemy had been mining towards our advanced positions. Last night we exploded a countermine, which destroyed the enemy gallery. The edge of the crater was occupied by our troops and the position established.

On the Julian front artillery duels were reported in the Plava area, to the east of the Vertoibizza torrent and in the northern sector of the Carso. We repulsed minor hostile attacks in the vicinity of Della Tolmino, and against the position which we captured on April 7 north of Boscomalo.

This morning at dawn enemy aircraft dropped bombs on the pumping station at Codigoro. No damage was done.

APPEAL BY CARDINAL FOR RALLY TO FLAG

"Our Path of Duty Lies Clear Before Us," Farley Says in Letter.

WILL BE READ TOMORROW

"All That We Have and All That We Are," He Adds, Are at the Country's Service.

At all the masses in the Roman Catholic churches of the Archdiocese of New York tomorrow, a letter written by Cardinal Farley will be read, urging the parishioners to support President Wilson in the war against Germany. No sacrifice, the Cardinal says, is too great for the people to bear, and the path of duty lies clear before the citizens of the country. Here is the letter:

Cardinal's Residence,
452 Madison Avenue,
New York, April 12, 1917.

My Dear People: Our country is at war. The fateful hour has struck, fraught with momentous events. Solemn is the thought of it, and though reachless still the import of it, yet inexorable are its demands. Long and anxiously had we hoped that our land would not be drawn into the seething vortex which has engulfed so many of the nations of the world. Long and anxiously had we hoped that the lurid flames of war would not cast their baneful shadows upon our shores. Our Government withheld no effort to avert the peril, while our President employed the whole ascendency of his great intellect and character and of his high position for the prevalence of the ideals of a true, genuine Americanism.

But what was so ardently and so wholeheartedly desired was not to be. Our country had to take up the arms that were forced into her hands, had no choice but to grasp and wield the weapon wherewith to defend her honor, to vindicate the right and the justice of her cause, and to insure a triumph that will be the victory of civilization and humanity.

In this solemn hour, then, when her fortunes are at stake, when all that she has stood for, and stands for, is jeopardized by the hazard of impending warfare, will not her sons harken to her call, will they not buckle on the armor of the conflict and, rushing to her rescue, lift high her glorious banner of liberty and justice? Our President having spoken, and our national Representatives having spoken, the response to the voice of the authority they embody will be that we will rally around our flag with the completest fullness of devotion, and with loyalist hearts and sturdiest arms place all that we have, and all that we are, at our country's service.

We will not shrink then from any sacrifice in her behalf. We will render to her what our Catholic faith and our Catholic teaching sanctions; nay, sanctifies. No demand on our American manhood or American citizenship will go unanswered or will not find us true Americans, true children of our Church, that never was found wanting in any crisis of American history. We will do, in a word, what our fathers have ever done in this loved Republic of ours from the time it was set up among the nations, and at every time that a hostile hand was lifted against her in the sweep of her beneficent, glorious career among the peoples of the world. Our path of duty lies clear before us. May the blessing of Almighty God enable us to walk in it steadfastly and unwaveringly to the end.

Very faithfully yours in Xto.,
JOHN CARDINAL FARLEY,
Archbishop of New York.

TELLS HOW AMERICA CAN BEST AID FRANCE

Andre Tardieu Advises Experts Be Sent Here to Oversee Airplane Work.

TRAINED WORKMEN WANTED

Organization of the Various Allies' Needs Urged to Avoid Conflict in Demands.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 13.—André Tardieu, a Deputy who is an important though unofficial factor in politics, especially since the Cabinet changed, today expressed the opinion that the allied Governments should forthwith draw up a program of their needs so that the United States can immediately prepare to organize the assistance she can give them according to their several needs.

"American assistance," M. Tardieu said, "must take the form of financial and industrial aid, transport facilities and troops for the European theatre of war. As regards an expeditionary force of half a million, some seem to think this may arrive too late to be useful, but who is able to fix the date of peace or say whether such a contingent may not be of inestimable use even two years hence? Regarding material aid, it is doubtless in the field of aviation that this can most quickly materialize, but for this it is necessary for French aviation experts to cross the Atlantic and get in touch with American constructors in order to regulate certain essential details in the construction of airplanes that American products may in every respect respond to French needs, which so far has not always been the case. Secondly, it is essential that all American factories which are able to construct aviation material be immediately put to work.

"For France it is necessary to know at once how many of such plants are available and exactly what can be expected from them—in other words, an inventory must be established in this sense. If the sending to America of a certain number of French technical experts for the moment results in decreased output here, this would be amply compensated for if in a few months hence the combined output could be increased five or ten fold. This is only a question of calculation.

"The same system should be adopted concerning other forms of material needed, such as artillery, automobiles, rolling stock and rails. In all cases the needs of the moment should not be considered exclusively, but everything should be organized in view of a long sustained effort. America can also very shortly send over contingents of trained workmen both for the army zones and the interior and for reconstruction work, which we urgently need. For this, categories of work needed should be submitted to the United States. America also will soon be able to send fully equipped air squadrons, gun batteries with American gunners, automobile convoys and railroad builders.

"It is only by organizing our demands that we shall be able quickly to have them satisfied. Otherwise it is likely that isolated demands of various Governments will run counter to one another."

AVIATION SCHOOL OFFERED.

Two Americans Would Have Compatriots in England Trained.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—A site, equipment, and operating funds for an aviation school to train Americans living in England, were offered to the Government today by Barclay H. Warburton of Philadelphia, representing himself and Henry W. Rudd of New York, who is now in London. The grounds are part of Mr. Rudd's estate at Dingfield, just outside of London, and within half a mile of one of the Royal Flying Corps' quarters.

Mr. Warburton told War Department officials that the school would be maintained without cost to the United States until such time as the Government was ready to take it over. He said later that the department had approved of the plan in principle. The plan is designed to give the Americans in England an early chance for active service at the front by quickly developing efficient air squadrons. The Military Attaché of the American Embassy in London would handle applications for membership.

It is hoped that General Sir David Henderson, head of the Royal Training Corps of Great Britain, will detail officers who have seen active service as instructors for the Americans, though it is proposed to have the school itself, as well as such squadrons as are sent to the battle fronts, commanded by officers of the regular branch of the United States Signal Corps. Mr. Warburton probably will serve as a reserve officer.

1,500 COLLEGE MEN DRILL.

Corps Divided Into Sections for Intensive Training.

More than 1,500 men are now enrolled in the College Men's Training Corps, which held its second drill at the Ninth Coast Artillery Armory last night. Langdon P. Marvin, Chairman of the Executive Board, outlined to the members the course of training to be followed.

Beginning on April 16 the organization will be divided for drill into two sections. One will leave by the 4:15 ferry for Governors Island on Monday and Thursday afternoons. The other will drill on Wednesday and Friday nights, beginning April 20, at the Ninth Coast Artillery Armory. Lectures will be given each Tuesday night at 8 o'clock by Captain Ralph M. Parker at the Stuyvesant High School, First Avenue and Fifteenth Street.

American Cars for Russia.

PETROGRAD, April 13, (via London.)—The Russian Provisional Government has decided to place a contract in the United States for 40,000 railway cars and 2,000 locomotives, to be delivered by July, 1918.

CARRANZA TO PICK CABINET.

Issues Decree for Reorganization Under New Constitution.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, April 13.—General Carranza issued a decree tonight reorganizing the Cabinet. According to the new Constitution, the Cabinet will be made up of the following portfolios: State, Finance and Public Credit, Communication and Public Works, War and Marine, Fomento, and Commerce and Industry. Besides the portfolios there will be three departments, Judicial, University and Fine Arts, and Public Health.

The most probable appointments in the new Cabinet are: State, Luis Cabrera; Finance, Rafael Nieto; Communication, General Salvador Alvarado, now Governor of Yucatan; War, Pablo Gonzales; Fomento, Anternor Sala, a large landowner and expert in the Mexican land problem; Commerce, Alberto Pani. Heads of the departments probably will be: University and Fine Arts, José Macias; Judicial, Roque Estrada; Public Health, Dr. José Maria Rodriguez. The Interior Ministry will be abolished, as well as the Public Instruction and Justice portfolio. The State Department will have charge of business formerly transacted by the Interior Department. The new Cabinet will be inducted into office in May when Carranza takes oath as Constitutional President.

MEXICAN OIL OPEN TO ALL.

Pani Denies Restrictions Will Be Placed on Exports.

MEXICO CITY, April 13.—Official notification was given tonight by Alberto J. Pani, Minister of Commerce and Industry, that no restrictions would be placed on the export of Mexican oil from the Tampico fields.

The statement of the Minister is generally taken here to indicate that Mexico will maintain neutrality in the present crisis.

The statement says oil products may continue to be exported by all foreign purchasers, regardless of their nationality or the purposes for which the oil is to be used.

Assurance is given in the statement that the Aguilar Company, controlled by Lord Cowdray, and the Dutch Shelle Company, which have been large purveyors to the British Navy, will be unmolested as long as they obey the regulations of the Mexican Goverment. The same rule will apply to all foreign countries, including the United States.

BRITISH CURB FOR MEXICO.

English Owners Might Seize Railroad of Tehuantepec.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Proper measures would be taken by Great Britain, it was intimated here today, if the Mexican Government should seize the national railroad of Tehuantepec and restrict its use to military movements. Authentic reports have stated that the Mexican Government, in line with its policy of showing particular favor to Germans in that country and to Germany itself, contemplates embarrassing the British ownership of the road.

The effective reply of the British, it was hinted, would be to take possession of the property forcibly if the rights of the British ownership were disregarded. British capital owns 49 per cent. of the stock, and practically all the bonds are held by the Mexican Government, which also retains control of 51 per cent. of the stock. The road formerly was one of the most prosperous in Latin America, being 150 miles in length, across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec and connecting the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans.

There have been hints that German agents were making use of the Tehuantepec Railroad, and that over this line supplies had been shipped by them for the establishment of a submarine base in American waters off the western shores. One suggestion, which has been ridiculed by officials, was that Germany, by the use of the Tehuantepec Railroad, had shipped parts of a submarine across Tehuantepec and that it had been assembled and launched in the Pacific.

GERMANS BUSY IN MEXICO?

Our Military Attache Goes to Tampico to Investigate Reports.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, April 13.—Major Frank McCoy, military attache of the American Embassy, departed for Vera Cruz this morning to investigate alleged German activities against Americans at Vera Cruz and Tampico.

TO BRING MEN FROM FRONT.

Americans Needed as Officers Must Be Restored to Citizenship.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Legislative action will be necessary before the War Department can bring back from Europe the Americans who are fighting in the British and French armies to assist in the training of the citizen army of 500,000 men, which the Administration intends to create.

It is understood that both England and France are willing for a considerable number of these Americans to be called home for this purpose, but without authorization from Congress they would be held under present laws to be aliens, the assumption being that they renounced their American citizenship when they entered the army of a belligerent which was fighting a country with which the United States was at peace. It was learned that high officials of the Government favor the passage of an act by Congress restoring such Americans to the full rights of citizenship.

It was believed that the passage of such an act would enable the United States to obtain for the training of the new army a thousand or more hardened soldiers, who would make capable officers and could impart to the training something of the spirit of the Entente forces fighting in Europe.

Wants All to be Vigilantes.

Supreme Court Justice Samuel Greenbaum, in a report to the National Defense Committee of the Manhattan Club yesterday, urged that every American citizen throughout the country become a self-constituted member of the national body of "Vigilantes," whose duty it will be to call attention of public officials to any suspicious persons and acts apparently hostile to American interests.

RAISE AGE LIMIT FOR THE NEW ARMY

House Committee Virtually Agrees to Call on Men from 21 to 40 Years.

DRAFT PLAN IS FAVORED

But the President Would Have Wide Discretion in Granting Exemptions.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The House Committee on Military Affairs, it was said today, had virtually agreed upon the Army Conscription bill, although not in the form in which it was proposed by the Administration. The committee bill, it is reported, will be more in conformity with the ideas of the rank and file of army officers than the views of the President, Secretary Baker and the General Staff.

The chief modification affects the age restrictions. The Administration bill contemplated a selective draft of young unmarried men between the ages of 19 and 25. The committee measure fixes the ages between 21 and 40 years and authorizes the President to make whatever exemptions he deems proper and necessary.

Wide authority is given the President, it is said, to exempt from military service those employed in the production of the necessities of life or in the production of war munitions. No provision is made in the committee bill as now framed for voluntary enlistment. The announcement of the War Department yesterday that under existing law about 500,000 men would have a chance to volunteer to fill in the gaps in the regular army and National Guard is said to have satisfied the committee in this regard.

In raising and extending the age limitations the committee is said to have been actuated by the desire to avoid the charge that Congress was providing for an army of boys instead of matured men. This view is said to meet with the approval of many army officers, including at least some members of the General Staff. Satisfaction was expressed by military men when they were told today of the form the tentative draft of the House bill had taken.

If the committee recommends conscription, and it is understood that this is now almost the unanimous sentiment, passage of the bill through the House is assured, although not without heated debate. Many members have amendments which they will attempt to tack on the bill irrespective of the form in which it comes from the committee.

Representative Cary of Wisconsin, who has a large German-American constituency, announced to-day that he would urge an amendment which would require the War Department to select the first recruits from "among such male citizens of the proper military age who are officers or members of the New York Stock Exchange or of any similar body, or who are officials in banks, lawyers, magazine editors and other citizens engaged in non-productive pursuits."

The Cary amendment assumes that all available labor will be needed on the farm and in the workshops and that business and professional men can best be spard for military duty. It is not likely that the House will give heed, however, to any amendment that seeks to restrict enlistment to particular classes. The bill as finally accepted is certain to leave a broad field from which to select.

CLERGY DECRY PACIFIST.

Methodists Pledge Life, Fortune, and Honor to President.

The New York East Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, at yesterday's session in St. Mark's Church, Ocean Avenue and Beverley Road, Brooklyn, adopted a resolution pledging the "lives, fortunes, and sacred honor" of the members to President Wilson. The resolution was written by Professor W. N. Rice of Wesleyan University.

While the resolution was being read, the Rev. E. E. Weise of Bridgeport, Conn., arose and attempted to read a pacifist paper. Although cried down by members of the conference, Dr. Weise shouted loud enough to be heard above the noise:

"I can't lose my soul. If I have to chose between my country and my God, I have made up my mind to chose my God. I am an American, but I am a Christian first."

Dr. David G. Downey read a letter from Colonel Roosevelt to the members of the conference commending them for their loyalty to the country.

King to Attend Service for America.

LONDON, April 13.—King George and Queen Mary will attend the services to be held in St. Paul's Cathedral in commemoration of the entrance of the United States into the war. The time for this ceremonial has been fixed as 11:30 A. M., on April 20. It is understood that the King and Queen expressed a special desire to be present.

ADVISE GROWING OF STAPLES

Fertilizer Men Warn of Waste in Perishable Crops.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 13.—The Soil Improvemen Committee of the National Fertilizer Association, in conference here today, accepted an invitation from the Boston Chamber of Commerce to co-operate in a vigorous campaign for greater food production in New England. It was explained that in the event of a general shortage New England probably would be the first to suffer, owing to its relatively large suburban population and its remoteness from large grain-producing centres.

A comprehensive campaign for greater production has been mapped out, it was said at the conference. Special emphasis is being placed upon the need of growing staples of high food value rather than green and perishable vegetables and fruits. Farmers are being urged to raise beans and peas, since they have a high food and market value and can be dried and saved, which is an important consideration in view of a probable shortage of tin cans.

Other suggestions are that corn be carefully tested before planting to insure maximum yields; that buckwheat be planted on thin lands usually considered too poor to cultivate profitably and that such crops as turnips, beets, cabbage, carrots and squashes be planted on lands which for any reason may have been left undeveloped after the usual Spring season ends.

CALLS IDLE BOYS IN CITIES.

Pennsylvania Official Urges State to Help Increase Crops.

HARRISBURG, Penn., April 13.—An urgent call for increased production of foodstuffs in Pennsylvania was issued today by Charles E. Patton, State Secretary of Agriculture. Mr. Patton, who returned yesterday from the conference of agricultural chiefs at St. Louis, said that Pennsylvania's part in the emergency call for greater production of crops is to raise oats, corn, barley, buckwheat, potatoes, and navy beans.

"It is very important," Mr. Patton said, "that the farmer devote his principal efforts to the production of such crops and the employment of such methods as are well established in his community and as are likely to yield the maximum return in food and clothing material. For this reason I urge the co-operation of the press, the banks, the commercial organizations, the religious and social societies.

"Our plan for public defense must include provisions for mobilizing farm labor. There are hundreds of thousands of boys in the cities and towns between the ages of 15 and 19 years not engaged in productive work who should be available in this emergency. One of the plans worked out at St. Louis was for the enlistment for agricultural purposes of three distinct classes of labor—men beyond the military age, men of military age but not accepted for active military duty, and boys under age for enlistment.

"All communities should take immediate steps for district self-support, and no community should be without an ample supply of canned and preserved perishable products."

PLEADS FOR MORE CROPS.

West Virginia's Governor Urges Farmers to Greater Effort.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 13.—Governor John J. Cornwell today appealed to every family in the State to do its part in preventing a food shortage on account of the war.

"No one can tell how long the war will last or how long it will affect the supply of food for the people of this nation," Governor Cornwell said. "We know that each month of war will mean further shortage, and this in turn will mean higher prices. West Virginia is not doing her part. I feel it my bounden duty in view of the emergency to appeal to every family in West Virginia to do its part. Let the farmers both increase their acreage and improve their methods in every way possible.

"Let the boys and girls in the cities, towns and villages begin at once to establish gardens on all vacant lots and in back yards. Let our motto be, 'I am able and willing to produce enough for myself and one soldier at the front.'"

PLEDGES OREGON'S AID.

Governor Suggests the Conservation of Stock for Breeding.

SALEM, Ore., April 13.—Governor James Withycombe has written to President Wilson pledging Oregon's resources to the nation and suggesting immediate steps toward conservation of breeding stock.

"As Executive of a State essentially agricultural," Governor Withycombe wrote, "I believe it would be extremely advisable to issue an organized appeal to farmers urging them to keep their female breeding stock and to withhold from sale their veal calves and young marketable animals."

Such conservation was necessary, the Governor said, not only to meet America's food problems, but to help build up Europe's depleted stock. The co-operation of meat packers, purchasers, and distributers, he said, should be enlisted.

CALLS ON PACIFISTS TO FORM WAR LEAGUE

Rabbi Silverman Urges Emergency Federation to Transform at Once.

WILL MARRY NO SLACKERS

Brands as "Bordering on Treason" Conduct of Men Who Hide Behind Women's Skirts.

Preaching on "The Kind of Patriotism That America Needs," at services yesterday in Temple Emanu-El commemorating the last day of the Passover, Dr. Joseph Silverman called on the Emergency Peace Federation to disband at once or to reorganize as an emergency league for war; branded neutrality and pacifism as akin to treason in the present crisis, and, in a vigorous demand for a patriotic response to the needs of the nation, no matter at what personal cost, pledged himself, with the hope that other ministers would join him, not to perform the marriage ceremony for any couple open to the suspicion that they sought to enter matrimony as a means for the man to escape military service for the United States.

Dr. Silverman spoke in response to the appeal of the Recruiting Committee of the Mayor's Committee on National Defense for the support of the clergy in making April 19, the anniversary of the Battle of Lexington, "Wake Up America" day throughout the country. He took as a text Jeremiah, xxix., 7: "Seek the welfare of the city whither I have banished you and pray in its behalf unto the Lord, for in its welfare shall ye fare well." The prophet, he said, had appreciated that the nationality of Israel was at an end, perhaps for all time, but had realized that its mission was not political but spiritual and did not depend for its success on nationality. From that day to this, he said, the principle of seeking the welfare of the country of their adoption had been supreme among Israelites.

"The world conflict," said Dr. Silverman, "into which America has been forced by the deplorable but inevitable conflict between organized monarchies and organized democracies, calls not for ordinary patriotism, but rather for the extraordinary patriotism made imperative by the conditions of the battle. Until now neutrality was a meritorious virtue. Pacifism was borne with patience. The time has come when neutrality and pacifism are no longer virtues, but border on treason.

"There is no call for an Emergency Peace Federation, but rather for a league to aid war, and I, for one, believing there are thousands who agree with me, call now on the federation to disband or to reorganize itself at once into a league for war.

"Because you have not yet heard the cannon's blast at your door, do not feel secure. At any moment the bombs may burst in the air overhead and drop destruction down upon your cities and homes. The submarine stiletto has been summoned from Europe and is now forging its way through the waters to stab our ships in their most vital spots. We are in a great universal holocaust, in which all sense of right, humanity, and law has been lost.

"This is a war for civilization and for world peace. It calls for the highest patriotism, a consecration of all citizens on the altar of humanity's needs. We are going forth in a holy crusade to resurrect the rights of humanity, which have been buried deep beneath the feet of tyranny. In such a time as this we need extraordinary patriotism. Not only must the soldier be fitted for his duties, but the country must be taught heroism. Are we a nation of heroes today? That remains to be seen. Can we echo the spirit of 1776, 'Give me liberty or give me death'? That was not a mere peroration of perfervid oratory, but the outburst of passion born of the conviction that liberty was an inalienable right."

Dr. Silverman referred to the Revolutionary heroes, and asked if America in these days could be untrue to their memory. He told of the purpose of the Mayor's Committee in setting aside "Wake Up America" day and, with a burst of feeling, exclaimed:

"The call will go forth, 'Awake, America! Rouse ye to arms. The enemy is at your door!'"

The call for half a million men should be answered by two millions, Dr. Silverman said. Parents should emulate the Spartan mother and urge their children to do their duty.

"We have had a sad and sorry and piteous spectacle of cowardice," he continued, "when young men have gone in haste to the Marriage Bureau and have taken advantage of a technicality, in a way that borders on treason, to escape the service they should perform. I for one will not be a party to such treasonable conduct, and I hope the ministers of the country will join me in refusing to perform the marriage ceremony for couples who are under suspicion of entering matrimony that the man may escape military service."

Dr. Silverman said he hoped the women of the country would have the heroism to refuse to wed such cowards. In conclusion, he asserted that the country needed not only physical preparedness but mental and moral preparedness, for "you cannot have heroism without morality." He admonished his hearers to do their part for an undivided country, in which there could be no race or class distinction.

PAY TRIBUTES TO THE FLAG.

Special Ceremonies Mark the Display of the National Emblem.

While the Letter Carriers' Band played "The Star-Spangled Banner" in the downtown Post Office yesterday morning the carriers hung a flag twenty-six feet long by fifteen feet wide, which they had bought, on the wall of the sorting room. Postmaster Patten and other officials made patriotic addresses.

More than 1,000 employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad paraded through the principal streets of Greenville, N. J., yesterday afternoon and halted in the Pennsylvania freight yards, where a flag, twelve by twenty feet, was unfurled from the top of the pole. A detail of New Jersey militiamen fired a salute. Mayor Mark Fagan of Jersey City, M. D. Downs, foreman of the car shops, and others spoke.

A large American flag, purchased by the office force of the Ontario & Western Railroad, was raised to the ceiling of the offices of that road in the Grand Central Terminal yesterday, while a bugler of the Forty-seventh Regiment sounded "The Colors." President J. B. Kerr of the railroad in an address said that railroad men gave essential service in case of war, and that the Government would probably consider it best for them to stay in their present jobs.

A big American flag purchased by popular subscription will be swung across Broad Street from the Exchange Building to the Johnson Building at noon to-day. Mayor Mitchel and Collector Dudley Field Malone are expected to speak.

LYONS PAYS TRIBUTE TO US.

Chamber of Commerce Organises Manifestation for Our Consul.

LYONS, France, April 13.—The Chamber of Commerce of Lyons, desiring to show its sympathy and that of the city for the United States, organized a manifestation in honor of John E. Jones, the American Consul. Among those present were Mayor Herriot and all the consus of the Entente countries. Ennemond Morel, Vice President of the Chamber, spoke in behalf of the Chamber of Commerce.

Consul Jones said that he had offered his services as a volunteer when diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany were broken, and that he was now waiting anxiously for an opportunity to fight in the defense of civilization. His speech caused enthusiasm among his auditors.

SUSPENDS PARLIAMENT.

Hungary's Legislature Ended as the Result of Disorders.

LONDON, April 13.—According to a telegram from Budapest, the sittings of the Hungarian Parliament were suspended by imperial order, following stormy demands of the Opposition Deputies for the instant introduction of a bill for direct suffrage, the Exchange Telegraph correspondent at Copenhagen wires.

Joffre Gets His Baton.

PARIS, April 13.—President Poincaré this afternoon presented a Marshal's baton to General Joffre, former Commander of the French forces.

The President signed a decree creating General Joffre Marshal of France last December.

THAYER HELD FOR TRESPASS

American Is Accused of Invading Japanese Wireless Station.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The text of the formal charge against R. A. Thayer, an American, preferred by the Japanese authorities after a preliminary examination of Thayer, which occupied six weeks, during which time he was closely confined, reached Washington today. Thayer has been admitted to bail pending trial on the charge of espionage. The formal charge against him follows:

The preliminary examination of R. A. Thayer, aged 29, a teacher of English at the Rikkyo College, whose domicile is 766 Elizabeth Street, in the city of Utica, New York State, U. S. A., and whose present place of residence is in the compound of the Rikkyo College, 53 Akashi-cho, Kyobash-i-ku, Tokyo, in connection with the criminal case in which he is charged with violation of the law for the protection of military secrets, has been concluded and the following decision has been reached:

The present case shall be committed to the Yokohama Chiho Saibansho for public trial.

Reasons.—On Jan. 17, 1917, at about 5 P. M., the accused trespassed into the compound of the Yokohama Naval Wireless Telegraph Station, erected for purposes of national defense at Kusugayama, in the city of Yokosuka, without obtaining the necessary permission.

The above-mentioned act, of which there is sufficient evidence, is considered an offense coming within the provisions of Article 5, and Clause 1 of Article 4 of the law for the Protection of Military Secrets, and Article 19 and Article 20 of the Criminal Code, and therefore the decision mentioned is reached in accordance with Clause 1 of Article 167 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

BRITON A SUBSTITUTE GUARD

Does Patrol Duty in Boston After Militiaman Collapses.

BOSTON, April 13.—A sailor of the British Navy maintained a part of the waterfront patrol here today, bearing the rifle of a National Guardsman who had collapsed on his post.

The bluejacket, a member of the gun crew of a steamship which was tied up in port, found the guardsman on the wharf where he had fainted. Taking him into a nearby shanty, the sailor telephoned for a doctor, then shouldered the guardsman's rifle, and for nearly an hour kept the post in a drizzle of rain, until a Corporal who encountered him arranged for relief.

Broad Street Hospital for War Use.

The Board of Governors of Broad Street Hospital has offered the new building of the institution, in course of erection at 129 Broad Street, to the Federal Government for use during the war. The offer includes the services of a medical and surgical staff. Barber & Co. have made an additional contribution of $50,000 to the hospital. Mrs. Herbert Barber has contributed $10,000 and Mrs. James Barber has presented a motor ambulance. A fund of $200,000 is to be raised to equip the building and make some changes in the original plans.

LABOR MEN WITH BALFOUR

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor and member of the Advisory Commission of the Council of National Defense, received a cablegram today from Premier Lloyd George of England accepting his suggestion that two representatives of English labor be included in the Balfour Commission. Mr. Gompers cabled Mr. Lloyd George yesterday asking that this be done. The cablegram from the British Premier reads as follows:

Samuel Gompers, Washington.

Delighted to comply with your request. Two labor leaders and representatives of Welfare Department of Ministry of Munitions will leave for America as soon as possible. LLOYD GEORGE.

On March 21 Mr. Gompers sent a cablegram to M. Nstcheidge, member of the Russian Duma, congratulating the Russian people upon their newly achieved liberty, and extending in the name of international labor a welcome in the triumph of freedom and the downfall of despotism throughout the world. Information reached Mr. Gompers that the cablegram was either not received or if received, not made public in Russia. He then sent another cablegram, but to insure its receipt and delivery it was transmitted to Ambassador Francis at Petrograd. The cablegram is as follows:

Nstcheidge, Petrograd, Representative of Working People of Russia:

Accept this message to the men of labor of Russia: We send greeting. The newly established liberty of Russia finds a warm response in the hearts of America's workers. We rejoice at the intelligence, courage and the conviction of a people who even while concentrating every effort upon defense against foreign aggression have reorganized their own institutions upon principles of freedom and democracy. But it is impossible to achieve the ideal state immediately. When the right foundation has been established the masses can daily utilize opportunities for progress, more complete justice, and greater liberty. Freedom is achieved in meeting the problems of life and work. It cannot be established by revolution only—it is the product of evolution. Even in the Republic of the United States of America the highest ideals of freedom are incomplete—but we have the will and the opportunity. In the name of America's workers whose watchwords are Justice, Freedom, and Humanity we plead that Russia's workers and masses shall maintain what you have already achieved and to practically and rationally solve the problems of today and to safeguard the future from the reactionary forces who would gladly take advantage of your lack of unity to re-establish the old régime of royalty, reaction, tyranny, and injustice. Our best wishes are with Russia in her new opportunity. SAMUEL GOMPERS, President, American Federation of Labor.

Mr. Nstcheidge is a representative of the workers, and is a member of the committee that selected the present Ministry.

A cablegram from Ambassador Francis to the State Department reads as follows:

"Gompers's cable delivered to Nstcheidge, Milukoff and given to the press. Think it excellent and will have good effect."

What the West Thinks

Western People in New York

will find in the Business Section of the Public Ledger a daily letter from C. B. Evans, formerly Editor of the Financial Economist, showing what the West thinks. GERMANIC CITIZENS OFFER TO AID IN WAR

Hope to Establish Confidence, Good-Will, and Respect for Authority in This City.

A committee of prominent New Yorkers of German birth or descent called upon Mayor Mitchel at the City Hall yesterday to offer their services in the name of the German-Americans of the city. Hubert Cillis, President of the Germania Life Insurance Company, was spokesman. He said the German-Americans wanted to do everything in their power to help the country and the city, and suggested that an organization be formed which would be at the call of the Mayor at any time.

"In your recent proclamation," said Mr. Cillis to the Mayor, "you enjoin New York citizens, one and all, to 'aid in the preservation of order and in the exercise of calm and deliberate judgment in this time of stress and tension.' We feel that we are especially in a position to give you the aid you ask for, and it is our earnest and sincere desire, as loyal citizens of the United States, to co-operate in every way possible to preserve normal conditions.

"One way is to allay by our counsel the anxiety of the doubtful and misinformed; another way is to relieve want and discontent by furnishing assistance and procuring employment for those without work.

"Our only thought is to do whatever lies in our power for our country and our city. We have the confidence of American citizens of German birth, and through them, of the German subjects now in this country; and if honored with your confidence we shall be able to foster a spirit of confidence in and devotion to responsible public authorities, thus insuring thorough co-operation with the City Government on the part of citizens of German blood, which would be of inestimable benefit to our city and an example to other communities."

In reply the Mayor said he appreciated the spirit of good citizenship and of loyalty which prompted the offer, and that he gladly accepted it on behalf of the city.

"I think that you will all recollect that immediately following the breach of our diplomatic relations with Germany," he said, "I took occasion to declare that the city had no doubt of the unswerving loyalty of her citizens of German blood, and that the thing that we had to provide against was misunderstanding and misinterpretation, and that every citizen was entitled to the presumption of unswerving loyalty.

"I have all along known that we could count on the co-operation of our German citizens, and this is only further evidence of the fact. I regard it as a fine thing that you should come to me today and make this statement and this proffer of help. I accept it gladly and I thank you with all my heart."

In answer to a question by Chairman Cillis, the Mayor said the committee might consider itself appointed by him and he approved a proposal to increase the membership to 200. Among members of the committee were: Dr. Louis Haupt, Julius Holz, Alphonse Koelble, August Heckscher, William Knauth, Dr. Hugo Lieber, Paul Lichtenstein, Julius P. Meyer, Carl Neuhoff, Bernard H. Ridder, Colonel Jacob Ruppert, Dr. Gustave Scholer, Carl L. Schurz, Oscar Seitz, Dr. Hugo Schweitzer, Otto Von Schrenk, and Victor F. Ridder.

AMERICAN PATENTS SAFE IN GERMANY

Kaiser's Subjects Stand to Lose Heavily Through Any Policy of Confiscation.

WAR MAY GIVE DYE SECRETS

United States Expected to Follow Allies in Opening German Processes Under Royalty.

Albert E. Parker of the law firm of Marks & Clerk, 220 Broadway, said yesterday that Americans had no reason to fear that Germany would cancel German patents of American inventors. Mr. Parker pointed out that Germany has not confiscated the patents of the inventors of any nation with which she is at war, except those of Russia, which country made the first move by canceling patents held by Germans. Germany has little to gain and much to lose by setting an example of confiscating patents, he said, because the laws of this country enable Germans to refuse to allow their inventions to be produced here, while American patentees cannot prevent their inventions being put out in Germany.

For instance, Germans have patented hundreds of processes for manufacturing dyes and drugs in this country, but do not generally permit the use of these processes in this country, while Americans cannot forbid the use of their German patents, if Germans obtain licenses from the German Government and pay royalties. It is against the interests of Germany to have the status of patents impaired, Mr. Parker said, because of the great value and number of patents held by Germans in other countries.

Vast benefits will be gained by American manufacturers, Mr. Parker said, if the United States should follow the example of Great Britain, France, and other Ally countries in putting German patents at the disposal of Americans by legislation requiring the payment of fair royalties to German patentees at the end of the war.

"The Allies, particularly Great Britain, have gained advantage over the United States in developing dye and other industries which before the war were largely in Germany's hands," he said.

"Being at peace with Germany, the United States has been obliged to respect patents held by Germans. England, however, soon after the war began, extended her licensing system so that English manufacturers could use German patents and deposit the royalties with a patent clearing house.

"England, therefore, has used patented German processes for making dyes and other products, while those processes were not available in America. It is probable that the United States will take similar steps.

"Licensing of German patents to British manufacturers will continue after the war, under the announced policy of the British Government. To encourage British manufacturers to produce things formerly obtained from Germany, it was necessary to safeguard capital invested, and the British licensees were assured that they should use German patents on a royalty basis for the life of the patent.

"America's entrance into the war gives this country an opportunity to become a partner of the Allies in the commercial war which may follow the conflict. At the conference of the Allies to insure close commercial co-operation after the war, it was provided that they should adopt uniform patent laws, favoring each other at the expense of other belligerents and neutrals.

"While the United States may not enter such an arrangement on the same terms as the other allies, it is pretty sure that this agreement will not be used to injure the interests of the United States.

"To show how little Germany should incline to disturb the international status of patents, it is sufficient to point to the British records, which show that the Krupps in 1915 made thirty-eight applications for patents, all for military and naval inventions. These applications included distant-controlling apparatus for torpedoes, gun carriages, parachutes, wire-cutting machines, optical apparatus, electrical devices, ordnance sights, gun sights, projectile-timing apparatus, and new types of ordnance.

"It is probable that no German military invention was thus revealed to England through application for patent unless it was known that the English had already obtained the secret. In 1916, however, Krupp's applications suddenly dropped to two, as if there had been a sharp move for greater strictness in keeping German military secrets."

Mr. Parker represents the international patent law firm of Marks & Clerk, whose English heads are Sir G. Croydon Marks, M. P., Director of Recruiting for Munitions Factories, and Dugald Clerk, Director of Engineering to the Admiralty and President of the Royal Society.

GERMAN PROPERTY IN WAR.

Their Real Estate Rights Are Explained by Walter Lindner.

Walter Lindner, Solicitor of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company and in charge of its Law Department, gave his views yesterday on the effect of the declaration of war against the German Empire on real estate interests of Germans in this country.

"Section 10 of the Real Property law," he said, "empowers alien friends to take, hold, transmit and dispose of real property within this State in the same manner as native born citizens, and provides that their heirs and devisees take in the same manner as citizens. From this, it follows that aliens who took title before the declaration of the state of war took and still hold title to their property, subject to the possibility that it may be forfeited by the State. If the property be not thus forfeited, then under Section 15 of the Real Property law, the title and interests which such alien enemies covey to or create in citizens or alien friends cannot be questioned or impeached by reason of the alienage of any person through whom such title or interest may have been derived.

"On the other hand, it must be recognized that alien enemies cannot take, hold, devise or transmit title to real property, nor take by devise or inheritance. Therefore, in case of death of the holder of title to real property on or after April 6, 1917, devisees, or the persons who would answer to the description of heirs of an alien enemy cannot take title from him by descent or devise, nor can alien enemies receive title by descent or devise from citizens or alien friends."

WATTERSON OFFERS SLOGAN

"To Hell with the Hapsburgs and Hohenzollerns!" Is His Suggestion.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., April 13.—"To Hell with the Hapsburgs and Hohenzollerns!" was suggested today to the American War Slogan Committee of local citizens by Colonel Henry Watterson of Louisville, Ky., as his idea of an appropriate battle cry for Americans in the present war. In a letter received this morning from Louisville, "Mars' Henry's" contribution to the slogan contest was accompanied by the clipping of an editorial printed in his paper, The Louisville Courier Journal, two days ago.

The editorial occupied a place beside Watterson's tribute to Colonel Roosevelt in the editorial headed "Red Blood versus Red Tape." Outlining the features of the slogan contest, the Louisville editor concludes: "If this be a contest for the royalties of patriotism, count The Courier Journal out. We disdain the cash and furnish the battle cry. Now what is the matter with: 'To Hell with the Hapsburgs and Hohenzollerns'!"

The local committee, composed of Judge Robert Duvall, Edward R. Summers, and Maurice E. Townsend, has received slogan suggestions from many States. Colonel Roosevelt will be one of the judges in the contest.

MANY CONNUBIAL SLACKERS.

More Ready to Risk Wedding on Friday, the 13th, Than War Service.

Two hundred and seventy-six marriage licenses were issued yesterday in Manhattan and eighty-nine couples were married at the clerk's office, indicating that all the connubial slackers had not been shamed out.

Edward Hart, chief clerk in the Marriage License Bureau, said it was the biggest Friday ever known there. Usually Friday is avoided by persons fearful of ill luck, and since yesterday was Friday, the 13th, it might have been expected that no one would risk matrimony. But although the great rush of slackers at the beginning of the week had been checked by the disgusted comments of City Clerk Scully and others, there still seemed to be a considerable number more fearful of loyal service than unlucky matrimony.

On Thursday 307 licenses were issued and 99 couples were married.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., April 13.—Indications that young men of German blood living in Oyster Bay township are finding marriage an easy way to avoid fighting against Germany, were pointed out today by Charles Weeks, Town Clerk. He showed that four of each five applicants for licenses since the declaration of war have been men of German descent.

ARREST VATERLAND SAILOR.

Secret Service Agents Take Man Missed When Ship Was Seized.

United States Secret Service Agents last night arrested Louis Hanz, a sailor, and had him locked up in the Greenwich Street Police Station. Hanz, it is understood, is a German subject, a member of the crew of the Vaterland. When the ship was seized he escaped arrest.

No further information in regard to his apprehension last night was made public.

ACTRESSES IN TEARS OVER WAR APPEAL

The Stage Women's War Relief was organized yesterday at a meeting in the Hudson Theatre, under the auspices of the National League for Women's Service, by a number of prominent women of the stage. The meeting was opened by the reading of a telegram from President Wilson in which he expressed his deep appreciation. "It is a splendid thing," the message read, "for the women of the theatrical profession to ally themselves with the Red Cross work and the great work women can do in this time of war. I wish to express my congratulations as well as my approbation."

The women jumped to their feet and cheered when the message was read. Other telegrams received were from Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of the President; Annie Russell, Kitty Gordon, Yvette Guilbert, Julia Arthur, and Emma Dunn, who sent a check for $100 and the promise of a day's work each week in preparing surgical dressings. Maude Adams, who was in the audience, made a contribution, but asked that no announcement of its amount be made.

The actresses at the meeting gave freely to the cause. Some cheered and some wept at speeches presenting vivid conditions at the front and the part which America might be called upon to play in the war.

"There is only one drama," said Miss Elisabeth Marbury, "about which we are justified in talking now, and there never was one as great and inspiring as the war drama in which we are taking part at the present time. Liberty, equality, and fraternity are the words by which we must live and die."

Julia Marlowe recited "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," Elsie De Wolfe told of some experiences of the women of France, and Anna Case sang "The Star-Spangled Banner." Elizabeth Tyree asked the actresses to aid in raising money. Dorothy Donnelly urged that the women get down to practical work for the soldiers. One of the things which should be done, she said, was to establish a "jam kitchen."

It was voted to have a "dipper day" in the theatres as well as a ball and benefit entertainment. As an experiment, a dipper was passed about in the audience and William A. Brady dropped a $50 bill into it. Others also put contributions into the dipper.

Rachel Crothers is National Chairman of the organization. Among the other officers are Elizabeth Tyree, Dorothy Donnelly, Sally Williams Riegel, Minnie Dupree, Alice Kauser, Jessie Bonstelle, May Buckley, Mrs. Henry B. Harris, Eleanor Gates, Mary H. Kirkpatrick, and Louise Drew.

WANT UNIVERSAL SERVICE.

Merchants' Association Directors Urge Congress to Act.

It was announced last night that the Directors of the Merchants' Association had declared unequivocally for the adoption by Congress of a universal compulsory military service bill, in the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Merchants' Association of New York reiterates its adherence to the principle of compulsory universal military training and service for the young men of the country as a method of improving the physical condition of the citizenship of the nation, of inculcating the spirit of democracy, and of providing an adequate force for the defense of the rights, the liberties, and the institutions of the nation; and be it further

Resolved, That we hereby urge the Congress of the United States immediately to enact legislation to give effect to the principle of compulsory universal military training and service for the young men of the nation.

The vote for the resolution was unanimous.

BANK MUST PAY $2,000 AGAIN

Giving Check Instead of Cash Costly to Institution.

Because the Manhattan Savings Institution gave its check for $2,000 instead of paying the sum in cash when a draft on the account of the St. Joseph's Society, a Lithuanian membership organization, was presented by its President, the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court decided yesterday that the bank must pay it again.

The draft, presented by Jonas Puzonas, President of the society, complied with all requirements except that the names of two Trustees had been forged by Puzonas. He used the money himself and was later convicted and sent to Sing Sing.

COUPONS' LOSS CLEW TO THE BREMEN'S FATE

Application for Reissue of American Securities Carried on Submarine.

That the German cargo-carrying submarine Bremen bore some American securities in sailing from Bremen or Hamburg in August of last year was definitely ascertained yesterday, when it developed that application had been filed with a railroad company for the reissuance of coupons alleged to have been lost. Notice of the application together with copies of the affidavit filed by the owners has been received by the Guaranty Trust Company, Trustee for the mortgage executed by the railroad figuring in the transaction.

There has been considerable mystery as to the fate of the Bremen. She never arrived at New London, Conn., her destination, and various reports regarding her movements have been published. Some of these told of her capture by the British, and others indicated that she had been lost at sea. The Germans have never admitted her loss.

One lot of the securities consisted of sheets of coupons of an American railroad, the "head" of the bonds having previously been shipped to this country by a medium other than a sumarine. The value of the coupons was less than $1,000,000. The railroad company has issued duplicate coupons upon the filing by the owners of an affidavit, accompanied by a surety bond indemnifying the railroad in the event of the presentation of the original coupons.

EL SUPREMO

By EDWARD LUCAS WHITE

The Greatest and Biggest Novel of the Year.

What the Reviewers Say:

H. W. Boynton in the Nation: "A historical romance upon the great scale. A touch of genius which gives to 'El Supremo,' this first notable work of this American story-teller, its unmistakable thrill for the reader. A story of unflagging interest and charm.

The New York Times says that the novel presents "a series of vivid pictures of life and people in Paraguay a hundred years ago, with the full length figure of Francia, the Dictator, painted in detail, standing up in bold relief as the centre of all the plotting, the drama and the romance of the time. The book is like a panorama depicting in glowing colors the life and character of a people as different from our own as could well be imagined."

The Independent says: "Mr. White has enriched our literature by giving us this absorbing account of the man as history and legend show him, of his court and the plots and conspiracies that surrounded him. The novel is one to read all day and all night until it is finished."

The Slaying of Fear.

A STUDENT IN ARMS

A Book That Is Gripping England
By DONALD HANKEY

Introduction by J. St. Loe Strachey, Editor of the London Spectator

The London Christian Outlook, March 1, 1917, in an article headed "The Slaying of Fear." says:—"'A Student in Arms' presents to us the sublime spectacle of an army of which practically every unit has slain fear. There is no greater deed in the moral and spiritual world than this. Every parent who has a boy at the front would like to believe that in the face of death he had the sustaining vision that the 'Student' describes."

ADMITS GERMAN WHO HAD SECOND PAPERS

Court Holds Those Who Received Them Before War Started May Now Take the Oath.

AFFECTS MANY THOUSANDS

Jonas Meyer Had Obtained His Papers Before Declaration of War, but Had Not Taken the Oath.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals decided yesterday that natives of any country at war with the United States who received their second papers before war was declared were entitled to take the final oath of citizenship. The decision is of vast importance to thousands of natives of Germany who received their final papers before the beginning of hostilities with the United States. If the decision had not sustained the act of Judge Mayer of the Federal District Court in admitting Jones Meyer, a German, to citizenship, those who had taken every step toward acquiring citizenship except the taking of the final oath would have been without a country.

Mr. Meyer received his final papers early in January. The ninety days that must elapse between the receipt of the second papers and the final oath in court expired the day after this country was at war with Germany. Under the naturalization law no native of any country at war with us is permitted to file his "final application" for citizenship. Judge Mayer admitted Mr. Meyer with the understanding that his action would be carried to the higher court, so that the question whether the words "final application" meant the day he received his final papers or the day, at least ninety days later, when he appeared in court for admission as a citizen.

Under the decision every native of Germany who received his final papers before the beginning of war may become citizens. Judge Hough dissented to the majority opinion by Judges Ward and Rogers, who held that a fair and natural construction of the statutes indicated that it was quite consistent with the intention of Congress in the act of 1818, during the war with England, that aliens who had declared their intention before the war should not be excluded from citizenship. Judge Hough said it was difficult to harmonize the legislation with the construction placed upon it. He thought that the term "application" referred to the final hearing.

So many aliens visited the county naturalization bureau yesterday for their first and second papers that the rooms of the bureau were crowded by 3 o'clock and orders were given that no more should be admitted. Fifty per cent. of the applicants were Italians, and most of the others were Austrians. During the day 350 first and 110 second papers were issued. It was nearly 7 o'clock before the clerks were released.

ARMY IMPOSTOR EXPOSED.

His Chauffeur Broke Speed Law to Carry Alleged Dispatches.

Magistrate House, in the Traffic Court yesterday, suspended sentence on James F. Wilkes, a chauffeur of 23 West Sixtieth Street, who was charged with speeding at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour, March 30, while carrying as a passenger a man who claimed to be a Lieutenant in the Forty-seventh Infantry, United States Army, bearing important dispatches for the Twenty-second Engineers, New York National Guard. The alleged Lieutenant has been found to be an impostor, and has been arrested in Brooklyn.

Magistrate House said:

"I am going to ask the Police Commissioner if we cannot have the military authorities in a conference with regard to the operation of automobiles. They must understand that, unless they are on a mission of emergency or some impending public danger, they are not exempt from the ordinances."

The "Lieutenant" furnished Wilkes with inscriptions to be attached to his car, indicating it was being used by an officer of the United States Army.

WOMAN OF 94 IS EVICTED.

Indignant Magistrate Sends Her to Almshouse for Shelter and Care.

Mrs. Mary Walsnick, 94 years old, of 332 East Seventy-third Street, had her few possessions thrown into the street yesterday because she was in arrears in her rent. Mrs. Walsnick, with her son, Charles, 63 years old, had lived on the ground floor for eight years. Her daughter, Mrs. Barbara Levidge of Elizabethport, N. J., had been sending enough money to pay the rent, but this month failed to do so, and the aged woman was $6 short in the amount required. Charles barely earns enough for his own support, but has always divided what he made with his mother. Mrs. Walsnick was taken to Yorkville Court on a technical charge of vagrancy, and there Magistrate Nolan was much affected by the old woman's story.

"I know," he declared heatedly, "that if this was some woman of the streets there would be a lot of those uplifters falling all over themselves, hanging breathlessly on every word of her story. But because she is just a poor old woman, I do not see any one around to offer her a helping hand." After a conference with Miss Rose McQuade of the Domestic Relations Court, Magistrate Nolan sent Mrs. Walsnick to the almshouse for the rest of her life. There was a pathetic scene when the aged woman and her son parted. He caressed her tenderly, and promised to visit her as often as he could.

IRVING BACHELLER'S
New Novel

The LIGHT in the CLEARING

By the Author of Eben Holden

MR. BACHELLER'S new novel is quite the most important piece of fiction he has put forth. In its own way it is as good as his famous North Country character studies, of which Eben Holden was the first and, perhaps, the best known.

Mr. Bacheller has written The Light in the Clearing with great skill and heart, and fine and true perception. It is as wholesome and tonic as a wind from out of its own North Woods, and, popular as have been his former books, it deserves a wider reading than any of them, because it is a bigger and better book. —*N. WOOD THINKS RACING NEEDED AS REMOUNT BREEDING AID

RACING IS FAVORED BY GENERAL WOOD

In Letter to August Belmont He Holds Sport Necessary for Raising Remounts.

REGRETS FIRE AT BELMONT

In a letter written to August Belmont, expressing regret over the burning of the Belmont Park plant, Major Gen. Leonard Wood has come out in favor of racing as a means of maintaining the standard of horses necessary for military purposes. He expresses the hope that the buildings will be reconstructed promptly. General Wood's letter in full follows:

> I regret exceedingly to learn of the destruction of the buildings at Belmont Park. I fear this may tend to still further interfere with the development of the horse in which we were both interested, (I refer to the thoroughbred of the right type.) I hope the park buildings will be reconstructed promptly.
>
> There never was a time in the history of the country when we were more in need of the right kind of horse for military purposes than at present. If you had seen the horses which we bought last Summer you would have realized that breeding was a lost art among the general run of our farmers and stock raisers, at least they have lost touch with the galloping blood and gone daft on draft strains. The horses which we got for the cavalry and field artillery were most of them mongrels and would have given poor service in war.

Includes Fancy Gaited Horses.

In his reply to Major Gen. Wood Mr. Belmont paid tribute to the trotter as well as to the thoroughbred, and expressed the opinion that horses of both these types are needful in order to maintain the endurance required in animals used for war service.

That racing will be maintained in spite of the war is made evident by the statement of the Chairman of The Jockey Club, who considers it a public duty to keep up the sport. He also assures the holding of the meeting at Belmont Park after temporary repairs have been made to the buildings. Mr. Belmont's reply to General Wood's letter in full is as follows:

> It gave me great pleasure to receive your letter of April 19, in which you kindly express your regret to learn of the destruction of the buildings at Belmont Park.
> I feel it is of the utmost importance to maintain racing at this time, not as an entertainment and sport for our community, although that is not a wholly negligible reason, but because, as you very rightly say, "there never was a time in the history of the country when we were more in need of the right kind of horse for military purposes than at present."

Draft Horse Usurps Field.

> You and I know that every thoughtful man must realize the importance of stamina and courage in horses used for the army, whether for artillery or cavalry, and that there should be a fairly even average of endurance. For this the trotter and thoroughbred are both of supreme importance.
>
> The draft horse is in such great commercial demand that he has driven out the trotter and galloping horse as well as the crosses of these breeds. The show ring, the hunting field, and polo are wholly insufficient to keep alive the type of horse which, as you say, is sorely needed.
>
> We, as a people, have no more right to put our young men on an inferior horse than we have to send them forth with an inferior rifle.
>
> That the use of cavalry has not become obsolete, as so many good citizens are satisfied to think, is shown in the recent drive on the western front in Europe. The moment army operations become mobile, cavalry comes to its own.

Temporary Repairs at Park.

> We cannot, of course, reconstruct our buildings at Belmont Park for some time, but hope to make such temporary repairs as will enable us to hold our Spring meeting. We will have to trust to the indulgence of the public.
>
> Some people have expressed a doubt as to whether racing ought to continue in the face of war, but most of us feel that it is a public duty not only to give more attention than ever to our activities as breeders, but to keep up public interest in the horse through racing.
>
> So much damage has already been done to the breed of light horses that I fear you will have to go outside of the United States to obtain all the horses you will require for the army, notwithstanding that we have twenty-two millions of horses within our borders, much the major part of which, are draft horses with cold blood, without stamina, speed, or courage.

Rockaway Hunting Club Invites Entries for Meeting.

Entry blanks have been issued for the two-day meeting of the Rockaway Hunting Club, which will open the season of amateur racing at Hewlett Bay Park, Long Island. The dates are April 28 and May 5, and the program will consist of six events on each day, with hunter and pony races among the steeplechase fixtures.

The Rockaway Hunting Club, though it has held its meetings at Hewlett Bay Park for only five seasons, is the oldest of the hunt clubs in this district, and the book of fixtures shows that all the famous events of the past have been maintained. The chief events for the opening day are:

The Cedarhurst Cup, a steeplechase handicap at about two miles over brush; the Rockaway Cup, for hunters, at about three and a half miles over timber, and the Hewlett Park Plate, also for hunters, at about two and a half miles over brush.

All entries close on April 19 with George W. Gall, 18 East Forty-first Street, this city.

Resolutions to Continue Athletics Adopted at Annual Meeting.

The Public Schools Athletic League, at its annual meeting held yesterday in the offices of the President, General George W. Wingate, adopted resolutions pledging loyalty to the flag and also recommending the continuance of athletics in the schools as a means of preparing for the defense of the country. The resolutions adopted were:

Resolved, That the Public Schools Athletic League, on behalf of 200,000 schoolboys of this city, representing nearly all races and religions, pledges its and their unconditional loyalty to President Wilson and to the nation, and promises to render every service in its and their power to the United States during the present national crisis.

Resolved, That the Public Schools Athletic League considers it to be inexpedient that there should be any curtailment in its activities during the coming season. On the contrary, it considers it a matter of national importance that every effort be used to extend its system of physical training, and particularly shooting and military drill, among the children of our public schools to the end that they may become fit when arriving at the necessary age to participate in the defense of their country.

General George W. Wingate, President; S. R. Guggenheim, Treasurer, and C. Ward Crampton, Secretary, were re-elected officers of the league.

Tufts Retains Athletics.

MEDFORD, Mass., April 13.—The Advisory Board of the Tufts College Athletic Association, decided today not to cancel its athletic schedule because of the war. The baseball team will leave on its southern trip next week.

HAUBERK HITS FAST PACE.

Outfoots Indian Chant Easily in Fleet Handicap at Bowie.

BOWIE, Md., April 13.—An overnight rain turned the Bowie track into slow going for today's races, but it had little effect on the ability of the public to pick winners. With the exception of Sleepy Sam in the third race and Jesse Louise in the last, all the winners were at very short prices in the mutuels.

The Fleet Handicap, at six furlongs, was the feature and this was expected to furnish a duel between J. W. Bean's Indian Chant and J. F. Sweeney's Hauberk, both winners at the meeting. Jimmy Butwell had the mount on Hauberk and he hustled the son of Martinet along at such a lively gait that Indian Chant was done with long before the finish and failed to land in the money.

The surprise of the race was furnished by Dunga Din, which Obert rushed up in time to take second money from Tea Caddy, another of the outsiders.

SISLER'S HOME RUN DOWNS WHITE SOX

Eddie Collins Helps Browns to Victory by Lifting His Foot at the Wrong Time.

ST. LOUIS, April 13.—Eddie Collins's error in the first, when he took his foot off second as he was about to put out Shotton, gave the Browns a lead of one run which ultimately enabled them to beat Chicago, 4 to 3, today. Sisler drove a home run into the right field bleachers, scoring Miller ahead of him in the fourth.

THIRD STRAIGHT FOR CUBS.

Pirates Find Reuther a Power on the Mound.

CHICAGO, April 13.—The Chicago Cubs bunched hits with Mamaux's wild spells and won their third straight game from Pittsburgh today, 6 to 1. Reuther held the visitors to six hits, three of which were made by Hinchman.

YANKS HAVE A DAY OFF.

Muddy Field Prevents Third Fray with Boston Red Sox.

Up at the Polo Grounds yesterday the outfield was wet and soggy and the infield muddy after the early morning rain, so the third meeting of the Yankees and the Boston Red Sox was postponed, and will be played as part of a double-header on some scorching day later in the season. After two straight defeats the Yankees were not sorry to have the game called off, as they realize that they have not yet hit their normal stride.

GIANTS RESUME IDLENESS.

Little Likelihood of Game with Braves Today, Either.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., April 13.—The Giants agree that Friday the 13th brought them no luck, as rain prevented their game with the Braves and a chance to add a second game to their string. Manager McGraw had Jeff Tesreau groomed for the battle, with Schupp, last year's late-season hero, as an auxiliary.

Both Tesreau and Schupp will also be on the card for tomorrow, but the day's rain made a quagmire of the Allston ball park, and nothing but plenty of sunshine will make it possible for the clubs to get together for a Saturday game.

KELLY TIES DREW, THEN DEFEATS HIM

Negro Sprinter Signalizes His Comeback by Dead Heat in "100" at Smart Set Meet.

It took a national champion and record holder two races last night to nose out a victory by inches over Howard P. Drew, the negro sprinter whose performances on the indoor and outdoor track a couples of seasons ago were the sensation of A. A. U. athletics. At the annual games of the Smart Set A. C. in the Thirteenth Regiment Armory, Brooklyn, Drew showed several thousand spectators that he had retained much of his phenomenal speed and strength, and in this, his first track meet since last August, Drew was overtaken and passed only by Andrew B. Kelly of Holy Cross College in one of the hardest contested sprinting events seen on an American indoor circle.

The Century Special at 100 yards, the principal event of the games, found at the starting mark Drew, attempting a comeback; Kelly, the national 300-yard champion and record holder, and Roy Morse, the Salem-Crescent A. C. negro star. A full quota of timers held regulated watches on the race, but a careful consensus taken at the finish gave Drew and Kelly a dead heat for the century distance. A run-over was demanded by the spectators, and later in the evening, after both had taken the opportunity for rest, the second race was held, and was won by Kelly by less than a foot, with Drew second.

The negro started off with new tactics and was able to outguess the Holy Cross collegian for a full seventy-five yards of the distance. Then Kelly, trailing a scant yard in Drew's wake, called on his reserve, and quickening his gait almost imperceptibly, he flung himself along and into the worsted inches ahead of Drew. Morse was in third place again, a foot in the rear of Drew. The time for both of the races was 0:10 1-5.

The summaries:

One-Mile Walk, Handicap.—Won by Walter von Bargen, Kings County A. A., (60 seconds;) William Plant, Long Island A. C., (5 seconds,) second; Richard F. Remer, New York A. C., (scratch,) third. Time—7:18 1-5.

Illinois A. C. Takes National Water Polo Title by 5 to 3.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 13.—Chicago tonight forced New York to take its splash in the Illinois Athletic Club pool when the local water polo seven, composed of McDermott, McGillivray, Handy, Hebner, Vosburgh, Roth, and Jensen, outscored the New York Athletic Club team 5 to 3 in the national A. A. U. title battle. The victory also brought the local club the United States aquatic championship for the 1917 indoor season.

Before the game was two minutes old the spectators were sitting in at a general rough-and-tumble battle in the water. The local team finished at first half in front by a 2 to 0 margin as a result of neat goals by Perry McGillivray and Jam Handy. The Gothamites, especially Cann and Vollmer, hit several consistent passing streaks, but the goal work of Jensen always staved them off.

In the second chapter the real squabble took place. Captain Ruddy led his lads back into the water set for their final charge, and from the way it started it looked like curtains for the local prides. Ruddy hustled the oval into the net in a jiffy for the first marker of the Easterners and Vollmer deadlocked the count with a short toss.

Captain McDermott rallied his destroyers at this stage and Hebner responded with a point. After a half minute of various kinds of scrapping Hany contributed a regulation goal and followers of the Michigan Avenue tribe took their hands off their hearts. Back came Herb Vollmer with his second score, making the count 4 to 3.

Just when the situation again was becoming ticklish, McGillvray banked a goal and the performance was over, as Referee Tom Robinson chased the boys to the shower less than a minute after.

Manhasset Bay Y. C. to Hold Shoot.

The Manhasset Bay Yacht Club will hold an invitation shoot at its traps at Port Washington, L. I., on Saturday, April 21. The match will be at 100 targets, 16 yards, two sets of traps being used. Two high scratch and three high handicap prizes are to be offered, as well as a team prize, the five high guns of each club being considered its team. An optional $5 sweepstakes will also be contested.

GOULD AND HUHN VICTORS.

Beat Wightman and McKean in National Court Tennis Doubles.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., April 13.—Jay Gould and W. H. T. Huhn, of Philadelphia, national amateur court tennis champions in doubles, had an easy time winning their first match in this year's championship tournament against George Wightman and Q. A. S. McKean, of the Boston Athletic Club, at the Tennis and Racquet Club courts today.

The Philadelphians took all three of the sets by the same score, 6-2, for outclassing their opponents.

In addition to the amateur tournament play a special match in singles was contested between Fred Knebel, professional of the Boston Tennis and Racquet Club, and Jack White, the New York Racquet and Tennis Club professional. White won the first set, 6-3, and then lost the second by the same score. Knebel won the third set handily, 6-1, but White came back strong in the fourth, which went to deuce games, and which he won, 7-5. In the fifth set both men played brilliant tennis, but Knebel was stronger and won, 6-4, making the match three sets to two for the Bostonian.

MORAN DELIVERS KNOCKOUT PUNCH

CROWD CHEERS VICTORY

Frank Moran, the Pittsburgh heavyweight, regained some of his lost prestige at the Harlem Sporting Club last night when he knocked out Tom Cowler, the big English boxer, announced as "formerly of England, but now of New York," in the fourth round of what was to have been a ten-round bout. The result, coming as a bolt from the clear sky, was one of the most popular ever scored in a local ring, and when Referee Kid McPartland had finished his fatal count of ten seconds over the fallen Cowler the house was in an uproar, as the spectators loudly acclaimed Moran.

In point of competition the bout was one of the best seen here this season. Both men exchanged blows with a vim. At times Cowler employed his cleverness to jab Moran effectively and peck openings in the Pittsburgher's faulty guard. Moran's offensive tactics, however, forced Cowler to discard his cleverness and take his chance of exchanging blows, and in this the Englishman lost.

Not so much the manner in which he scored his victory, but the reality that he had won by decisive means, made the large crowd which witnessed the contest so enthusiastic. Moran was the under dog from the start of the bout until its untimely finish. He relied principally on his ability to connect with one decisive wallop, his famous "Mary Ann," and in the end it was this blow, a right to the jaw, which won him the victory.

Triumph did not come to the blond Pittsburgh boxer, however, until he had been forced to take a considerable amount of punishment. He showed up in comparatively good condition as regards his physical dimensions, although he entered the ring with a noticeable paunch in front of him. He weighed 201 pounds, fourteen less than his opponent, and at this figure he appeared in good condition.

In the matter of ring ability, however, the Pittsburgher was woefully inefficient, and in the opening three rounds he missed many well-intended blows with monotonous regularity. In fact, hardly more than half a dozen of his attempts went true to their mark, but despite this and the lambasting he was receiving from Cowler, the blond-haired boxer persistently kept coming in endeavoring to land his notorious "Mary Ann."

For the first three rounds Cowler had things his own way and was winning by a clear margin, although he was considerably worried by Moran's heavy lunges. The English boxer held Moran at a safe distance in each round with a stiff protruding left hand jab, which Moran could not dodge, and alternated this with a heavy right cross to the jaw, jarring the Pittsburgher to his heels.

After the bell in the third session a mild scene was enacted when Cowler sent Moran skidding across the ring with two heavy lefts to the jaw and a right to the same place, all of which landed after the bell. The crowd yelled its disapproval, but to the close observers it was apparent that Cowler lost his head after being hit himself after the bell.

BARS DARCY IN LOUISIANA.

Special to The New York Times.

BATON ROUGE, La., April 13.—"Let Les Darcy follow noble example of Georges Carpentier before seeking athletic engagements in Louisiana," Governor Pleasant wired tonight to Dominicn J. Tortorich, manager of the Louisiana Auditorium at New Orleans, ordering the cancellation of the boxing bout that was scheduled for April 23 between Les Darcy and Jeff Smith.

The cancellation by the Governor is the result of his receipt of numerous appeals for cancellation from patriotic persons throughout the State. The Governor's telegram in full to Manager Tortorich follows:

"Please cancel boxing match between Darcy and Smith. Make this request for public good. Let Darcy follow noble example of Georges Carpentier before seeking athletic engagements in Louisiana."

FOUR FENCERS QUALIFY.

Hall, Nunes, Pitt, and Lyons Reach National Title Semi-Finals.

Four fencers of the New York division of the Amateur Fencers' League of America qualified in the preliminary bouts of the national championship at the New York A. C. last night. The successful competitors were Sherman Hall, Leo Nunes, and Steddiford Pitt of the New York A. C., and Arthur Lyons of the Fencers' Club.

These contestants will compete in the semi-finals with competitors of the other divisions at the New York A. C. on Wednesday and Thursday nights of next week.

The bouts last night were closely fought, and the six contestants were facing each other for nearly three hours before the successful foilsmen qualified. Sherman Hall led, winning all five of his bouts, while Nunes and Pitt were tied for second place.

The summaries of the bouts follow:

Hall defeated Allison 5—4, Nunes 5—2, Lyon 5—4, Pitt 5—2, and Collins 5—1; Nunes defeated Allison 5—4, Pitt 5—1, and Collins 5—1; Pitt defeated Allison 5—3; Lyon 5—2, and Collins 5—1; Allison defeated Lyon 5—4, and Collins 5—1; Lyon defeated Nunes 5—4, and Collins 5—1.

Totals.—Hall, 5 bouts; Nunes, 3 bouts; Pitt, 3 bouts; Allison, 2 bouts; Lyon, 2 bouts, and Collins, none.

MARSHALL SETS RECORD.

Chess Champion Plays 101 Boards, a New Mark for New York.

College and school chess players figured most prominently as winners against Frank J. Marshall, the United States chess champion, in the exhibition of simultaneous play at the rooms of the New York City Chess Club, which was wound up at 2 o'clock yesterday morning. The champion played at 101 boards at the same time, a new record for New York City. His final score gave him 69 victories, 25 draws, and 7 defeats.

In most cases there was only one player at each board, but at several of them a number consulted, making a total of 125 players that actually participated. The performance lasted a little less than five hours. The list of seven winners to whom prizes were awarded follows:

Charles B. Isaacson, Columbia University; Harry Borochow, City College; John W. Scoville and Irving Kaplan of Morris High School; B. H. Feuer, Boys High School; A. Kreinew, Eastern District High School; Louis Gaber, New York City C. C.

Boxing Bouts Tonight.

ART NOTES.

The Watson Collection Contains Pictures of Great Interest.

The pictures belonging to the David T. Watson estate now on view at the American Art Galleries contain so many beautiful examples that their dispersal counts as an event of great importance.

The Barbizon pictures in particular constitute a group of distinction. Corot is represented by characteristic compositions, and by others less familiar and not less interesting and beautiful. There are dignity and repose in "Le Soir," with its cluster of stately trees, less tremulous and dim of foliage than one finds in what is called a "typical Corot," its group of tall peasant women, and its leaping goat. The "Environs of Arleux" records a more lyrical mood. "La Mère" is homely in sentiment; with a mother and her baby talking to a faggot-binder in the foreground, a woman milking a cow, and a cow shed visible under a grove of trees, the foliage of which glimmers against a pale sky. Most enticing of all, however, is the rare little "Environs of Elretat," again a homely scene with peasants and their homes, lending the interest of humanity to the composition, an irregular row of trees upon a slope of ground, beyond which is seen a stretch of water, lovely in color and sensitive in gradation. Here you see the lovable master turning aside from that convenient recipe of his from which he produced many a gem of art, and taking a more intimate and livelier interest in his subject. He gave the picture to his friend, Mme. Monot of Paris. There are other Corots, two or three that come from collections not named. Nearly all are worthy examples and have their separate charms, but none seems quite to breathe this spirit of personal association with the scene.

A remarkably fine Troyon is the "Going to Market," distinguished less for the sprightly rendering of motion and animal character in the donkey on which the peasant girl is riding, carrying her vegetables in panniers, and in the sheep and cows that follow behind, and the alert dog that guides their course, than for the luminous atmosphere in which the scene is bathed, the mysterious pure sunlight of early morning dissipating the mists and casting long shadows on the moist ground. Another very unusual Troyon is "The House by the River," the property of the estate of the late Gustav Reichard. A punting party has pushed up to the landing in front of a picturesque cottage and is welcomed by the woman at the door. It is painted with a quiet fidelity to the objective truth of the place that evokes its own mood.

There are several good Jacques and Daubignys, and two examples of Rousseau's work, both unusual. One, very small, was formerly in the justly celebrated collection of Sir John Day. The subject is a pass through an Italian mountain range. A stone wall winds sinuously through the composition like a great snake, at the base of the mountains. The light is that of a Summer evening, and the color as rich and deep as that of Rembrandt. In spite of its small size it is one of the most important Rousseaus to appear in an auction room. It belongs to one of the several collections that will be dispersed at the same time with that of Mr. Watson.

Many schools besides the Barbizon are represented in the exhibition. There are several Schreyers, the finest, "The Halt at the Fountain," in which a group of many horsemen is so arranged that their figures are below the horizon line. There are excellent examples of the work of Vallon, Monticelli, Monet; beautiful flower subjects by Fantin-Latour, whose deep conscience and fine tact show clearest in this genre; a wood scene by Hobbema; a very fine picture of a rocky glen by Courbet; a landscape of unusual breadth by Diaz, and several brilliant figure subjects by the same artist.

The older masters are present also, although in small numbers and examples, which in most instances are of secondary importance. A charming Metsu, tranquil and dainty, and refined in color, has been accepted by De Groot for inclusion in his Catalogue Raisonné; an unrewarding "Lady Hamilton as Sigismunde" given to Romney, a couple of portraits by Gainsborough, and a bewitching "Shepherd Boy" by Sir Joshua Reynolds, warm without heat, pensive and gentle without affectation, and held in a beautiful unified tone such as Reynolds always strove to achieve and seldom brought so near to perfection. The picture has a history that goes back in a direct line to the studio of the artist.

There are three Murillos, a "Madonna and Child," the most interesting; a portrait of a gentleman, harshly bright in color and highly finished, represents the great name of Rubens, and a lovely head of the Countess Lescari, extremely rich in color and winning in expression, is given to Van Dyck. The right hand is beautifully painted and the lace ruff is indicated with masterly freedom of touch. Other accessories, the rose in the lady's hair, the earring, the necklace, also are boldly yet delicately described. The face has the pure oval seen in other portraits of Van Dyck's aristocratic sitters, but the pigment is less heavily applied and with much less vigor of interior modeling than in other portraits of the Italian period in Van Dyck's career.

John Constable's "The Glebe Farm," from the collection of the artist's daughter, a handsome mill scene by "Old Crome," water colors, Winslow Homer, and a group of Wyants are other features of an unusually interesting collection.

NATION'S STORY IN 23 BOOKS

Bureau of Education Recommends List for Popular Reading.

The United States Bureau of Education has just prepared a list of twenty-three books which it recommends as a complete course in American history, appropriate for reading at this time, when the critical events of the present day have attracted more than customary interest to the country's past. The list consists of:

"The Colonies," by Reuben Gold Thwaites.

"Old Virginia and Her Neighbors," by John Fiske.

"The American Revolution," by John Fiske.

"Critical Periods of American History," by John Fiske.

"Henry Clay," by Carl Schurz.

"Life of George Washington," by Woodrow Wilson.

"Winning of the West," by Theodore Roosevelt.

"Economic History of the United States," by E. L. Bogart.

"Division and Reunion," by Woodrow Wilson.

"The Lower South in American History," by William Garrott Brown.

"Abraham Lincoln," by John T. Morse.

"America in Ferment," by Paul Leland Haworth.

In an announcement accompanying the list, which is intended for popular instead of class reading, Commissioner P. P. Claxton says that upon application to the Home Education Division of the Bureau blanks and directions for the reading course will be provided gratis, and the Bureau will issue certificates to those who read the course and fulfill the requirements stipulated on the blanks.

WASHINGTON RUSHES PLANS TO GET SHIPS

RAILROAD VESSELS WANTED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The shipping problem, which remains uppermost in the minds of the Administration, was discussed at the Cabinet meeting today. Prior to the meeting Mr. Jusserand, the French Ambassador, had a conference with President Wilson. It was learned that yesterday the Ambassador was closeted with the United States Shipping Board for two hours.

The emphasis laid on the need for ships as the supreme means for winning the war in Prime Minister Lloyd George's speech yesterday has served to intensify the belief already held here that in the immediate development of a merchant marine lies America's chief duty for the moment. The chief dependence for quick results rests on the wooden fleet program laid out by the Shipping Board, but whatever steel ships can be obtained will be ordered. Although the White House has not yet received formal word of Major Gen. Goethals's acceptance of the task of building the wooden merchant marine, it is understood that he will accept.

Plans are under way to employ as many of the Great Lakes ships as are capable of being used in ocean traffic. W. J. Conners of Buffalo called at the White House today with Representative Charles B. Smith of New York to offer the use of six of the thirty-five vessels on the Great Lakes which he owns. He also suggested that four of the Lehigh Valley Railroad's vessels on the Lakes might be procured. Mr. Conners also conferred with the Shipping Board.

Negotiations with the railroads are now under way to turn their coastwise shipping to the national use.

Democratic leaders in Congress are considering a proposal to increase the appropriation for the Shipping Board's use from $50,000 to $200,000. It is believed that before the Administration's shipping program can be accomplished a far larger sum than that now at the board's disposal will be needed.

The Department of Labor plans to find a way to make the sailors of the German ships now in the Government's hands self-supporting. They probably will be put to work in places chosen for them by the department.

ORGANIZED RAG COLLECTING

British Government Starts a Nation-wide Movement.

LONDON, April 1, [Correspondence of The Associated Press.]—Rag collecting in a nation-wide house-to-house basis is being organized by the Government through the National Service Department. London alone is expected to furnish 5,000,000 pounds of rags before the Spring housecleaning season is over.

The official title of the new movement is the "National House-to-House Rag Collection." A woman organizer is being appointed for every district of every important town, and she will enlist the services of Boy Scouts and other volunteers as collectors. A corps of women workers will make house-to-house calls to explain the campaign to housewives and enlist their help.

"Every woman who throws away rags is helping the enemy," says the committee's appeal. "Every square inch of rag which contains cotton can be made into paper. Every scrap of rag which is made of wool can be turned into new clothes."

Lady Amherst and Mrs. Tennant have given the committee houses which will be used as central collecting stations for the London district.

MEATLESS DAYS IN FRANCE.

Two a Week After June 1 Because of Lack of Shipments.

PARIS, April 13.—Maurice Violette, Minister of Subsistence, has decided to introduce the meatless day system in France. From now until June 1 the sale of meat will be prohibited Thursdays and after that date on Thursdays and Fridays. Exceptions will be made in the case of the sick and probably in the case of young soldiers in training.

The preamble of the decree, which will be promulgated Sunday, explains that the step has been taken as a result of the decrease in the shipments of frozen meat and the necessity for reducing as little as possible national stocks.

WIRELESS STORM WARNINGS

Dunn to Organize a Bureau to Aid Coast Patrol Service.

An information bureau, from which weather reports will be sent by wireless to aviators and the commanders of the 500 or more small boats of the Naval Coast Defense Reserve that will patrol this coast, will be organized by E. B. Dunn, who for many years was the chief forecaster for the Government in this city. Mr. Dunn, who since his retirement from the Government department has been President of the Speed Control Company at 257 William Street, offered his services through the Naval Training Association at 26 Cortlandt Street. The association arranged yesterday to have the work done in cooperation with the Weather Bureau.

"Military aviators will find the service of great help, particularly as to time and duration of flights," Mr. Dunn said. "It is believed that many boats and lives may be saved by this service, as the warnings will enable them to reach the safety of bases along the coast in unusually dangerous storms."

5TH AV. CROWD SEES A FIRE.

5,000 on Library Steps Watch Firemen Put Out Smoky Blaze.

With the steps of the Public Library as a grand stand, more than 5,000 persons watched a fire which threatened to cause considerable damage to the row of buildings on the opposite side of Fifth Avenue between Forty-second and Forty-first Streets at noon yesterday. The blaze started in the basement of the Fifth Avenue Antique and Furniture Company, at 463 Fifth Avenue. Great volumes of smoke poured out of the windows of the upper stories, and for about a quarter of an hour it seemed as though the whole interior of the building, four stories high, was burning.

Before the fire had gained much headway a dozen girls employed in Cecile's millinery establishment, on the third floor of the building, rushed through the smoke-filled corridors and reached the street. No one was hurt, and when the engines arrived the firemen had very little difficulty in confining the flames to the antique shop, where about $5,000 worth of material was destroyed.

SHOT BY MOTOR CAR THIEF.

Member of Aviation Squad Wounded in Presence of Women.

Christopher Anderson, chief mechanic of the Government aviation squad at Mineola, L. I., was shot through the neck and partly paralyzed last night by one of three men whom he surprised while they were attempting to steal an automobile from the garage of A. C. Rishel, in Stewart Avenue, Garden City. His condition is critical.

The police are satisfied that Anderson's connection with the army had nothing to do with the shooting. He was riding in an automobile along the Nassau Boulevard with Alfred O'Brien, a friend, and two women when the trouble occurred. A posse under Sheriff Seaman is searching the countryside for the thieves.

BROADEN JEWISH RELIEF.

Conferences Will Consider Russian Revolt and America's Part.

One of the most important conferences in the history of American Jewish War Relief will be held tomorrow to discuss plans to meet the new situations created by the Russian revolution and the entrance of America into the war. In the afternoon a conference will be held at the Temple Emanu-El, Fifth Avenue and Forty-third Street, under the Presidency of Henry Morgenthau. Delegates from the principal cities of the country will be present and plans will be suggested for a campaign which will cover the entire country with an appeal for war relief.

These plans will be taken into consideration at a second meeting held at night at the Hotel Savoy, at which Jacob H. Schiff will preside. At least one feature of the program will consist of meetings, already arranged for, from one end of the country to the other, at which Dr. Judah L. Magnes and Dr. Stephen S. Wise will speak.

The liberation of the Jews in Russia has had an important effect in stimulating the efforts to extend relief work in that country, having made the carrying out of the work easier now that the cooperation of the new Russian Government has been promised. The entry of America into the list of belligerents has also affected the situation.

The Federation of Rumanian Jews of America will begin a two days' annual convention today at the Hebrew Technical School for Girls, Second Avenue and Fifteenth Street. The annual report and message will be read by Dr. Julius Weiss, President of the federation. At the evening session the speakers will include Senator William M. Calder, Marcus M. Marks, Congressman Walter M. Chandler, Congressman William S. Bennet, Judge Otto A. Rosalsky, Judge Gustave Hartman, Judge Leonard Smitkin, the Rev. Hirsch Maliansky, and ex-Judge Leo Sanders. A business meeting will be held Sunday, and a plan for the permanent relief of Jewish war sufferers in Rumania will be considered.

APPELMANN IS EXONERATED.

MONTPELIER, Vt., April 13.—Professor Anton H. Appelmann of the University of Vermont Faculty was exonerated of charges of un-American activities by the Board of Trustees of the university at a special meeting here today. With "full confidence in his loyalty to the institution and to this Government" the Trustees voted to accept his resignation which had been tendered on Feb. 3, after President Wilson announced the diplomatic break with Germany.

The Faculty of the university was authorized by the Trustees to offer the university and its facilities to the Government for use to any extent that may be deemed necessary. It was voted to graduate the senior class as soon as its members are needed for Federal service. Assistance of the university in developing the food crops of the State was pledged, and decision made to give credit for a full year's work to the members of the junior class in the Agricultural Department who may go into the fields to help farmers increase their planting.

Tea in Aid of Aerial Patrol.

A tea garden will be opened this afternoon at the Exhibition of Independent Artists at the Grand Central Palace under the auspices of the Aviation Committee of the National Special Aid Society, and the proceeds will go to the Naval Aerial Coast Patrol. Miss Ruth Law and Cosmo Hamilton will speak in the afternoon, and Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary, Henry A. Wise Wood, and others in the evening. Young society women will serve tea.

APPLAUD GERMAN SINGERS.

Opera Audience Cordial to Wagner Opera Stars.

Metropolitan opera subscribers stood and sang while "The Star-Spangled Banner" was played in the first intermission of "Tristan" last evening, as part of a special observance agreed on by theatre managers the country over to mark the first week of war, but here by odd coincidence falling on the night of the season's last Wagner opera and the farewell of several German stars. Johanna Gadski, the Isolde of the cast, was among those taking leave.

The audience at each curtain gave all the singers more than usual applause, and after the second act duet, when the tenor Urlus, a Hollander, brought Gadski before the golden draperies, there was a demonstration on the part of the boxholders and others, who rarely take part in such scenes.

Some attacks on the German singers resulted in a house packed to Caruso limits, including 500 paid standees. There were at least twenty curtain calls, the last for Gadski alone. Matzenauer as Brangaene also had a farewell appearance for the season, and Whitehill, an American, was the Kurwenal, while at the start of each act there was enthusiastic welcome for Conductor Bodanzky in the orchestra pit. Adolf Rothmeyer led the band in the national anthem.

Davidson-Rivers Matinee.

Louise Davidson, soprano, and Claire Rivers, pianist, at the Comedy Theatre yesterday, gave a matinée program grouped under titles of "A Tiny Toy," "A Spanish Fan," and "An Irish Jig," each illustrated by songs and piano pieces in as many changes of costume. The two young artists displayed taste, humor, and skill in music as modern as Granados and Grainger. Geraldine Farrar occupied a box, and there were many flowers.

Music Notes.

Yvette Guilbert gave a recital of French folksongs, with dances by her pupils, in a special program for young people at Maxine Elliott's Theatre yesterday, announced as Mme. Guilbert's farewell for the season.

Louise Harrington Dole has a "Children's Hour" at the Biltmore this morning at 11 o'clock, when she will sing Mother Goose melodies in costume, from the Chinese and Dutch to the original English versions.

Mrs. Staberg Hall, soprano, assisted at the piano by Bruno Huhn, was a newcomer in recital yesterday at Aeolian Hall, her songs ranging from classic airs to later Norwegian, German, and English. Mrs. Hall showed good training and much sincerity in her interpretations, without great power of voice, however, owing to a perceptible nervousness in the earlier part of the matinée.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

William Faversham will produce Shaw's "Misalliance" here early next Fall, and about the same time will appear in a new comedy by Dion Calthorp called "The Old Country."

The East-West Players will give their second bill of the season a week from next Monday night at the Educational Alliance. The program will be made up of "At the Threshold," by Perez Hirschbein; "She Must Marry a Doctor," by Sholom Aleichem; "The Dollar," by David Pinski, and "Night," by Sholom Asch.

When Mrs. Hapgood's company of negro players move to the Garrick next week the company presenting the Irish drama, "Grasshopper," will be transferred to the Maxine Elliott, where they will appear in special matinee presentations of that play.

Ray Comstock, Morris Gest, and William Elliott have leased the La Salle Theatre in Chicago and will book their New York productions there.

George Arliss's performance in "Disraeli" next Monday night at the Knickerbocker will be for the benefit of the Society for Italian Women, an organization which furthers vocational training for Italian young women.

George O'Donnell, a member of the original cast that sang "The Highwayman," will be seen again in the role of Foxy Quiller when the operetta is revived late this month at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre.

Fritzi Scheff has been added to the list of artists who will appear at the newsboys' benefit tomorrow night at the Hippodrome.

Hall Caine's dramatization of his novel "The Woman Thou Gavest Me" was presented last night in Boston, with Mabel Taliaferro, Edmund Breese, Mme. Yorska, and Derwent Hall Caine in the principal roles.

A new after-theatre dancing club was opened last night in the Forty-fourth Street Theatre building. The decorations of the club suggest those of an English country Summer house, and one of the novelties is a bar for men and women with high stools. A miscellaneous program was given by artists from various Shubert musical attractions.

WITH ALL OUR STRENGTH.

We can no longer speak objectively of the Allies. The word is no longer in the third person plural, but in the first. We are one of the Allies. We are allied with democratic Britain, with republican France, with democratic Italy, and revolutionary Russia, to make the world safe for democracy, to root out from the earth the poison weed that has grown to overshadow the peaceful democratic nations with a foliage of terror. No more than any of our allies shall we withhold an ounce of strength from that task, from the greatest blow for liberty this nation has ever had the privilege of striking.

Germany "does not know America," said Lloyd George; she pictures a gold-soaked nation which will make war cautiously with dollars, and does not dread us. She makes the same mistake she made about England. While Mr. George was telling the Americans in London, "We know "America, and we also know that "now she has said it she will do it," the French and British Admirals, Grasset and Browning, were in conference at Washington with Secretary Daniels and afterward with Admiral Benson. The Secretary was giving the two naval representatives of our democratic allies the assurance:

> We are not preparing for a short war. We are preparing for a long war in which we will use all our resources to defeat the German Government, and we intend to fight to a finish.

Words that were instantly followed by deeds, by the arrangement between the French, British, and American Admirals of the plan for joint naval action against Germany, and for the division of the task among the three fleets. In London the American Ambassador was pledging, before cheering Americans and British, the utmost endeavors of his country, and the British Premier was saluting, as he said, "the American Nation as comrades in arms." In Washington the words were being translated into action as they spoke.

It is cheering and comforting to Americans to find that their Government, so forbearing and patient in the face of provocation, is entering the war with such clearness of vision, such energy of action, such a complete recognition of the size of the task and the necessities of the situation. A weak government would have paltered with the task, a stupid government would have sought to make war as if we had no allies, a cowardly government would have fulfilled the German expectation that we would fight only with dollars, and disaster would have brought it at last, after shameful loss of lives and money, to the very steps which the clear-sighted and energetic Government we have is taking with such promising resolution and thoroughness. The German Government, indeed, does not know America.

ORGANIZE TAXATION.

Such taxation as this generation never knew is sure in the near future. Fortunately there is every disposition to bear it cheerfully, and to bring suitable pressure upon tax slackers. But that is no reason why there should be waste of tax resources, or why taxes should be levied in a manner unnecessarily burdensome to those who pay them. The practice has been for States and nation to levy taxes independently, either invading the jurisdiction of the other with the same results as though it were done maliciously instead of carelessly. For example, it is sure that the Federal income tax will be increased, and there are strong signs that there will be a corporation income tax in this State, with the possibility of a personal income tax. Two income taxes are too much for any man or corporation to pay without resentment. That is true also of inheritance taxes, franchise taxes, and others. At the same time there is neglect of interstate trade as a source of Federal revenue.

There would be peculiar fitness in looking to Federal subjects of taxation for Federal revenue, and in leaving to the States methods of taxation respecting which the States have no alternative, while the Washington Government has an option to tax or not to tax. Perhaps both objects would be attained if the States were called upon for payment of cash for Federal objects, and the methods of finding the cash were left to local option regarding taxation. Such tax levies would have to be apportioned according to population and wealth, but the freedom regarding the methods of taxation would make them less burdensome than equal sums levied perhaps twice upon the same objects. The subject was engaging the attention of State authorities before the announcement was made of Federal taxes of a billion or more. California had already called a conference of State delegates upon the subject, and the Governor has signed the bill authorizing him to send seven delegates on behalf of New York. As the Federal taxation will not be hastily enacted, the conference may easily have considerable influence upon the result, not by the way of reducing the taxes, but of distributing them in a manner more easily borne.

The separation of the methods of taxation is desirable in the interest of stability of taxation. When the systems are independent, neither is affected by changes in the other. When both systems tax the same subjects, both systems are affected by changes in either.

AMERICANS ALL.

In his fine patriotic speech at the dinner of the Dwight Alumni Association, Mr. Hughes expressed his pride in being an American citizen when the American people "are prepared to do "their part to the end that we shall "be governed by law, by agreement, "by conception of right, and not brute "force," his purpose to follow Mr. Wilson, "whose leadership has been most nobly declared." He rejoiced in united America, "ready to die for the principles of liberty." "There is no "partisanship when it is a question of "fighting for your country."

What a heartening and splendid thing it is to see Charles Evans Hughes, Elihu Root, Theodore Roosevelt, William Howard Taft, standing with Woodrow Wilson. The rivalries and the bitterness of 1916 are forgotten. Not as Republicans or Democrats, but as Americans, they are one on the common platform of love of country. And infinitely more splendid and heartening is the visible substantial unity of the American people. Only in war do these high and rare times of national solidarity come.

THE ENEMY WITHIN.

There is an enemy at large on this continent who is far more dangerous than any alien. Though all his works are wicked, he is good. He travels on his piety. He regards himself as morally superior to his fellows. But it is the superiority of ignorance. To him the world was made yesterday. He refuses to profit by experience. The history of human affairs up to date means nothing.

The same enemy was at large in England. Without him Germany would have been impotent and this war couldn't have happened. "Oh, well," he said, "these people who talk of war are alarmists." It was "Oh, well," this and "Oh, well," that. It was useless to have an army; the fleet was quite enough. Germany would never go to war; she was doing too well without it. British taxation was already far too high without adding a military establishment to the burden. And a citizen army with compulsory training destroyed the very flower of free institutions, the voluntary system.

The ignoramus had his way. Germany prepared the destruction of Europe and sprung it as a surprise upon her defenseless victims. England staggered under the shock. It was months before it was clear whether she could stand up for her own protection. It was still longer before she could bring her full strength to bear upon the enemy. She could have prevented the war for roundly 10 per cent. of what it has cost her up to date in money and perhaps 1 per cent. in life. If she had been as ready two years ago as now, she could have smothered the Germans before they got fairly started. The ignoramus blocked the way. England has got him under at last, but he is loose and in fine feather at Washington. He is prating about the beauties of the voluntary system. The evil music of the familiar cant pierces the keen ear of Lloyd George across three thousand miles of sea. He warns America against the English mistakes—mistakes that are in the very blood of us both.

The issues are enormous. More American lives are possibly at stake than have been lost in all our wars. Our material interests and the future of democracy forever are in the balance. The half-baked opinions of men taking up a big subject for the first time should not darken our counsels. Our American vision for realities should pierce to the heart of the war emergency, which is compulsion, with equality and efficiency in its favor and only sentimentalism and phonetics against it.

THE MINEWORKERS' PLEA.

There is no argument against the necessity of enabling workers to live if the product of their labor is wanted. The bituminous colliers who are asking $56,000,000 more wages further strengthen the presumption in their favor by saying that they propose to keep the contract which fixes a lower wage than they are asking. They are not threatening a strike, but presenting their case. It should receive consideration proportioned to the candor and fairness of its presentation. On the other hand, the increase of these wages will add to the cost of everything made by the use of this coal, and will add to the cost of living for those perhaps more necessitous than those who regret a contract for a smaller wage, although it was then increased in consideration of the contract. If there are miners willing to work for the contract wage, it is difficult to see why they should not be allowed to do so in the interest of keeping down the cost of living generally. Also, if the cost of living is the reason for asking for higher wages, means might be found for lowering the cost of living, rather than raising the wage. For example, perhaps the miners could be fed and clothed cheaper than they can do it for themselves.

It might be well to allow individual miners who can earn a higher wage to seek it in other occupations, and to leave coal mining to those willing to conduct it on contract terms. These are times when workers who leave one job find another without the necessity of changing their overalls between bosses. That is labor's strongest argument, but it is not one which should be confined to organized labor. So long as there are men willing to take a wage fixed under a union contract they should be given the chance to do so. Otherwise it is the union edict which fixes the wage, and not the considerations of humanity which the union leaders know so well how to put forward.

DELAY MEANS DISASTER.

It is a fair argument of The World that if military service is to be voluntary, taxation should be placed on the same basis—a fair argument, and likely to serve its purpose of stimulating thought. The Kansas City Times carries the argument further. It suggests that we might call for volunteers to "build our bridges and rail-"roads, operate our mines and indus-"trial plants, and sail our merchant "ships." Men should not be permitted to believe that an all-powerful Government proposes to force them into military service. The Government is of the people, by the people. Most of the people have learned, all must be taught, that national defense is a common responsibility in a democracy, and that in times of peril all must serve the State, which is the people, in the fields in which they can render the best service. That is the whole meaning of universal service, of the "conscription" that has caused such an outcry. The obligation to serve has always been recognized. The training has been neglected. Therefore we must waste no time now, when our danger is so great, in starting the training.

A few men on the Military Committee of the House of Representatives, some of whom have consistently opposed every defense measure, propose to stand out against the formation of our new army on the principle of universal obligation. Seven men on that committee are dubious about that plan. Only nine members strongly favor it. There may, therefore, be an adverse report which will tend to delay the action, unless Congress hears the voice of the people. Delay cannot defeat the enactment of the bill, but it is perilous. It is to be hoped that the President will not countenance any compromise. We are already employing the volunteer system to increase the regular army to war strength and recruit the National Guard. It is not likely that even the 500,000 men needed for this purpose can be quickly obtained by the old method. It is certain that the first increment of the new army, 500,000 men more, cannot be assembled except by the adoption of universal service. The responsibility for failure will rest with all the people. We have learned by sad experience the disaster that always results from the employment of untrained troops in battle, and our troops cannot be trained unless they are assembled without delay. A leisurely pace will not suffice, and futile deliberations should be discountenanced.

THE ROAD TO VICTORY.

The road to victory, the guarantee of victory, the absolute assurance of victory, has to be found in one word, "ships," and a second word, "ships," and a third word, "ships."

Lloyd George's stress of the primary and cardinal need of the Allies, the sure means of making the submarine campaign fail, is not more emphatic than the action by which the Administration is undertaking to render to the Allies the supreme service of insuring them food and supplies. Within a year the Shipping Board expects to have built 3,000,000 tons of light wooden ships of 2,000 tons and upward. At more than a hundred private plants the orders of the board for these ships will be filled before anything else, except urgent naval construction. The lumber people have agreed to furnish the lumber at a reasonable figure. Manufacturers have agreed to do their part. The only difficulty is an adequate labor supply. According to the Shipping Board, 150,000 men will be needed in the various plants to carry out the building program on time. Since vessels of this kind are easily built, the labor required is not that of experienced shipbuilders.

The mobilization of that army of 150,000, the laying of the road to victory, the construction of these "wooden walls" of democracy, will be intrusted to the admirably competent hands of General Goethals. The builder of the Panama Canal takes up a task far more momentous for the future of the world. He is to be the chief engineer of the road to victory for the free nations.

The wooden fleet of more than a thousand ships, of which the first will be ready in six months, is far more important to the Allies than the naval, or later military, aid the United States can render.

A PARK-GRABBING SCHEME.

The tactics of park land grabbing make a diverting study. The grabbers are ingenious and tireless in their effort to create a precedent for park invasion. The improvement of Central Park West, so as to lessen the perils of traffic on that thoroughfare, has been under consideration for some years. Nothing has been done because the Board of Estimate and the street railroad company have not agreed on a plan of track removal. The latest proposal has been to cut off enough of the easterly sidewalk, along the Park, to permit the laying of one track there. This plan would still leave the problem unsolved, as north and south vehicular traffic would not be separated. But, in view of the more important subjects occupying the public mind, little attention was paid to it until the text of the bill introduced in the State Senate was examined.

It was found then that provision is made not only to remove the easterly sidewalk but also "to take such land "along the western side of the Central "Park as may be needed." That is to say, the "improvement" of Central Park West is to be secured by cutting off from Central Park a strip as broad as the improvers choose to make it, all the way from Fifty-ninth to 110th Street. This would, indeed, be a triumph for the despoilers of our parks. If it were accomplished, the defenders of the park system would be disarmed for all time.

Of course the conspiracy will fail, as all other evil designs on the parks have failed. But the vigilance of the people who prize our parks must never fail, and the improvement, on a rational plan, of Central Park West should not be longer delayed.

UNTO THIS LAST?

Lord Devonport, the British Food Controller, seems about to lay hands on the universal, perhaps the most cherished, of British comforts, enjoyments, social customs, prime national institutions. Wherever the British Empire is and wherever it isn't, from pole to pole, in cities and deserts, by sea and land, afternoon tea is a British ritual. The custom has been borrowed by other nations and infects the world. Even the Germans have borrowed it. Cabinet Minister and the costermonger, all ranks, classes, conditions, worship at the tea shrine. The House of Commons can hardly do business without afternoon tea. It is part of the British social constitution.

Lord Devonport is variously reported as resolved to "regulate" afternoon tea and as bound to suppress it. The latter seems a rash course. Probably he is going to restrict the amount, monstrous in the aggregate, of cakes and tarts and "biscuits" and what not that accompanies afternoon tea. The suppression of the rite itself is unthinkable; but so were a lot of other things that have happened.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

His Thought Was All for His Dog!

As Philip Gibbs isn't one of the war correspondents who are obliged to invent picturesque, pathetic, tragical, or amusing incidents for the embellishment of their narratives, and is of the kind whose own observations supply more of such material than they can possibly use in their dispatches, it can safely be assumed that any story told by him as of his personal knowledge is true. Without timidity, therefore, can comment be made on Mr. Gibbs's tale of the German Brigadier among the prisoners at Arras who asked again and again of his captors whether any of them had seen anything of his little dog, and seemed to be thinking of nothing else.

There is, of course, an obvious element of the nearly incredible in this story, for the officer in question had just escaped with his life after enduring for days the constant threat of death under a bombardment of severity unprecedented even among the additions to military history made by the greatest of wars. He had seen a multitude of his fellow-officers and of his men killed or wounded by that bombardment. He might have been expected to think only of the serious reverse which the German arms had suffered, and to show the angry humiliation that for him naturally would follow the surrender by the thousand of German soldiers who had no more fight left in them. And it was of his dog that he spoke! Of his little dog! Of "my little dog that has been with me since the beginning of the war"!

It would be easy to see in this phenomenon an illustration of Prussian brutality and callousness, or of that curious sentimentality which exists side by side with the readiness to execute cruel and savage orders that has been so often displayed by Germans since Belgium and France were invaded. But this officer, as it happens, was not a Prussian, and it may well be that the loss of his dog loomed so large in his mind, not because he was a sentimental German, but because the affection and companionship of the little animal had created the only memories to which a mind sated with the horrors and terrors of war could for the moment still react.

Such phenomena are familiar enough to the psychiatrists, and they mean nothing except that to a continuous stimulus there ceases, after a while, to be any response from the weary brain.

Another Form of Enlistment.

A new and desirable emphasis will be given by the announcement, or rather by the disclosure, of what the women in the highest of Washington's official circles are doing to the fact that a general resort to wise economy, especially in regard to food, is now of only secondary importance to the effort making all over the country to increase production. These ladies, it seems, have determined to live, from now until the war ends, a decidedly simpler life—to put on their tables a cheaper and less-diversified fare, and, as an essential aid in the elimination of unnecessary expenses, to abstain in considerable degree from the activities commonly and not very accurately called "social."

There be economists, of course, who have called attention to the serious disturbances of trade and industry that may follow such a change of habits as this on the part of people with money, and unquestionably it is better, in times of public stress, that such people should spend their money with reasonable freedom than that they should hoard it away to lie idle and useless in secret hiding places. The diversion of expenditures, however, is quite another thing from the suspension of them, and an intelligent simplification of life has to selfish miserliness only the most superficial of resemblances and produces none of its evil effects.

In a country like England the "example," as such, of royalty and the wearers of titles counts in the lower grades of society in a way for which we have no very near equivalent. That accounts for the cautious tone of the Washington dispatches about the planned economies of the Presidential and Cabinet ladies. They are too tactful to pose as the leaders of a movement, for that would be sure to excite not a little of irritation in a sensitive democracy. Instead, they let it be known merely that in the existing circumstances a rather strict refraining from indulgence in the non-necessaries of existence is now in order for all patriotic families, and they are tactful enough to be content with assuming that the arguments by which they were moved will move others.

The object at which all now should aim is not so much the saving of money—perhaps not at all the saving of money—as it is the turning of it in larger measure to such uses as will promote the general welfare and safety. That is true economy, and it can be—should be—practiced by all for what may be many days to come.

Another Name Is Needed.

It is a pity that something very much like a necessity exists, just now, for the frequent use of a word with as many repugnant associations as have come to cluster around the word "conscription." For most of us its significance is not the highly honorable one of its earliest employment, but is that of times when it meant the dragging of helpless men into armies to fight the battles of autocratic rulers in wars that were of interest or profit to those rulers alone.

There are countries where "conscription" means exactly that now, but they are few and fast becoming fewer, fortunately. Here, as one of our correspondents ingeniously put it yesterday, conscription will mean "not compulsion of the unwilling, but selection from the willing." That definition is correct, at least as regards all good citizens, and the element of inaccuracy, being created only by the little class of cowards and shirkers, is negligible.

The really strong antagonism to "conscription" here and now comes not from those who would enlist under the volunteer system, but from those who would not join the colors under any system if they could help it. Indeed, the most vehement advocates of universal service and training are the very men who did volunteer in the days when that was the only way to get into the army and navy.

For the Lawyers Who Enlist.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Now that we have at last taken our stand with the forces of civilization and humanity against the outlaw nation of Europe, it behooves every citizen to aid his country to the best of his ability. Some of us who were anxious to serve in the army or in the navy have been rejected because we had exceeded the age limit of 45 years. But as lawyers we can still be of service, although not at sea or on the firing line. A dispatch from Albany recently published reads as follows:

> Many lawyers who saw border service suffered heavily in loss of clients, and in some cases a practice built up by years of effort was ruined. To make this impossible in the future General Stotesbury has written to Charles E. Hughes, President of the State Bar Association, urging him to have the lawyers of each county form a committee to take over the work of any member called out on State or Federal duty, without expense to the absent lawyer.

It needs no argument to demonstrate that the lawyer who goes to the front with his regiment is in effect temporarily suspended from the practice of his profession, and is liable to suffer loss of business and clients.

I have already written to the Hon. Charles E. Hughes, as President of our New York State Bar Association, offering to take over and conduct the law business of any attorney who may be called upon for military or naval duties without expense to him during such necessary absence.

It might be well for the members of the bar of New York City and State who are similarly situated to take concerted action along these lines, and thus encourage enlistments among the younger members of the profession, who might otherwise feel apprehension and evince hesitation in the matter of enlistment. A Friend of American Navy Men.

Just half a century ago an English lad named Charles J. Petherick began work as a messenger in the United States Government Dispatch Agency in London. In time he became managing clerk. When his chief, the late B. F. Stevens, died, fifteen years ago, and the writer of this note succeeded him, Mr. Petherick became in name, as he had long been in fact, deputy dispatch agent, and he has held this modest but arduous and responsible post ever since. He himself would have succeeded Mr. Stevens as agent but that he was a British subject, and therefore ineligible to hold so confidential a position in connection with our State and Navy Departments.

In addition to discharging his official duties intelligently, tactfully, and conscientiously, Mr. Petherick, in an extra-official capacity, has been the friend and helper of virtually every American naval officer who has visited London within the last thirty or thirty-five years. The Admirals of today he first knew as junior—very junior—officers. His acquaintances in the navy are numbered by the hundred, and every acquaintance is a friend. And he is very much in the good books of their wives and daughters as well.

So no one but Mr. Petherick himself was surprised when on March 27 he was called to the embassy and made to listen to a graceful little speech by Ambassador Page, expressing official appreciation of his services during the fifty years just closed, and the personal esteem and affection of which he is the object, a ceremony preliminary to the presentation of a silver bowl, accompanied by a letter signed by all the members of the staff of the embassy to which the agency is attached.

The agency itself, by the way, owing to the increase of work since the European war began, has been forced to move into larger quarters in Victoria Street, not far from the embassy, and Trafalgar Square, which knew it for so many decades, now knows it no more. JOSEPH B. GILDER.

GREETS RUSSIA AND CHINA.

American Rights League Cables Congratulations.

The American Rights League, of which George Haven Putnam is President, made public last night copies of cablegrams that have gone forward on behalf of the league to the Minister of Foreign Affairs in Petrograd and the President of the Republic of China. These are the messages:

> Milukoff, Minister, Petrograd, Russia:
>
> Greetings and best wishes to Russia's democratic Government, which expresses the ideal for which American independence was created.
>

> Li Yuan-Heng, President, Peking, China:
>
> Congratulations on break with Germany and your determination to maintain China's rights.
>

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It has generally been conceded that, at the end of the war, in case of an Entente victory, France will get back Alsace-Lorraine, that England will get the German colonies which she has taken, that Belgium, Russia, and all the others will get their part, whether in money or territory. However, it seems to be taken for granted that the United States wants nothing, and will, therefore, get nothing. It is perfectly true that this country asks and desires neither additional territory nor a money indemnity, but she does desire to retain what territory she already has and to maintain peace within her borders.

Now, there is one, and only one, sure way of security for us, and that is through the continued enforcement of the Monroe Doctrine. Of course the United States is not going to war in order that France may get Alsace-Lorraine, nor that Russia may get the Dardanelles, nor does any one suppose that the Entente Allies, as a primary object, are fighting for territory and money indemnities; but if, as a matter of fact, they do get these things through our help, is there any reason why, at the close of the war, the United States should not demand that the Monroe Doctrine be recognized as and made a part of the international law? It certainly seems that we will be entitled to at least that much. J. RANDOLPH TUCKER.

The New Costa Rican Government.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am wondering more and more each day why President Wilson does not recognize the Government of Senor Tinoco, who was recently elected President of Costa Rica. I knew that Mr. Wilson declared soon after taking office four years ago that he would not extend a welcome hand to any one coming to power in America by means of deceit, treachery, and assassination, and he has since his first utterance to that effect repeated it more than once. Yet we know he did recognize as the Government of Peru a party who gained power by treachery and assassination, also Carranza before his farce of an election, and the new Government of Russia has been recognized while there are grave doubts as to its stability. There is no doubt in the minds of disinterested people who know the conditions in Costa Rica that the newly installed Goverment has the unqualified support of the better class there, and that its sympathies are all with the United States, while the late President Gonzalez and his Cabinet were strongly pro-German. In our present circumstances it would seem an act of policy on our part to secure and retain the good-will of all the Central and South American countries, even if we are not influenced by other considerations in doing so. Proud of the South.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is with unbridled pride that we Southerners who are in New York watch the general trend of the nation in this great crisis. In reviewing the facts leading up to President Wilson's address to Congress and the declaration of war by that body, there seemed never to have been any doubt in diplomatic circles but that the South "stood pat" for all the principles for which our forefathers fought and upon which our very nation has been built. There was more or less speculation as to what other sections of the country might do, but as to the South none. We find the spirit of 1917 as great as that of '76 or '61, and the entire South standing as a single person.

The South has ever been willing to give its last penny, to shed its last drop of blood, for the cause of justice and mercy. When we consider that our country is not entering this gigantic war of the nations for any financial gain, but for moral reasons, tears come to our eyes as we thank God for the privilege of having been born in a section which so nobly proved that it holds moral obligations and Christianity above life itself.

Teachers for Our Armies.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At a time when there is so much discussion of the difficulty of obtaining officers competent to train our proposed armies it seems to be important that we should not lose sight of the fact that England and France must have thousands of officers who have been wounded and retired because they are no longer physically able to fight. These men have been trained in actual war and should be the best teachers. I believe that if our Government should ask the Governments of France and England to detail several thousand such officers the effect would be most beneficial from a military point of view and of tremendous advantage to our country in bringing home to many of our people some sense of the reality of the war.

To Save Gasoline.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Economy in the use of food supplies and elimination of waste of those commodities that we all regard as necessities is a duty, and most properly being brought to the attention of the public.

Permit me to suggest that gasoline be added to this list of necessities, thousands of gallons of which are being used thoughtlessly, if not wastefully.

The business of the army and navy will call for large additional amounts of this fuel, every business with transportation features connected with it will require increasing quantities. Let those of us who are using it for pleasure do our bit by limiting our consumption to necessity—not for the saving that will result directly to our own pockets, but that there may be more of it available for the work which is absolutely necessary, and thereby reduce, or, at least, prevent, the rise in the cost of commodities due to its shortage for commercial, army, and navy purposes.

LEADERSHIP.

Lo, we are gathering in our might,
A great tumultuous throng that thrills
With one high purpose for the right,
But many myriad wills!

For many myriad ways of men
Are in our beings, drawing us
Hither and yon and back again,
In counsels riotous.

Now, Lord of Hosts, on whom we call,
Grant that a leader may arise
To mold in one the wills of all
Upon this high emprise!

Who needs no guidance but the light
That many counsels cannot dim—
His own soul's passion, fierce and white,
That draws men after him;

His own soul's high vicegerency
That draws himself as we are drawn;
And, trusting in himself, shall we Trust in him, following on!

GERMAN DEMOCRATIZATION.

The Aim of the War and the Basis of a Lasting Peace.

South Bethlehem, Penn., April 12, 1917.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The present generation of middle-aged Germans has been so thoroughly schooled in the duty of absolute obedience to the will of the "Fatherland," as issued by military headquarters in Berlin, that no greater exhibition of childlike and implicit faith in the virtue of unquestioning obedience to the "powers that be" has been seen in the history of the world. As a result, military headquarters in Berlin has become the ruler of the actions, the thoughts, and even of the conscience of the German people. As a further result, personal freedom, as we understand it in America, liberty of speech, justice in the courts, (in military versus civil cases,) the right of the people's representatives to guide the policy of the Government; in short, liberty and freedom and government by the people have been virtually dead in Germany for many years. The few Socialists brave enough to speak for the people's rights have been persecuted and imprisoned. So deeply are the German people delivered into the hands of a scheming, ambitious, relentless military autocracy that they do not even realize their true situation; they believe every statement made to them by their military overlords, and make every sacrifice at the supposed call of the "Fatherland" issued from Berlin.

Under such conditions, reform from inside appears nearly hopeless, except as it may come from the brave words of a few brave men yet left with clear vision of the situation; or must it come by the compulsion of the sword of their enemies? But until reform does come, until this basic condition is fundamentally changed, until the German people have taken into their own hands the government of their country and the determination of its policies—just so long will the ruling military caste use the vast power confided to it for its own unscrupulous and ambitious ends, and just so long will real peace in Europe be a chimera.

No guarantee of peace, therefore, will be worth the paper it is written on until the German people discard the Prussian overlordship. This must be the final aim and object of the continuance of the war—all other objects are relatively minor details. The Entente Allies call it the abolition of "German militarism," but this expressed aim is misunderstood in Germany, even by the most enlightened Germans. Listen to what Philipp Scheidemann, Chairman of the German Socialist Party, said in his historic speech in the Reichstag:

> Our enemies have a very different conception of the "militarism" which they wish to destroy than we. They wish to exterminate our armies in which our sons and brothers are fighting. That which we call militarism, and which we ourselves combat, is a question to be decided upon within the German frontiers.

Sazonoff, the great Russian Minister, writes with characteristic Slavic insight:

> Let the German people know—I have not the least objection to this—that if they themselves like to destroy their militarism absolutely, then the war will come to an end; but as for us, we shall never stop for one moment until we are satisfied that the curse of Prussianism is lifted from the human race.

Sazonoff meant just what we have been urging, but his sentence needed further explanation to the German people; they misunderstood his terms. What a colossal pity that the Entente reply did not take this subject for its text, and declare "the democratization of the German Government" as the real and necessary object to be attained by the war, explaining that the German people could do it themselves, and that the world would prefer to see them do it, but that done it must be, somehow or other, from inside or from outside, as the only possible guarantee of lasting peace.

The greatest present service that any true friend of the German people can do to Germany and the cause of peace, to the world and to the rebirth of civilization, is to endeavor in every way to enlighten Germans upon the topic just discussed. It is vital; it is necessary; it is the only rift in the clouds signaling the way toward peace on earth.

How to Answer a Sentry.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The unfortunate shootings within the last few days have fastened the attention of the New York population on the guardsmen doing sentry duty and lead to much speculation as to what may be expected in the future. The average citizen of New York City is generally unfamiliar with the duties of a sentry and the course of conduct that must be observed toward the latter.

A regular army regulation which knows no exception provides that every one must respect a sentry. General Wood when challenged by a sentry halts and will not advance another step until so requested. The President of the United States adopts a similar course, and thus should it be down to the humblest citizen.

Therefore, if an olive drab figure suddenly appears out of the gloaming carrying his piece at port arms and commands "Halt!" do not advance. Answer truthfully the questions he asks as to your identity, &c., and remain stationary during this interview. Do whatever you are ordered to do, but above all things do not attempt to advance unless so requested. One step may prove fatal.

An Agreement with Russia.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Concerning the possibility of the United States lending money and extending credit to her various allies in the present crisis, why wouldn't it be prudent, and also precautionary, while aiding Russia, to make the following provision with her:

> That no money or credit is to be extended to Russia unless it be definitely understood that she is not to make a separate peace with Germany; also that no American goods or munitions are to be shipped to Russia unless the same provision is made?

To Force Cultivation of the Soil.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I suggest that in view of the existing conditions a Federal law be passed to the effect that any person or persons owning vacant ground be either compelled to cultivate the same or permit any one else with proper credentials to do so without charge. This law should become operative at once. I am sure that its enactment would prove of incalculable benefit to the nation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Under no circumstances should we encourage or permit Colonel Roosevelt to leave American soil if love and argument can prevent it. He is such a national asset for enthusiasm, especially if we get in a tight place or very dark days come, that we need him right here at home.

CALLS RED CROSS COUNCIL.

President Names 24 Leading Men to Lay Financing Plans.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—President Wilson named a committee of twenty-four men today to decide on a method of financing the work of the American Red Cross. They are:

Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr., New York; Seward Prosser, New York; Cleveland H. Dodge, New York; Frank Stuyvesant Peabody, Chicago; Julius Rosenwald, Chicago; Charles D. Norton, New York; Vance McCormick, Harrisburg, Penn.; H. P. Davison, New York; Henry Morgenthau, New York; Eliot Goodwin, Washington, D. C.; Louis W. Hill, St. Paul, Minn.; Frank B. Hayne, New Orleans, La.; John B. Miller, Los Angeles, Cal.; Richard F. Grant, Cleveland, Ohio; Judge George B. Taliaferro, San Antonio, Texas; Lawrence C. Phipps, Sr., Denver, Col.; Harry Corbett, Portland, Ore.; Joseph P. Tumulty, Washington, D. C.; F. L. Higginson, Jr., Boston; George Wharton Pepper, Philadelphia; Festus J. Wade, St. Louis; John Wanamaker, Philadelphia; Thomas F. Ryan, Washington, D. C., and William H. Crocker, San Francisco.

"The President proposes to designate a day in May on which the entire nation shall concentrate its attention toward the vitally important matter of financing the American National Red Cross for its responsibilities both toward soldiers and non-combatants. The President requests that you will attend a meeting at the office of the American Red Cross in Washington of a small committee of representative men from various parts of the country to consider this matter. The meeting will be held on Saturday, April 21, at 10:30 A. M."

PAY INCOME TAX EARLY.

Collector Asks the "Financially Patriotic" Not to Wait Until June.

William H. Edwards, Collector of Internal Revenue for the Second District, which includes Lower Manhattan Island, yesterday made an appeal to Federal income taxpayers to be "financially patriotic," as he termed it, by paying their taxes ahead of time in order to help the Government. His appeal reads as follows:

> In view of the war conditions, the Government will appreciate the prompt payment of the income tax due June 15, 1917, as shown by the notice herewith. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has no power under the law to make any rebate or discount on such anticipated payments, but hopes, in view of the conditions now facing the country, that a ready and large response may be made to this request. If upon receipts of this notice you are able to make such payment without inconvenience to yourself, you will be helping the Government in this substantial way.

The district includes the leading Wall Street institutions and corporations, as well as many of the largest payers of individual income taxes. Collector Edwards estimates this year's collections will be $83,000,000, compared with about one-half that sum last year.

SPURS STATES TO DEFENSE.

National Council Urges a General Census of Resources.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The Council of National Defense has sent letters to the Governors of all States asking them to create committees with broad powers to co-operate with the council in the work of organizing the country for the war. These committees will be known as State Councils of Defense, and will be made representative of the States' resources. They are already in existence in some States.

"The matter of State censuses requires the most immediate attention in this general plan of co-operation," a statement issued by the council today says. "The council has in its records the full industrial census taken by the Committee on Industrial Preparedness of the Naval Consulting Board, consisting of more than 25,000 completed reports from all industries of the country whose products may be needed for the use of the army and navy. 'Man power' and industrial censuses have been taken in Connecticut and are being considered in other States. New York, New Jersey, and Ohio have already passed bills, and other States are preparing to take the same action."

DENIES BERNSTORFF CHARGE

Nobleman Tells of "Incredible Courtesy" of Halifax Searchers.

AMSTERDAM, April 13, (via London.)—The American correspondent of the Maasbode of Rotterdam, who returned from the United States on the steamer with Count von Bernstorff, writes an article protesting against reports of bad treatment by the British authorities at Halifax of the former German Ambassador at Washington and members of his party. The writer is Chevalier van der Schueren, a Dutch nobleman, who is a relative of the Dutch Minister at the Vatican. He writes:

"It is a pity that Count von Bernstorff has given way to caricaturing the situation, but when he invokes the testimony of his non-German co-passengers I am bound to state that, while the protracted period of search at Halifax was tiresome business, it was made bearable by the incredible courtesy and willingness of the British staff charged with the search of the vessel, courtesy which was the subject of discussion by all the passengers."

Germany has addressed a protest to the United States regarding alleged indignities suffered by members of the Bernstorff party at Halifax.

In Defense of Miss Rankin.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I be permitted a little space to say a word in behalf of the first woman Representative in Congress? It seems to me that courtesy and justice demand that she should receive no more critical attention for her actions and votes from editors or correspondents than would the man who might have been elected in her place or any other new member of Congress.

Also it should be insisted that Miss Rankin does not represent women, but her own State and her personal convictions.

For the last two years I have talked and written that it was our duty to join the Allies in the defense of liberty and democracy. Had I been in Congress I must have made a strong if brief speech for war and voted a hearty aye.

No woman can represent all women any more than one man represents all men. Let us, either men or women, not be too savage or unkindly critical of a young woman who in a difficult, untried position acts conscientiously according to her lights.

ANNIE S. PECK.

No American Supplies for Germany.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was gratified by Dr. Bohn's clear statement of "How America Is Supplying Germany." Many of us have known that large quantities of supplies sent to "neutral" countries in Europe have found their way across the borders into Germany, and that Germany's whining protest that we were the cause of the prolongation of the war through sending supplies to the Allies was hypocritical and untrue. Dr. Bohn's article shows that Germany has been getting the greater part of certain necessary supplies. An embargo against shipment of supplies to Germany's allies—the so-called "neutral" countries, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland, Holland, Denmark—should be established, except, possibly, for such supplies as are really needed by these countries.

I wish that every member of Congress could have Dr. Bohn's article presented to him. It is the duty of Congress to be very alert to prevent any further aid to the enemy. LYMAN A. BEST.

'DIAMOND JIM' BRADY DIES WHILE ASLEEP

Noted Figure of Broadway's Night Life and Keen Steel Salesman.

JEWELS TO METROPOLITAN

Bulk of Fortune of from $10,000,000 to $20,000,000 May Go to Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 13.—James Buchanan Brady of New York died this morning from a heart attack at the age of 61. He literally slept into death, for his constant attendant had no warning of the fatal stroke.

"Diamond Jim" Brady's death was unexpected, for he had shown marked improvement following a relapse about ten days ago. He was on the Boardwalk yesterday and retired last night feeling much better. He called for his valet at 4:30 A. M. and asked for water, and his last word was a jest with the servant. He then went peacefully to sleep and the man did not attempt to awaken him until 8:30, an hour later than usual. He failed to respond and Dr. Clarence L. Andrews stated that he had been dead only five minutes.

Mr. Brady had been here since December in his fight to recover his health, his serious condition being superinduced by acute indigestion. In addition to Dr. Andrews, Drs. Thomas R. Brown, William H. Thayer and Hugh Young of Johns Hopkins, and Dr. Evan Evans of New York, his family physician, had been brought into consultation.

"Diamond Jim" maintained an apartment here costing $1,000 weekly. He had a glass encased veranda built around his suite and spent hours watching the crowds along the Boardwalk.

He caused a sensation here recently by purchasing a pair of glasses set with rose diamonds for his dog for $6,500.

BALTIMORE, April 13.—It is understood that James Buchanan Brady, who died to-day in Atlantic City, left a great sum of money to Johns Hopkins Hospital, to be used in developing and extending the Brady Urological Clinic, which was founded by him. It is believed that the bequest is in the neighborhood of $1,000,000.

"Diamond Jim" Brady was famed from Broadway to the Golden Gate as the best-known man in the night life of Broadway, an indefatigable first-nighter, and a tireless dancer. He won his title because he owned an unrivaled collection of jewels that he wore in rotation and proudly. Though he was fond of gay company and was an almost nightly figure where the white lights shine, he never took a drink and he never smoked. Each must have a good time in his own way was a saying of "Diamond Jim," and while he placed no restriction on the good time of his friends he confined his to the pleasure he got in their society, in the bestowal of largess, in dancing and in the wearing of his fortune in jewels.

The friends of "Diamond Jim" tell a thousand stories about his habits, peculiarities, and doings, for collecting jewels was secondary to the collection of friends. He liked elaborate meals and the company of pretty women, and though from 9 in the morning until 5 at night he would sit in his office at 170 Broadway, a keen man of business, ever ready to sell the railroads everything they needed from a seat cushion to a steel car, night and the wee sma' hours found him where the white lights glowed. One night he would be resplendent in diamonds and the next aglitter with rubies. Probably he knew how many suits of clothes he had but it is safe to say that no one else did. He did not dress flashily, but always in the forefront of fashion.

Mr. Brady began to gather jewels about twenty-five years ago. He had a peculiar fondness for diamonds, but his passion extended to all sorts of precious stones. "My pets," he often called them. He wore a $9,000 watch and in the handle of an umbrella he had set a jewel worth $1,500. His garter clasps, his suspender buckles, and even his underwear were ornamented with jewels.

Jewels for Metropolitan Museum.

His collection, it is reported, has been left to the Metropolitan Museum of Art. He had twenty-one sets of jewels, scarf pin, ring, shirt studs, and cuff links, and each set represented, it is said, approximately $50,000. So well known were his sets that no thief cared to tackle him, and Joseph Smith, head detective at the Waldorf-Astoria, where Mr. Brady took lunch each day, said that "Diamond Jim" never had to call for help to protect his jewels.

In 1915 he dropped a $4,000 diamond out of his cuff link while dancing in a well-known café. It was found by a cotton broker, who returned it to him personally and was thereupon enrolled in the long list of "Diamond Jim's" friends. Sometimes Mr. Brady deplored the fact that he was called one of the best-advertised men in the United States, but this was not because he sought publicity, but rather because he lived continually in the spotlight of New York life. Personally he was an exceptionally sweet-tempered man, who would go to the limit for a friend or to help some one in distress.

It was said that one could tell the day of the week by looking at the jewels Mr. Brady wore, for he wore them in strict rotation, only varying the order in honor of some special festive occasion. No. 1 was a diamond and ruby set, the piece de resistance being a great diamond ring surrounded by rubies. It was so large that it covered three fingers from the base to the first kunckle.

"Diamond Jim" once said, "Outside of my diamonds I have no vice." He also declared that New York was the most extravagant place in the world, but he added, "I like it." He admitted his own extravagance, but said that in all his life he had never spent a dollar until he had earned it. He said this of the Broadway he loved:

"Some people spend money they haven't got, or else give their money for nothing, just to show they can spend. A man will give a cloakroom boy a dollar for handing him his hat. A man will order a dinner of fifteen or sixteen dishes, and half a dozen bottles of wine altogether. A man has a spat with a woman in a restaurant, breaks the $350 fan he had given her, then says, 'Never mind, I'll get you another tomorrow,' and he did. That's Broadway for you."

When the dancing craze came, "Diamond Jim," who had been an indifferent dancer, learned all the latest steps, and could only be found at night where the air was filled with the sound of the one-step or some other dance. He spent a fortune each year entertaining his friends. Only a few weeks ago he gave the Boardwalk a sensation when he appeared wearing a $3,500 flag. The base is platinum and the color scheme is worked out in precious stones.

A Keen Man of Business.

Mr. Brady was, however, a keen business man, as the fortune he made testified. He was born in Cedar Street, this city, on Aug. 12, 1856, and was educated in the public schools. He began his career as a messenger boy in the offices of the New York Central Railroad, and later found employment with the firm of Manning, Maxwell & Moore, machinery manufacturers. He showed decided ability as a salesman, and it was through that channel that he won success. When a young man he became identified with the Fox Pressed Steel Car Company, and subsequently the Pressed Steel Car Company, and finally with the Standard Car Company, with which company he had been identified since its organization fifteen years ago. He was the Vice President of the company at the time of his death. He was also President and Director of the Independent Pneumatic Tool Company, Director of Manning, Maxwell & Moore, Director of the United Injector Company, Vice President of the Keith Car and Manufacturing Company, Vice President of the Osgood-Bradley Car Company, Director of the Consolidated Safety Valve Company, and Director of the Union Injector Company. His fortune has been estimated at between $10,000,000 and $20,000,000.

One of his most intimate friends was Fred Housman, a broker and member of A. A. Housman & Co. Mr. Housman said yesterday:

"Jim Brady was one of the greatest men this country has produced. Not only as a salesman, but as a real man. There never was an appeal made to him for money or clothes by man or woman to which he did not respond. He told me in Atlantic City this week, when he realized he was about to die, that he did not care to see his friends for fear they would feel it was the last time. He never touched liquor, tobacco, tea, or coffee, but he certainly was an eater, being particularly fond of sweets. I have seen him eat a pound of candy in five minutes.

"His will undoubtedly will be found to be one of the most remarkable documents of its kind. Johns Hopkins Hospital will get most of his money. One of his last requests to me was that his body be cremated. Jim Brady started as a messenger boy in the Grand Central Station. He met Charles Moore, sold a hacksaw for him, was engaged as a salesman, and had to borrow suitable clothes for his start. I never knew him to tell a lie, and I think that was, in part, responsible for his success."

$200,000 for Johns Hopkins.

In 1912 Mr. Brady gave to Johns Hopkins $200,000 to build a hospital for the treatment of urology, and agreed to give an annual sum of $15,000 for its support and maintenance. He did this in gratitude for his own treatment there, when, as he said, "they installed a new stomach" for him.

"I want to do what I can to help the men who suffer," he said in expressing regret over the publicity that followed his gift. It is believed that Johns Hopkins will receive a great share of his fortune. One of his last requests to Fred Housman, a New York broker and a close personal friend, was that his body be cremated.

In 1894 he was a witness before the Interstate Commerce Commission, then inquiring into the affairs of the New Haven Railroad. He was the personal friend and business associate of Charles S. Mellen. Mr. Brady testified that he had been awarded contracts at times for $7,500,000. He said that though he gave away hundreds of thousands of dollars every year to friends he liked, he had never given a cent to any member of any company with which he did business.

Mr. Brady was unmarried. He left a brother, Daniel M. Brady of New York, and a sister, Mrs. Hattie E. Mathieu of East Jeffrey, N. H. He was a member of St. Jean the Baptist Church, Seventy-sixth Street and Lexington Avenue.

The body reached this city last night on a special train which was met at the Pennsylvania Terminal by prominent persons who were friends and business associates of Mr. Brady. The body was escorted to his house at 7 West Eighty-sixth Street. The funeral will be held on Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock in St. Anges's Roman Catholic Church in Forty-third Street, near Lexington Avenue.

WILL WEAR COLONIAL GOWNS

Descendants of Colonial families wearing gowns inherited from their ancestors will appear in a "fashion parade" for the benefit of the American Red Cross at the home of Mrs. Arthur Sinclair, at 243 Jamaica Avenue, Flushing, this afternoon. The earliest costume of those to be shown has been in the family of Mrs. A. H. Crombie since 1740. It will be worn by Miss Nadine Nash.

Miss Anna Hall will wear the wedding gown of her great-great-grandmother, who was married in 1800. Miss Rita Bowne will wear the wedding dress of her great-grandmother. A dress belonging to Mrs. Frank Saxe, which was worn by her grandmother at the ball given in New York for the Prince of Wales, afterward King Edward, will be exhibited also.

COLONEL AT SON'S WEDDING

Discusses War Plans Before Leaving for Boston.

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt left last night on the midnight train on the New Haven Railroad for Boston, Mass., and at noon today he will attend the wedding there of his son, Archibald B. Roosevelt, to Miss Grace S. Lockwood, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas St. John Lockwood of 111 Bay State Road. Announcement of the engagement was made last Friday, and the marriage was set for an early date, as Mr. Roosevelt is subject to call at any time for military duty as a reserve officer.

Before boarding his train the Colonel spent a few hours in town discussing his proposed army division with some of the men who will serve with him as officers if the Administration grants him permission to go ahead with recruiting. He had no statement to make for publication. The Colonel expects to return to this city tonight, and will go immediately to Oyster Bay, where he will stay pending the decision of the War Department and other Administration officials in regard to his request to go at once to France.

In the meantime the preliminary work of organizing the division is under a full head of steam. T. C. Desmond, who is organizing a regiment of engineers, reports that it is practically at "war strength," and many hundreds of other applicants are in touch with the Colonel.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 13.—Colonel Roosevelt and his family arrived at the Hotel Victoria tonight. Three suites were reserved for the party. Quentin Roosevelt, a student at Harvard, and his brother Archibald met their father at the hotel. The New York party consisted of the Colonel and Mrs. Roosevelt, Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, Dr. and Mrs. Richard Derby, John Keen Roosevelt, and Mr. and Mrs. George E. Roosevelt.

JOSEPH IS TO STAY WITH REAL PARENTS

CALLED FOR HIS BROTHER

Boy Would Not Eat Breakfast in Home of Luxury, So Is with Petsonks for Good.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo D. Shire of 41 West Eighty-second Street have finally abandoned all claim to little Joseph Petsonk, whom they took from a public institution several months ago intending to adopt him, and hereafter he will live with his mother, Mrs. Hannah Petsonk, at 893 Union Avenue, the Bronx, instead of at the luxurious residence of the Shires.

Just before the time set for the legal proceedings which would make the boy their son under the name of George Bernard Shire, Mrs. Petsonk appeared and proved her claim. Mr. Shire feels that the boy would be happier with her, and Mrs. Petsonk, while willing to give him up because of the benefits he would receive, said last night she would do everything to provide a good home for him. He will not have a governess, however. A statement was given to the newspapers yesterday by Mr. Shire which read in part as follows:

"About a year ago we decided to adopt a child and applied to the Child Placing Agency of the State Charities Aid Association. We informed the people in charge that we wanted to adopt a child and we made it plain that we did not wish to adopt a child who had any known relatives or connections. After making a careful examination of their records we found a little boy who was known as Joseph Bowrach.

Mr. Shire then reviewed how Mrs. Petsonk, because of poverty, had been compelled to give little Joseph to the care of charity, and through shame at the act had given him the name of Bowrach and a false address. Because of this no trace of a relative had been found. Then Mr. Shire continued:

"When he came to our home he received the same care that one of our own would have had. We had this child in our possession for nearly a year, and were ready to adopt him when we were notified by the State Charities Aid Association that the father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Petsonk, wished to obtain possession of the child and were able to provide a suitable home for him. Before Justice Guy gave his decision as to whether or not the child had been wilfully abandoned we concluded we did not wish to keep the child from his real parents, and on March 28 sent the child to his parents' home, and, so that the child might feel at home there, we had previously sent his toys, clothes, bed and all his belongings. We had considered the matter closed.

"On Sunday, April 1, however, a friend of Mrs. Petsonk telephoned to us saying that she had had several talks with the mother. She had pointed out the injustice that she was doing to the child, and she told us that the parents wished to return the child to us, inasmuch as they had realized that he was a stranger to them in manners and in language. This friend of Mrs. Petsonk suggested an interview with the parents, to which I agreed.

"At this meeting Mr. and Mrs. Petsonk, the child, their friend, my lawyer, and I were present. My lawyer had prepared a release paper and asked them if they were willing to sign it and also appear in court for the final adoption later. Before considering signing the paper they insisted on certain conditions, which I refused to accede to.

"However, I took the child home with me in order to see whether or not he seemed contented with us. He seemed very unhappy at my home and continually asked to be taken back. 'I want to be taken back to my mamma and my brother Simon,' he said. In fact, he refused to eat his breakfast in the morning, so I returned him that morning to his parents, and the child appeared to be happy with them. After careful consideration we again came to the conclusion that the natural place for the child was with his own parents, particularly as the child seemed happy and satisfied with them. After this experience we feel that the child would never be wholly our own and contented permanently with us, since he has blood relations who live so near."

Hoadley Wedding April 25.

Miss Louise R. Hoadley and Ellery James, a son of Henry A. James, will be married at 3 o'clock on Wednesday, April 25, in St. Bartholomew's Church. They were to marry in June at Southampton, but as Mr. James has joined the officers' reserve corps of Yale University the date for the wedding has been advanced. Miss Hoadley will have her sister, Miss Helen A. Hoadley, as her maid of honor, and the other attendants will be Miss Edith R. Betts as flower girl and Mrs. Shepard Krech and the Misses Dorothy James, a sister of the bridegroom; Angeline Krech, Isabella Banks Taylor, Edith McKeever and Josephine de Gersdorff. Mr. James will have Oliver B. Jennings as his best man. The ushers have not been selected.

Plans for Taft-O'Neill Wedding.

Walbridge S. Taft will be best man for his brother, William Howard Taft, 2d, at his marriage next Wednesday to Miss Marguerite Temple O'Neill, daughter of Mrs. Joseph A. O'Neill of Pittsburgh. George Hogg Snowden and Graham Youngs of this city are to be the ushers. Miss O'Neill will have her sister, Miss Josephine T. O'Neill, as her only attendant. On Tuesday night Mrs. O'Neill is to give a dinner for the bridal party and the out-of-town guests, which will include Mr. and Mrs. Henry Waters Taft, the parents of the bridegroom.

Miss Silver Weds Tonight.

Miss Helen Mann Silver, daughter of Dr. Lewis Mann Silver, will marry Walter Douglass Foote of Pittsburgh, Penn., at 8 o'clock this evening at the home of her parents, 103 West Seventy-second Street. The bridesmaids will be the Misses Margaret Bird Silver, Katherine Cowenhoven of Brooklyn, Martha Serrill Shoemaker of Philadelphia and Katherine Decker. Harold Hall Hartshorne will be the best man and the ushers will be Harvard classmates of Mr. Foote.

Miss Walker's Wedding Advanced.

Miss Rosamond Walker and Lieutenant James O. Green, Jr., of the United States Army, will be married on Friday, April 20, at the home of the bride's cousin, Mrs. William Ray, 220 West 120th Street. Lieutenant Robert M. Bathurst, U. S. A., will be the best man and Miss Anna Louise Moore the maid of honor. The wedding had been arranged for the Autumn, but it was advanced because of the declaration of war.

Miss Baldwin to Wed.

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Baldwin of 405 Park Avenue and Garden City, L. I., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ruth Baldwin, to Captain Roger J. Alexander, Corps of Engineers, U. S. A. Captain Alexander was graduated from West Point in the class of 1907, and is now on duty in New York as assistant to the District Engineer Officer.

Bridal Party for Miss McConnell.

Miss Clara Eloise McConnell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Odell W. McConnell, who will be married to Adam G. Thomson today, entertained her bridal party at dinner last night at the Hotel St. Regis. Other guests came in for dancing which followed the dinner. The bridal party included Mrs. Theodore Schultze, who will be the matron of honor; Miss Margaret Dickson, the maid of honor, and the bridesmaids, the Misses Margaret Wardwell, Mary McReynolds, and Ruth Dunning.

LANSINGS LIMIT DINNERS.

To Make No New Engagements, Aiding Simplicity Movement.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The movement for simplified living with three-course dinners, two-course luncheons and tealess afternoons, to which official society is pledging itself under the banner of Mrs. Wilson, is obviously not to go into immediate effect, for there were several large entertainments today.

The Secretary of State and Mrs. Lansing, who are among the earnest supporters of the reform movement, will decline all future invitations to formal dinners, but will keep the engagements already made, which run well into May, at the rate of two dinner parties a week. The Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Lane are also curtailing their acceptances.

Hosts and hostesses whose invitations to formal dinners were issued prior to the declaration of war will keep these engagements as a matter of course, but if they wish to win the approval of the Administration they will follow the example of the Governor of the Federal Reserve Board and Mrs. Hamlin, who gave the first of the simple dinners last evening with a company of eighteen covers and the following menu:

Cream of Oyster Soup.
Filet of Beef with Asparagus.
Mushrooms and Peas.
Ice Cream, Strawberries, and Cake.

Fully a score of women prominent in resident as well as official circles have signed a pledge circulated today by Mrs. William C. Eustis, Mrs. Medill McCormick, Mrs. A. P. Gardner and Mrs. Charles Hamlin, to serve: "No meal of more than three courses, to observe one meatless day each week, and to observe simplicity in dress and entertaining."

In line with the new economy policy orders were issued at the White House today to keep all expenses at a minimum.

CZAR UNDONE BY TIMIDITY.

Y. M. C. A. Hears Observer's Story, Also Claim as to Rio Roosevelt.

David L. Hough, an American not long out of Petrograd, told of the immediate causes of the Russian revolution, and General Rafael Reyes, ex-President of Colombia, asserted that he had anticipated Colonel Roosevelt in the discovery of the River of Doubt, now the Rio Roosevelt, in speaking last night at a dinner of the Twenty-third Street branch of the Y. M. C. A. at the Hotel Breslin.

Hough, who was a Captain of engineers during the Spanish-American war, spent five years in railroad work in Russia and had taken an active interest in the work of the Y. M. C. A. He left before the revolution was under way, but he said the people were heated to a revolutionary pitch last December, when Petrograd seethed with rumors that the members of the Russian ministry had sold out to Germany.

"A report which made the most profound impression on the Russian people," he said, "was that certain members of the Cabinet were in communication with the Kaiser by way of Stockholm and were seeking a separate peace. This and other indications that the members of the Czar's Cabinet were anxious to submit to Germany immediately caused the revolution."

The downfall of the Czar, he added, was made certain by failure to face the situation frankly. After agreeing to meet the leaders of the reform movement and to make substantial concessions, the Czar was caused suddenly to change his mind and, instead of holding the promised conferences, he hurried off to the army, where he expected support.

In claiming priority over Colonel Roosevelt in discovering the River of Doubt, General Reyes paid a tribute to the Colonel as an explorer. He did not deny that Roosevelt first explored and mapped the river for its length, General Reyes said that during ten years in his youth he and two of his brothers made extensive explorations, in the course of which he found the outlet of the river. "That was the River of Doubt," he said.

"In my belief the exploration of Mr. Roosevelt was by far more daring and more perilous than that of Stanley in Africa. But, in spite of this, justice and truth compel me to give this public testimonial regarding the discovery of the River of Doubt."

SOLDIERS HID ON VATERLAND

Twenty-five German soldiers in full uniform, cavalry, infantry, and artillery, were discovered below decks on the big liner Vaterland at Hoboken yesterday. But they were made of tin.

They were put into a box and sent to Dudley Field Malone, Collector of the Port, who decided that the best thing to do with the business would be to present them to Hans Ruser, Jr., son of the Vaterland's Captain, who is living with his mother at Hoboken, while the elder Ruser is on Ellis Island. This was done, greatly to the youngster's delight.

No report has been made by the engineering experts employed by the Government as to the damage done to the interned German ships below decks, and it is not expected that a report will be ready for two weeks.

As all the fires on the German liners were extinguished when they were taken over by the Government, the pumps could not be worked to get the water out of the bilges, which has to be done frequently to prevent water flowing into the holds. Collector Malone arranged yesterday with the New York Fire Department to have fireboats go alongside the steamships and pump out the bilges. An inspection of the hulls will be made next week.

About six hundred mechanics started yesterday to scrape the boilers and to replace small parts of the engines that may be missing.

The second session of the auction sale of paintings donated by the members of the Salmagundi Club, the proceeds from which will be used toward the purchase of the club's new home, 47 Fifth Avenue, brought $7,650 last evening. This, with Thursday's receipts, brings the total thus far to $14,396.

A painting by J. Francis Murphy fetched the highest price, $1,200. For an example by E. H. Potthast $500 was paid. A picture by Bruce Crane went for $405, one by F. Bollard Williams for $375, and one by F. J. Waugh for $355.

The sale will be concluded at the clubhouse, 14 West Twelfth Street, this evening.

SUPERSTITION HALTS CUPID.

Few Weddings Take Place on Friday, the 13th.

Friday, the thirteenth, was tabooed by society, especially by the brides. Easter week has been crowded with weddings, but there was a marked cessation yesterday in all nuptials. Even the war weddings, which have been occurring at the rate of half a dozen a day since the state of war was declared, dropped off.

The sudden slump in marriages for the day is said to be on account of the superstition of the brides. Today the rush will start again and continue unabated until next June.

The Rev. Mother Seraphine.

The Rev. Mother Seraphine of the College of New Rochelle died on Thursday night, in her seventy-ninth year. Before she joined the Ursaline Order she was Miss Lavinia Leonard, a descendant of the Leonard family which settled Leonardtown, Md. She joined the Roman Catholic Church when she was 15 years old. Mother Seraphine wrote many plays, among them "Ursula of Brittany," "Clothilde of France," "Joan of Arc," "Jane Grey," "Phantom Queens," and "A Princess of Meath." She left a manuscript on Dante.

KILLED IN WAR AT 70, PENNED DEATH NOTICE

Prof. Caspar Gregory of Leipsic, Philadelphia Born, Volunteered When the War Began.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 13, (via London.)—At the age of 70 years, Dr. Casper René Gregory, a native of Philadelphia, but for twenty-five years a professor of theology at the University of Leipsic, fell in battle on Monday.

When the war began the professor, despite his age, immediately insisted on joining the army as a common soldier, and was never known to shirk his duty either in the drumfire or the drudgery behind the lines. When on Nov. 6 last he celebrated his seventieth birthday at the front, he was made a Sergeant Major. When death overtook him on the field, he had reached the rank of Lieutenant and was leading a company in battle.

Dr. Gregory was educated at the University of Pennsylvania and at theological seminaries in Philadelphia and Princeton. He undertook many journeys of exploration for Greek manuscripts and for other scientific purposes. The results were embodied in books written in German, English, and French which are considered of great merit.

Since 1891 Dr. Gregory had been a regular professor of theology at Leipsic, but he often visited the United States, lecturing at the famous universities and seminaries. His last lecturing tour through Canada and the greater part of the United States was made in 11912. He was a member of many scientific societies. In Germany he played a political part of some importance in the so-called national social movement.

Professor Gregory wrote as long ago as Aug. 27, 1914, the notice of his own death virtually as it appeared in the advertising columns of the newspapers this morning, relatives adding only the date of the actual death. The notice reads:

"Caspar René Gregory, professor at Leipsic University, fell in battle for the German cause April 9, 1917. His family must not wear mourning or lament his loss, but should be happy that he is resting in God.

"Visits of condolence ought to be omitted. He extends a hearty farewell and a hopeful 'auf wiedersehen' to all his friends and acquaintances."

EXPLOSION WRECKS BOAT.

The Evelyn, Offered to the Navy, Destroyed Mysteriously.

A heavy explosion on the Ocean Beach ferryboat Evelyn yesterday morning at the Wilbur Dock in West Creek, Bay Shore, L. I., where the vessel was held several weeks pending acceptance by the Navy Department of an offer to put her in the Government service as a freight carrier, ignited the steamer, which was soon destroyed. John A. Wilbur, President of the corporation which owned the Evelyn, denied a report that the steamer had 1,000 gallons of kerosene on board. The quantity of fuel was small, he said, and there has been no fire under the boiler.

No persons had been permitted on the vessel for nearly a week, since mechanics were at work on the machinery.

FRANK S. WITHERBEE DEAD.

Prominent Iron Miner Was a Descendant of a Founder of Stowe, Mass.

Frank Spencer Witherbee, engaged in the iron mining industry and active in Republican politics, died yesterday at his home, 4 Fifth Avenue. He was born in Port Henry, N. Y., on May 12, 1852, son of John Witherbee, one of the founders of Stowe, Mass.

On his father's death in 1875, Mr. Witherbee entered the firm of Witherbee, Sherman & Co., which operated iron mines in the Lake Champlain district.

After his graduation from Yale in 1874 Mr. Witherbee took a trip around the world with his father. In 1912 he received the insignia of the Legion of Honor from the French Government in recognition of his services with the Champlain Tercentenary. He was a member of the Republican National Committee in the Harrison campaign, and was an Elector for Harrison and Taft. Mr. Witherbee was for many years a member of the Republican State Committee. He was active in the establishment of the Adirondack State Park and the Crown Point State Reservation. As a member of the Board of Trade he served on a number of canal commissions, and was one of the three Commissioners appointed by Colonel Roosevelt when he was Governor to report on the canal systems of Europe.

He was a governor and member of the Union, Sleepy Hollow, and Bankers' Clubs; a member of the Yale, Metropolitan, University, and Tuxedo Clubs; a member of the Sons of the Revolution and of the Pilgrim Society; a member of the Benedict Club of Port Henry, and the Travelers' Club of Paris. He was also a member of the New York Chamber of Commerce, the American Institute of Mining Engineers, a fellow of the American Geographical Society, and also interested in societies of learning, such as the Metropolitan Museum of Art, American, and New York State Historical Associations, &c.

Colonel L. P. Davison.

MANILA, P. I., April 13.—Colonel Lorenzo P. Davison, attached to the Twenty-seventh Infantry of Manila, died in this city today from injuries suffered a fortnight ago when he was thrown by his horse.

Colonel Davison was appointed to the Military Academy from Iowa in 1881. In 1898 he was Captain in the Fifth Infantry, and in 1899 Major of the Porto Rican battalion of infantry. In December, 1904, he retired with the rank of Major because of disability.

DANCED WITH LAFAYETTE.

Mrs. Hawkins, Who Died at Age of 102, Met the General When a Girl.

Mrs. Missouri A. Hawkins, who met General Lafayette when he revisited this country, died yesterday at her home, 20 West 104th Street, at the age of 102. For almost eighty years she had lived in this city. She was a girl of 11 years when she was presented to General Lafayette, and danced a minuet with him. Her father was on the Reception Committee that welcomed the General to New York, and Mrs. Hawkins once gave an account of her experience, in which she said:

"I tell you I was proud when he asked me to dance, as there were a half dozen girls of my age standing around. The General spoke English very well, and he shook hands with all of the girls. I remember I was dressed in a white dress—my mother saw to that—and a pair of black slippers without heels."

BREAD CARD'S CYCLE IS FULL OF TROUBLE

EVERY ONE MUST HAVE ONE

Used Slips of Cardboard Turned Back to Pulpmakers to be Made Over Again.

FOURTEENTH ARTICLE.

Much has been written about the efforts of the War Food Office and its organization to insure an adequate supply of food for the civilian population of Germany as well as for the army. Much has been written also about the troubles encountered by the civilian population in procuring its meagre allowance of daily food. There is still another phase of the matter. What about the myriads of middlemen who operate between the central authorities and the ultimate consumers? They have their troubles and difficulties, too, and in fact all the way around the circle these days there is a great deal besides beer and skittles to life in Germany.

The journey of a bread card as it travels from the printing shop where it originated to the pulp mill where it is transformed into some other kind of usefulness illustrates in great degree the variety and the measure of the food control. Take a daily bread card, such as are issued to guests at hotels, for example. The experience of its small sections is almost exactly that of all the other and larger cards issued to householders and good for a week or more as the case may be.

The daily bread card is a small slip of thin manila board, neither hard nor soft, but tough and durable. It is rectangular in shape, and across the narrow ends it is divided into sections, five at the top and five at the bottom. Each section—called Abschnitt, or piece cut off, in German—is good for 25 grams of bread, or was when I was in Germany, and the bread ration was half a pound a day. Now the ration has been reduced 20 per cent., from 250 grams to 200 grams per day—two-fifths of a pound, and the Abschnitt would call for only 20 grams of bread.

In Berlin, in other cities, and in every centre of population the Bread Commission, which is the active agent for control of bread provision and distribution, has certain subsidiary offices for the issue of bread cards—described as "Kartenausgabestellen" in the convenient word building vernacular.

If you live in your own home you must attend at the "card out giving office" of your district at the stated intervals, daily or weekly, and secure your food cards, which you do on proof that you are yourself, establishment of your identity and right to have such cards, and showing that you have none already and are not duplicating, or piling up reserves or indulging in other forms of cheating. If you live in a hotel the director or manager or some of his representatives attends to the daily securing from the proper Kartenausgabestelle the various food cards requisite for the hotel guests for each day. Your part comes in going to the hotel office each morning when you come down for breakfast and asking for the cards for yourself and family for that day.

Eating by the Card System.

With the cards in your possession you go to the dining room or your own room, or some restaurant, or where you like, for your meal. The process, so far as the cards are concerned, is thenceforward just the same no matter where you take your food. Each daily bread card with its ten little sections is good for five rolls or ten thin slices of black bread. Suppose there are four in your family and you want to order two rolls each for your breakfast. That requires the ten sections of one bread card and six of the ten on another card. You may tear them off yourself, or the waiter will do it for you, or very often he produces a small pair of scissors and snips them off. He leaves with you the body of the card, which bears the date for which it is good and the statement that it is not transferable and that you must read the regulations on the back. These regulations on the back merely tell you that you cannot purchase bread without presenting the card, nor can the baker sell bread without the presentation of a proper card.

Each section bears on its face, in addition to the legend "25 gr. Brot," showing that it is good for 25 grams of bread, the number of the week since the beginning of the issuance of bread cards. It is now about the one hundred and tenth or twelfth week. That little legend serves to remind the loyal Germans every day how long they have been made to suffer by the British blockade, and helps to instill a proper brotherly love into them.

The waiter takes the sixteen sections for your eight rolls and goes out into the secret recesses of the hotel pantry or bread cupboard, or wherever the management keeps the precious staff of life, and there negotiates with the keeper of the bread for the supply you have ordered. He can get it only by the surrender of your cards. Sometimes he can't get it even then. It used to happen with disgusting regularity at my hotel in Berlin that the waiter came back with black bread instead of rolls for breakfast. If I insisted on rolls and refused to take the black bread he would mournfully retire with the little thin twenty-five gram slices and as often as possible forget to give me back my bread card sections. One had to look sharply on that score.

Well, during the day the waiters carted out into that bread pantry a great many sections of bread card. At the close of business for the night they were all gathered together and tied up in little bundles, and very carefully weighed. They would be very many, too many to be counted, and the bread commission, having made numerous experiments to ascertain the exact weight of given numbers of sections, permitted their return by weight instead of by actual count.

In the very early morning, when it came time to call on the baker and obtain the first of the bread for the day's supply, whoever represented the hotel on that important mission carted with him some or all of the previous day's bundles of card sections. They constituted his sole valid authority for more bread. The baker took them by weight, if they were very many, or by count if only a few, and duly delivered the corresponding quantity of rolls or black bread or both, as the case might be. Of course the bread cards did not pay the baker for the bread, any more than they had paid the hotel for the breakfast. They were merely and only the symbol of the permission of the bread commission to the hotel man to buy and to the baker to sell that much bread. Payment for the purchase was an entirely different matter. With that the Government would not concern itself unless it appeared that the purchaser was habitually failing to make good and that his failure was endangering the business life of the baker.

Bread Cards Sometimes "Weighted."

Your hotel man was, of course, only one of a number of customers assigned by the municipal authorities to that baker. In the course of the day he received bundles of abschnitten from many different persons and delivered quantities of bread in turn. Then at night he gathered all his little sections of bread cards together and made bundles of them on his own account. He did that in accordance with the kind of conscience or consciencelessness that he might happen to have. Card sections that have been dampened or wet weigh considerably more than those which are thoroughly dry. And there seems to spring eternally in the hearts of German bakers the hope that this time the counters at the Bread Commission offices will not detect the iron bolt done up so neatly in that bundle of abschnitten, or that small round stone so carefully concealed in this batch of bread card sections. But there is a roomfull of inspectors kept at Bread Commission headquarters for just that sort of detective work, and there is a growing list of cheating bakers who have paid the penalty for their attempts to steal flour.

It is flour that the baker wants for his bread card sections. Sometimes he turns the bundles over to the Bread Commission direct, and receives in return the order of the commission upon this or that dealer in flour and meal, or even upon a miller, as it may happen, for the corresponding quantity of the mixture then in use in the authorized bread. When I was in Berlin it was a mixture of wheat and rye flours and of potato meal. It made mighty good rolls, but the black bread, which seemed to have considerably less wheat and potato flour, was hard to take.

If the baker gets his flour from a dealer, he turns over his sections of bread cards as his authority, and the dealer passes them along to the miller from whom he gets his supply. Or if the baker has turned the abschnitten in directly to the Bread Commission and received an order from it for the flour mixture, that serves instead of the card sections, and may be passed back by the dealer to the miller in the same way. The point is that at no stage of the entire journey of the grain from the farmer's stack to the table of the ultimate consumer has there been any transfer of ownership except by express permission of the Government, as represented by these orders from the Bread Commission or these bread card sections. Each card serves a double purpose; it authorizes one person to buy and another person to sell. The dual authorization is printed on each card, and, although in only one form, it serves the same purpose at each stage in the transaction.

Every day in the inspection division at the Bread Commission offices in Berlin, in that old building where Frederick the Great had his offices away back in the eighteenth century, a great force of clerks runs rapidly through piles and piles of bread card sections looking for the evidence of cheating. Constantly they find it, too, and it usually goes hard with the cheater. There is a little rogue's gallery of bolts and stones and such simple devices taken from the bundles of abschnitten. When the card sections have been all examined and can serve no further purpose for the Bread Commission in that form they go out to be sold to the paper makers, pulped up again and turned anew into something that will help along the economic life of Germany in the period of greatest stress she has known for a great many years. And that is the cycle of the bread card.

CITY GETS BEHIND GARDEN FARMING

WARD TO GIVE LESSONS

Many Agencies Are Pushing the Movement to Increase the Food Supply for War Needs.

The people of New York are taking up in earnest the problem of garden food preparedness. Many organizations have gone into the work of making New York City more nearly self-supporting as concerns food.

Yesterday the Board of Estimate adopted a resolution looking to the registration of all vacant lands within the city limits and of persons willing to cultivate the land if it is turned over to them free. Upon the appointment of a committee by the Mayor, owners of vacant land would be requested to submit offers of it. The Sinking Fund Commission was directed to supply the commission a list of all tracts of land owned by the city available for food production. A part of the resolution reads:

> Resolved, That the City of New York, through the Board of Estimate, invite the co-operation of the Federal and State Departments of Agriculture, the State and City Departments of Education, and other agencies in bringing about the best possible results in increasing the supply of food produce by the cultivation of vacant lands in the City of New York.

As a war measure the officials of Bellevue Hospital decided yesterday to grow on the lawns and grounds of the hospital all the vegetables needed by the institution. Plowing will begin Monday.

Park Commissioner Cabot Ward on Tuesday morning will open a model farm garden in Union Square. There will be two plots, one 20 by 40 feet, suitable for commuters' back yards, and one 20 feet square, suitable for backyard planting in the city. The Commissioner hopes to show thousands how to utilize their back yards to increase the food supply. He has received offers of the use of several large vacant lots, including the land at 225th to 227th Streets on Broadway, originally intended for the American League baseball grounds. Commissioner Ward will also give daily twenty-minute lectures on the tenth floor of the Municipal Building.

Ernest Thompson Seton, head of the Woodcraft League of America, yesterday sent requests to the Governors of all the States to name bodies to urge potato planting in line with the league's "Potato Patriot" movement. Several thousand boys and girls have volunteered to raise potatoes in back yards and vacant lots. Adult clubs have also been organized, and among the members is William Rockefeller, who, besides promising to raise potatoes himself, will give over a part of his estate at Greenwich, Conn., to whoever wishes to raise potatoes on it. The league will furnish free seeds for twenty-five hills to children; adults will provide the seeds for their potato patches.

Park Commissioner Ingersoll of Brooklyn has arranged to allow Boy Scouts to plant two acres in Prospect Park. The Boy Scouts expect soon to announce a plan formed in co-operation with the United States Department of Agriculture and the War Department by which the Scouts will take part in a big movement for great food production.

The Municipal Bureau of Weights and Measures issued a rather optimistic review of the local produce market last night, saying that the scarcity of certain articles was not so great as had been predicted. The review said:

"The situation in the fresh vegetable market shows that there is plenty of Florida string beans, California asparagus, spinach, kale, and other vegetables that are selling at as low prices as they usually do at this time of the year, some articles being lower than usual.

"Potatoes at wholesale, Maine, are priced at $8.75 a 180-pound barrel. The market generally at this time of the year averages from $8.75 to $9. Shipments of new potatoes will soon arrive from Florida, and it is expected that the wholesale price will be slightly reduced.

"Buying by the United States Government of onions in large quantities for immediate delivery has tended to put the price up beyond reason at this season of the year. It is expected that liberal receipts of new onions from Texas and Bermuda will soon be on the New York market. Onions at wholesale by the crate are quoted at $5.50.

"It is reported from retail stores that butter has advanced three-fourths of a cent a pound since yesterday. Eggs have advanced 1 cent a dozen, and rice from 1 to 1½ cents a pound since Monday. Flour and sugar since Monday have advanced 25 cents a barrel.

"The markets reports yesterday showed an advance in the price of butter wholesale of from one-half to three-quarters of a cent a pound. Eggs remained about stationery with very heavy receipts. The highest brands sold for 35 to 35½ cents a dozen. The potato market was not strong, and dried fruits were weaker. Because of the Jewish holidays the live poultry market was not strong."

FLAYS FOOD SPECULATORS.

Gov. Frazier of North Dakota Favors State Distribution of Crops.

Governor Lynn J. Frazier of North Dakota advocated State distribution of crops as an essential measure in dealing with the country's food problem at a meeting at Cooper Union last night under the auspices of the People's Institute. He said that if properly organized so as to get a full return for their products, the farmers west of the Alleghenies could raise three times the food that America now produced. He told of the benefits accruing to farmers of the Middle West through the formation of the North Dakota Non-Partisan League, which elected him Governor on the Republican ticket in a State carried by President Wilson.

He made a plea for the elimination of speculators through Government handling of food, saying that the speculators of New York and Chicago were partly responsible for $ wheat. He calculated that the speculators tacked at least 32 cents a bushel on to the price.

"The Non-Partisan League of Farmers," he said, "wants State-owned flour mills and elevators, State-owned packing houses and cold storage plants, with State inspection of grain and livestock, and the creation of a Government selling agency to deal directly with the big markets."

WOMEN TO TEACH FARMING.

Training School Opens at Farmingdale on April 23.

Society women in khaki trousers and shirts hoeing potatoes and milking cows on a big Long Island farm—that is what is to be accomplished by the Women's Section of the Navy League if plans announced at a meeting at the Hotel Astor yesterday afternoon succeed. Last night fifteen women had enrolled for the agricultural class of No. 6 National Service School of the Women's Section of the Navy League, which will be opened at the New York State School of Agriculture at Farmingdale, L. I., on April 23.

The class will live in the school buildings, where they will be charged $25 a month board for the three months of the course. There is no other charge except for the uniform. Miss Alice Carpenter is Chairman of the Executive Committee of the school; Mrs. Adolf Ladenburg is Chairman of the Agricultural Committee, Miss Fay Kellogg will direct transportation, and Mrs. Henry Moskowitz will be quartermaster. Among those on the Organization Committee are Mrs. Robert Bacon, Mrs. John Clark Brennon, Mrs. Lewis L. Delafield, Mrs. William Einstein, Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim, Mrs. Otto H. Kahn, Mrs. Herbert Keen, and Mrs. Francis G. Landon. The agricultural course is independent of the training camp, which will open on July 5 at Farmingdale, and where the women will live in tents. This camp will be similar to that conducted at Chevy Chase last year.

Albert A. Johnson, director of the Farmingdale school, told the members of the section at the Astor meeting yesterday of the opportunities for good work by women who knew something of gardening. He said that in a radius of a three hours' ride of New York City there were 3,500,000 acres of land, of which 2,400,000 was not used for agricultural purposes. Of the 2,400,000 acres, he said, 50 per cent. could be put under cultivation.

"If we put all this land under cultivation," he said, "we could feed New York City without outside aid. It is a problem of bringing the landless people to the peopless land."

CONVICTS FOR RAISING FOOD.

Russell Sage Investigator to Make Survey of Possibilities.

Dr. Hastings H. Hart of the Russell Sage Foundation left New York yesterday for a trip through the Middle West to make a survey of prisons for the purpose of learning the availability of prisoners for war service on farms. He is Chairman of the Jails Committee of the National Committee on Prisons and Prison Labor, and is interested in the employment of convicts to relieve food stringency.

Dr. E. Stagg Whitin of the Columbia Faculty, Chairman of the Executive Council of the Prison Committee, said last night:

"The convict could be set to work raising staple products, of which there is now a shortage. He is disciplined and physically fit for this kind of work. The mobilization of convicts for the raising of food is not only a patriotic necessity, but will help to solve our prison problems."

FAVORS DRAFT FOR FARMS.

Dr. Kendrick Would First Take Taxi Drivers, Waiters, and Bartenders.

Dr. Benjamin B. Kendrick, Associate Professor of History at Columbia University, believes that Congress should empower President Wilson to draft men from 16 to 50 years of age for farm service. He would start with taxicab drivers and waiters. "Bartenders and brewery employes," he said, "could be taken from their trade and put to work producing grain rather than using it up in liquor." He would also have boys of from 16 to 19 years and all college men put to intensive farming. He favored the Government's taking over and cultivating all vacant land.

CONSULTS WILSON ON FOOD.

Houston Lays Unprecedented Plans to Stimulate Production.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Intensive development of the food-producing power of the United States on a scale never before contemplated was discussed by President Wilson and Secretary Houston today.

Secretary Houston returned late today from St. Louis, where he conferred with representatives of the great grain-raising States. He laid before the President plans under which the Federal Government, in co-operation with State and local agencies, will put forth its utmost endeavors to stimulate the production and economical distribution of food.

The plans include a request for legislation giving the Government the power to regulate and fix food prices, if necessary, and to license large distributing agencies. Secretary Houston tomorrow will begin conferences with Congressional leaders to agree on the terms of the needed bills.

President Wilson probably will issue a proclamation soon calling attention to the situation. Secretary Houston, through the St. Louis conference, already has begun the erection of an organization extending into every State, through which the activities of the Federal Government can be carried on. He said the Government was counting on the active co-operation of every man, woman, and child in the United States. The Government expects people in the cities to stop the waste of food, and people in the country to raise more.

A far-reaching Administration measure to stimulate production of food upon private and public lands within reclamation projects and appropriating $5,000,000 for the purpose was introduced today by Representative Taylor of Colorado, Chairman of the House Irrigation Committee. The bill has the approval of the Federal Reclamation Service.

The American Defense Society is asking all Congressmen to urge the Governors of their States to designate a planting month from April 15 to May 15 to accomplish the cultivation of all available spaces.

The Senate Agriculture Committee today appointed a sub-committee to consider the resolution authorizing and directing the President to use any means possible to bring artificial fertilizers to the United States for thin farms along the Eastern seaboard. Chairman Gore said he hopes to get a resolution through the Senate Monday permitting the committee to hold hearings generally on questions of food supply.

Plans to preserve for food purposes possibly 20,000,000 bushels of grain annually now used for distilled spirits and for increasing Government revenues $35,000,000 a year were laid before the committee today by Joseph de Bar, President, and Levi Cooke, attorney for the National Distillers' and Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association.

CRAVATH GIVES LAND.

Lawyer Will Furnish Seeds for Volunteer Farmers.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., April 13.—Paul D. Cravath, who owns several large estates in this section, announced today that as a war measure he would give to responsible residents of the vicinity the right to use his land for growing crops. Each person is to have the use of from a half acre to an acre. Mr. Cravath will supply the seeds, fertilizer, and pay for the initial plowing, these to be paid by the volunteer farmers after they harvest their crops. Mr. Cravath recommends the raising of potatoes.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 13.—The women of Princeton, including the wives of several Princeton professors, have converted their flower gardens into vegetable patches. Many of the women are doing the work themselves. Mrs. John Grier Hibben, wife of the President of the university, has organized the women of the town. The Emergency Food Garden Committee is listing the vacant lots of Princeton for food cultivation.

Special to The New York Times.

RED BANK, N. J., April 13.—The lawns of three estates near here are being plowed up to be planted in potatoes. The owners are E. Drexel Godfrey of Oceanic, W. C. Reick of Rumson, and Dr. Robert Dickson of Fair Haven. The Godfrey lawn is being plowed to within a few feet of the house.

Special to The New York Times.

RIDGEWOOD, N. J., April 13.—P. A. Tuphy has been named Chairman of a Committee on Conservation which has accepted offers of 150 acres of scattered vacant lots which will be planted as community gardens. An agricultural expert will be hired to supervise the task. Canning clubs are being organized.

Calls Bronx Women to Till the Soil.

Miss Hannah C. Ellis of the Highbridge Branch of the New York Public Library has issued a call to the women of the Bronx to meet on Sunday, April 22, to plan for vegetable production in vacant lots. Henry Griscom Parsons of the New York Botanical Gardens will speak.

ASSAILED BY A MOB.

Pittsburgh Man Who Opposed Enlistment Starts a Riot.

PITTSBURGH, April 13.—Police reserves were called out here tonight to disperse a crowd of several hundred people who threatened the life of Theodore Cossman, proprietor of a motion picture theatre, following a street address made by Cossman against enlistment in the Government service. Cossman was arrested on a charge of high misdemeanor and committed to jail in default of $10,000 bail.

While Cossman was being held at an Alderman's office, another large crowd surrounded the office demanding that he be turned over to them. Two riot calls were sent in, and additional reserves were resisted by the crowd. Bricks were thrown and a number of persons were bruised.

What America Will Do
To Help Beat Germany

The die is cast. The American people take up the gage of battle which has been forced upon them by the German Government, and will go into the war "up to the hilt" to defend American rights on land and sea, and the fundamental principles of democracy.

It will be no purely defensive war upon which America embarks, for President Wilson in his message to Congress called upon the country "to exert all its power and all its resources to bring the Government of the German Empire to terms and end the war" because "the world must be made safe for democracy."

In THE LITERARY DIGEST for April 14th, public opinion as to the practical steps which should be taken is shown. The submarine peril is one of the first, and perhaps the most important, problems to be overcome. On this subject, press writers in London and Washington tell of plans already made for cooperation between the American and Allied navies. The various view-points upon universal military service, the dispatch of troops to Europe, an agreement with Great Britain, France, Russia, and Japan, for no separate peace, three steps advocated by the Chicago Tribune, are advanced, and arguments for and against them are presented, in addition to other plans.

Other significant phases of the world's news are also shown under these headings:

A World-Tour In An Observation-Car

Those of us who have traveled to any extent are familiar with that luxury of the tourist, the observation-car. It enables the voyager to obtain a clear view of all parts of the landscape through which he is passing. Its windows open impartially upon every side. It affords a panorama of the country to right and left, of the pass ahead and of the long trail winding out behind. It shows you mountain and plain, river and sea, green fields and smoky towns, and you are free to decide which of all these you prefer. There is no compulsion, no touting. Your judgment is completely uninfluenced. Through the world of events THE LITERARY DIGEST travels in precisely the same manner, giving its readers an unbiased view of all questions, all ideas, all diversities of thought. Here, as in the observation-car, you are free to decide upon your likings. There is no attempt to persuade or convince you. You are simply given a broad view of the facts. The decision rests solely with yourself.

BRITAIN IS AIDING OUR ARMY SURGEONS

WILL PREVENT EPIDEMICS

Experience Gained, British Surgeon General Declares, Should Greatly Benefit American Soldiers.

LONDON, April 2, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—The American soldier ought to be the healthiest soldier in the world, because he starts out supported by a medical organization that has taken advantage of all the valuable lessons learned by the British Army in its three years' experience in this greatest of wars, according to a statement made by Sir Alfred Keogh, Surgeon General of the British Army, to an Associated Press representative. The Surgeon General revealed for the first time the close co-operation between the medical branches of the American and British armies maintained since the early days of the war. For this fact the American people must thank Sir Alfred, the man responsible for the health of the 5,000,000 British soldiers, who has placed all the information gained in the war at the disposal of the American Army medical men.

According to Sir Alfred there are in this country at the present time four leading United States army medical men who have been studying the British medical and sanitary arrangements in France, and have visited the hospitals in England. They are Colonel Bradley, Major Ford and Major Lyster and Surgeon Pleadwell.

"We are giving the United States Army the benefits of our three years' experience in keeping our enormous army healthy," Sir Alfred said. "In fact a close co-operation between the medical branches of our army and yours has been maintained since the very beginning of the war. American Army medical men have from the start been keeping in touch with our medical and sanitary arrangements, and if the results of their observations have been applied to their own organization, as I have every reason to believe they have, the United States Army ought to take the field under better medical supervision than any in the world. In other words the American soldier ought to be the healthiest, backed as he is by a medical organization that has benefited by all the experiences of our great armies.

"Of course, the United States has always had a very highly efficient medical service. The only question is whether or not it is fully prepared for the expansion necessary in raising a large army. I say this because I doubt whether those outside the organization understand its importance. The layman usually thinks only of the killing efficiency of an army, not realizing that to be able to kill the enemy an army's health must be right up to scratch all the time.

"The first essential for an efficient army is that it be well fed. A well fed army is an army in which disease prevention has its greatest chance of success. We can't protect health which is undermined by inadequate feeding. The next essential to an efficient army is the immediate investigation of epidemics. Both of these problems have been solved by us.

"The British Army is well fed and is free of epidemics. Since the outbreak of war we have had but three epidemics in the British forces, and in each case these have been stamped out almost instantly. We did this by concentrating our best medical effort at the source.

"We learned our lessons in sanitation from the South African war just as the American Army has benefited by its experiences with disease in the Spanish-American war, and later in the big camps in the southern part of the United States. We first tried enteric inoculation in the Boer war, and have perfected it since with the result that this disease has been practically stamped out. In our whole army we now have but four or five cases of enteric fever in one month.

"The United States Army medical authorities know all about our experience. They know that the problem at the outbreak of the present great war was: Has modern medical science enabled us to prevent epidemics in modern warfare? They know that the answer is, yes. The American authorities, fully alive as they are to the necessity for efficiency in their army as in all other things have learned from us that it is up to the medical branch of the service to acquaint itself in times of peace with what it must ultimately learn in time of war.

"Rural sanitation is another subject that America is alive to. This is evidenced by the fact that they have sent to us one of the learned professors of Johns Hopkins University at Baltimore to make a special study of rural sanitation in the towns in France which we take charge of as soon as our armies enter them."

'OLIVER OSBORNE' TO PRISON

Going Back to Oregon to Finish a Five-Year Term.

After spending several months here as a witness in the case of Rae Tanzer, charged with perjury growing out of her suit against James W. Osborne, Charles H. Wax, who declares he was the mysterious "Oliver Osborne," was turned over to Sheriff Louis Olsen of Salem, Ore., yesterday to be taken back to that State to complete a prison term of five years, which he evaded by escaping from the penitentiary soon after commitment.

Wax was arraigned a few days ago on a charge of grand larceny made on April 29, 1914, by Katherine Magenheimer of 124 East Fifty-sixth Street, who alleged that under the name of Angus McDonald he obtained $250 from her to "invest in railroad securities." The police have not been able to find the complainant who, a few months ago, said she would not press the charge against Wax.

Wax said he had been well-treated during his stay here, shook hands warmly with the Oregon Sheriff, and declared himself willing to return to complete his term.

With five claimants for the $1,000 reward offered by James W. Osborne for the arrest of "Oliver Osborne" already in and one suit filed, William H. Offley, head of the New York Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, who is custodian of the fund, asked the Supreme Court yesterday to decide to whom the money shall be paid. Mr. Offley seeks relief from responsibility in a suit filed in the Municipal Court by Mrs. Ada C. Smith of 210 East Fifty-third Street. He wants to deposit the $1,000 in court and let the claimants fight for it.

Appeal for Widowed Mother.

The Widowed Mothers' Fund Association, 492 Bowery, appeals for aid for a widow and four young children. The husband was a painter, and, not doing very well in New York, he decided to go to Richmond, Va. The family prospered until the man became tuberculous. They moved to Liberty, N. Y., lived there for two years, and then the man died. The Board of Child Welfare will grant an allowance after a residence of two years and aid will be needed for this interval. Gifts for the temporary maintenance of the family will be welcomed by Mrs. Henry Zuckerman, 52 Broadway, or at the rooms of the associations. Thanks are offered to the following for gifts in response to a previous appeal: S. I., $1; Sympathizer, $1; South Orange, $1; J. G. Campbell, $15; G. R. V., $2; Anon, $1; Blank, $2, and a well-wisher for two petticoats.

Appellate Division Disbars Two.

Michael J. Walsh, who was admitted to practice law in 1903, and Jacob Leon Brandmarker, admitted in 1901, were disbarred by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court yesterday. The court upheld findings of a referee that Walsh had converted to his own use $200 paid to him to appeal a negligence suit. In Brandmarker's case the court found that he gave a woman $25 to furnish $1,000 bail for a client and agreed to pay her $750 if the bond was declared forfeited. The client disappeared and the woman had to pay $500, but Brandmarker insisted that his agreement with the woman was not binding because it was without consideration.

BARON DE NEUFLIZE BACK.

Representative of Bank of France Says French Are Optimistic.

Baron Jacques de Neuflize, representative of the Bank of France, has returned to New York after an absence of eight weeks spent in Paris. The Baron had sailed home only for the purpose of making verbal reports to his bank, and upon his return has resumed his old offices in this city.

Baron de Neuflize left France before the declaration of war by the United States, and prior to the announcement of the personnel of the commission which is coming here to confer with Government officials in respect to the financial aid that the United States is to render to the Allies.

The French people, according to the Baron, are very optimistic, and are confident of victory. As for internal conditions, there appears to be a lack of sugar and of coal. "The scarcity of sugar is only theoretical," said Baron de Neuflize, "for all the households have stacked up large supplies which will probably last them a year. This is not true of coal, and it is hoped that perhaps with better shipping facilities it will be possible for the United States to send some coal over to France."

Baron de Neuflize is well known in financial circles, and his sudden appearance yesterday was a surprise, scarcely two months having elapsed since he took formal leave of his friends. He had served a year or more in the war, when the Bank of France recalled him from the trenches and sent him to New York.

TRADE ENVOY TO THE EAST.

J. Morgan Clements in Quest of Means to Balance Imports.

American investment in minerals and engineering work in the Far East is to be stimulated through the efforts of the United States Government. J. Morgan Clements, mining geologist and engineer, has been appointed a Trade Commissioner by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, and will investigate the Far Eastern market for investment.

"The Government in this enterprise is doing a form of missionary work that holds forth great possibilities," said Mr. Clements. "The United States is a large consumer and importer of various minerals and metals it does not produce. Antimony, tin, manganese and a score of others may be cited. Tin comes from Bolivia and the Straits Settlements mostly, the Bolivian ore being smelted in the United States. The others are secured from various quarters, the domestic production being relatively negligible. Since these minerals and metals must be imported, it is to the advantage of this country to obtain them where they will have substantial bearing on the trade relations between the countries.

"It is a fundamental rule of commerce that trade follows investment even more than investment follows trade, and it is to the advantage of the country at large to foster and encourage as much judicious and substantial investment in foreign countries, certainly in natural resources, as possible."

Mr. Clements will sail from San Francisco in May, and will visit Japan, China, Indo-China, India, Burma, the Straits Settlements, and later, if time permits, certain sections of Africa.

PERU WANTS NEW RAILWAY.

Zegarra Seeks to Interest American Capital in Project.

To confer with American capitalists as to what is necessary for Peru to promise for the building of a railway connecting the Amazon River with the Pacific Ocean and to take the preliminary steps for getting the money pledged is the mission of Senator Enrique Coronel Zegarra of Peru, who arrived in New York recently. Senator Zegarra expects to remain in the United States a month. He is a graduate of the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute of Troy, spent his boyhood in this country and speaks English perfectly, but has not been in the United States in forty years. He was formerly a member of the Peruvian Cabinet, and his father and brother have represented their country at Washington.

"The railway has been surveyed, the consent of President Pardo has been won to the concessions necessary, and as soon as I can learn just what arrangements American capitalists now interested in the proposition will make I shall go back and begin the campaign with our Congress," said Senator Zegarra. "For twenty years I have been working on this railway project. Captain J. W. Flanagan of New York, who has large interests in South America, and who was recently in Peru, was able to back up my assurance that all which American capital wished was a square deal, and this it will get.

"Peru is entirely pro-Ally," said Senator Zegarra, in answer to a question. "I should make an exception of one newspaper down there which defends Teutonic acts. It runs counter to public opinion."

FINANCE FRAUNCES TAVERN.

New Mortgage to be Used in Buying Adjoining Property.

Fraunces Tavern, the historic building at Broad and Pearl Streets, owned by the Sons of the Revolution, is to be mortgaged for $65,000 as the result of an order signed by Supreme Court Justice Pendleton yesterday. The Sons of the Revolution, through Robert Olyphant, President, and Henry Russell Drowne, Secretary, stated in their petition for permission to mortgage the property that $15,000 is to be used to pay off the present mortgage and the remaining $50,000 will be applied to the purchase of the adjoining property at 101 and 103 Broad Street.

The officers of the organization say that the New York Chapter now contains 2,300 members, and that the present Fraunces Tavern is too small to accomodate a well-attended meeting or to house properly the Revolutionary relics contained there.

RUBBER MEN MUST HELP.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Rubber producers and manufacturers will be called upon to co-operate fully with the Government in meeting wartime needs. Commissioner Barauch, Chairman of the Committee on Raw Materials, of the Council of National Defense, announced to-day the appointment of the following committee to carry out this purpose:

A. Marks, of the Diamond Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio; Fred Hood, of The Hood Rubber Company, Watertown, Mass.; Stuart Hotchkiss, of the General Rubber Company, New York.

"This committee," Mr. Barauch's announcement says, "will have charge of securing for the Government a speedy and adequate supply of rubber."

Over $4,000,000 Bombardment Policies Written by Boston Companies.

BOSTON, April 13.—Insurance men said today that bombardment policies amounting to more than $4,000,000 had been written in this city since domestic companies were advised this week that they could accept such risks. Previously, they said, $30,000,000 in insurance had been taken out here by property owners against loss caused by explosions. The bombardment policies also cover fire losses resulting from attack by enemy warships.

The zone system of rates prevails in bombardment policies, cities nearest the coast paying the highest rate. Most companies, it was said, had adopted the general plan of adding a bombardment clause to explosion policies.

AETNA BONDHOLDERS APPOINT COMMITTEE

Announcement was made yesterday of the appointment of a protective committee for holders of the 6 per cent. bonds of the Aetna Explosives Company, Inc. There is outstanding only $2,188,050 of the issue.

The Aetna is one of the munition companies which has suffered from undertaking war contracts beyond its capacity. Its affairs have been administered by a committee of bankers for several months, following the discovery that it had inadequate working capital. The company was formed three months after the beginning of war to acquire the Aetna Powder Company, the Miami Powder Company, the Keystone National Powder Company, and several other concerns making powder or its constituents. By January, 1916, it had unfilled orders for more than $30,000,000 on its books.

Receipt of such large orders transformed the Aetna from a company doing a small commercial business, amounting to about $6,000,000 per annum, into a concern contracting for munition business far beyond its existing facilities. Delays in the completion of new plants which had been laid out, and the unexpectedly large cost of building made it necessary to raise $8,400,000 through the sale of common stock, from the proceeds of which $4,000,000 of notes were cared for. Stockholders took only half of the new shares offered to them, the balance falling on the underwriters.

The protective committee has issued a call for the immediate deposit of bonds with the Bankers Trust Company. The committee stated that prompt action by the bondholders was deemed necessary for the proper protection of their interests.

JERSEY OFFERS WATERWAYS

Asks Government to Take Over and Improve the Inland System.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 13.—Counsel from all of the civic organizations of South Jersey, representing property interests of more than $200,000,000, attended the hearing given here today by the United States Army engineers on the bill before Congress authorizing the Government to take over and finish the inland waterway system from Sandy Hook to Cape May. The project was heartily indorsed.

State Senator Emerson L. Richards, for the State administration, declared that New Jersey was ready for the transfer. He said that the waterway would be of strategic importance, especially during the present crisis. Submarines and smaller war craft could be taken safely from New York to Philadelphia without having to venture out in the ocean when the system is deepened to fifteen feet, as provided by Congress.

MAJOR HARRISON BANKRUPT.

Mining Engineer Schedules Debts to New York People.

PORTLAND, Me., April 13.—Major Duncan B. Harrison, a retired cavalry officer who was wounded in the Philippine campaign, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, claiming liabilities of $28,715.90 and assets of $750.87, the latter including half a million dollars in worthless mining stock.

Among the principal debts as set forth in the schedule are $7,208.28 to E. C. Hurlburt estate, care of O. F. Hibbard, New York, on loan; $2,016 to Ralph Kellogg, care of Munson Steamship Company, New York, on loan; $5,157.29 to Enrico Branchi, New Rochelle and New York, judgment and costs; $1,904 to J. A. Ripley, care of Harris Winthrop Company, Wall Street, New York; $4,300 to Mrs. I. L. Rice, Seventy-third Street and Broadway, New York, on loan, and Alfred I. du Pont, Wilmington, Del., $5,000, on loan.

ITALY EXPLAINS BUDGET.

Says Tax Returns Leave Margin for New Loans.

ROME, April 13.—Italian official circles are anxious to prove to the United States, which is about to enter for the first time into financial relations with Italy, the strength of the Italian budget. From an official statement issued today it appears that only 15,500,000,000 francs in war debts have been contracted, while the new taxes available for the ensuing nine months of the present fiscal year will amount to 900,000,000 francs more than during the former war.

It is expected that the surplus this year will be 1,200,000,000 francs. Thus, after paying interest on the present debts at 5 per cent., a large margin will exist for the payment of interest on new loans.

Will of Father-in-Law of Abram I. Elkus Filed for Probate.

The will of Selmar Hess, father-in-law of Abram I. Elkus, Ambassador to Turkey, which was filed for probate yesterday, disposes of an estate estimated at more than $500,000. Ambassador Elkus receives articles to be chosen from the decedent's personal belongings. His children, Ethel, Catherine, and James Elkus, also receive their choice of their grandfather's personal effects.

The residuary estate is divided equally between Mrs. Gertrude R. H. Elkus, wife of the Ambassador, her sister, Mrs. Ruth J. Albert, and brother, Alfred Hess. Personal effects are distributed among other relatives and friends. The sum of $5,000 goes to Julius Hess and $6,000 to Franziska Mendelshauser. Mr. Hess died on Feb. 26 last at 956 Madison Avenue. He was a resident of Seabright, N. J.

Mathias Haffen Estate $922,991.

The estate of Mathias Haffen, who died Jan. 23 last and was a brother of Louis F. Haffen, former Borough President of the Bronx, was appraised in Bronx County yesterday at $922,991. Practically the entire estate goes to his wife, Mrs. Wilhelmina Haffen. The bulk of the property consisted of mortgages. Mr. Haffen was President of the J. & M. Haffen Brewing Company until 1914, when he sold out to Colonel Jacob Ruppert.

To Plan Relief for Turkish Famine.

Nearly two hundred experts on Turkey and other persons from that country and from various parts of America who are interested in the problem of extending relief to the hundreds of thousands who are in danger of starvation there will meet in conference today and tomorrow at 25 Madison Avenue. It is expected that ex-Ambassador Morgenthau, Cleveland Dodge, Dr. Worth Tippy and others will speak. A program for a greatly enlarged campaign will be discussed.

APPEAL IN DU PONT SUIT.

Defendants Contend There Has Been No Breach of Trust.

WILMINGTON, Del., April 13.—Announcement was made today that an appeal would be taken in the du Pont Powder Company stock suit, in which the United States Court yesterday handed down a decision in favor of Alfred I. du Pont and others, who were the complainants.

The case involves stock having a market value of more than $50,000,000. Alfred I. du Pont and others assert it belongs to the powder company and not to the President and certain Directors, who purchased it from T. Coleman du Pont.

"Counsel for the defendants did not question the soundness of the law as to the duty of Directors toward stockholders of a corporation, but they did contend, and will continue to contend, that the facts in this case do not show that there was either moral or legal breach of trust."

Pierre S. du Pont has written a letter to the stockholders, in which he says that "no finding of bad faith, betrayal of trust, or wrongdoing of any kind" against the Directors was made in Judge Thompson's decision.

MINERS PRESS WAGE PLEA.

Another Fruitless Conference with Soft Coal Operators.

Employers and employes from the bituminous coal mines of the central fields, which include Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, and Indiana, continued in conference at the Hotel McAlpin yesterday, but failed to agree concerning the application of 225,000 miners for increases in their pay. Delegates to the conference representing the operators of Ohio and Western Pennsylvania expressed themselves as willing to grant a 10 per cent. increase, but the Illinois delegates said that they were not prepared to give any increase, and those from Indiana were noncommittal.

The miners, through John P. White, International President of the United Mine Workers of America, and other representatives in the conference, insisted that the men should have increases amounting to approximately 33 1-3 per cent.

COMMODITIES PRICES.

Sharp Advances Have Occurred in Foodstuffs and Metals.

As a result of the wildest leap it has shown yet, growing out of the steady and rapid advance in wheat, flour touched the $11-a-barrel mark at wholesale this week, according to Dun's list of commodities prices. This is a record wholesale figure, for recent years, at least. The increased price strength of foodstuffs generally and the sharp advances shown by many items in the metals list were among the week's other features. Eighty advances were included in the 96 changes shown, against 51 advances in 72 changes last week.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on 42 commodities this week at this city, unless otherwise specified. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

Only three of the week's thirty-five changes in foodstuffs were declines. Heading the list of advances came flour, with a rise of 90 cents a barrel on Winter patent and advances of 85 cents a barrel on Spring patent and on Spring and Winter clear. At Chicago there was a solid advance in the prices quoted on the major provisions, save on live beef, which did not change. Bacon was higher here, but hams were steady.

In the dairy products the advances were all supplied by butter, as a result of an active demand and only moderate supplies, though cheese was firmer without showing a quotable change. The year's heaviest receipts of eggs to date, however, sent prices down on both the fancy nearby and best Western grades. Both are still well above the corresponding 1916 price.

All of the vegetable changes were upward, including beans, turnips, potatoes and red onions. Neither fresh nor dried fruits showed marked fluctuations one way or the other, though the undercurrent appeared firm enough. Both of the basic grades of Brazilian coffee advanced, while fine and fair Formosa tea also moved up. Molasses and syrups went up, as did the leading raw sugars and fine granulated. A drop in Zanzibar cloves was the only spice change.

Increases of $10 a ton in forging billets at Pittsburgh and $5 a ton in basic pig iron were the features of the week's metals changes. All grades of pig iron went up, in fact, as did Bessemer billets at Pittsburgh. Lead and tin advanced, and the prolonged decline in coke was broken. Antimony, copper, and spelter supplied the only declines. The effect of adverse Government crop reports was plainly visible in the grains prices, where wheat, corn, oats, rye, malt, and malting barley all advanced for the second successive week.

Eight of the 21 changes in the combined markets for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils were downward. There were few real features to these changes. The leather list continued steady at recent figures, while in the hides there were no declines for the first time in quite a while. On the other hand, advances were registered by No. 1 native packer, No. 1 country steer, No. 1 heavy cow, and No. 1 buff stock. Tallow was higher here.

The upward trend of cotton, coupled with active buying in the forepart of the week, again forced up prices on gray, bleached, and colored cloths. Higher prices on several worsted and woolen fabrics were also reported. A drop in Chinese raw silk and advances in hemp, jute, paper, crude rubber, and turpentine completed the week's changes.

Not So Good as It Looked.

From things that are being said among sellers of small wares, men who have gone into the snap fastener manufacturing business are not finding the grass so green as it looked at first sight. Though there is no denying the fact that prices on these fasteners rose from about 85 cents to agreat gross to $15 on some sizes, as a result of the cutting off of imports from the other side, they began to drop as soon as the domestic production made itself felt. While still very high as compared with before-the-war prices, fasteners can now be had a good deal cheaper than at this time last year. The chances are that prices will continue to drop as production increases. Then again, it is said that numerous complaints have been received by users of certain domestic snaps, charging that they do about everything but fasten.

Gray Goods Sales Small.

Buying of staple gray goods was light in this market yesterday, for the simple reason that for the most part buyers went after cloths that were not to be had. In other words, they gave most of their attention to nearby stuff, which was not only scarce, but high. This attention was largely confined to printcloths, and among the day's sales were such constructions as 38½-inch 64-60s and 64-56s for April shipment at 8¾ and 8½ cents, respectively. Khaki twills continued in good demand, and there was some pretty fair business put through on other specialities. Closing spot printcloth prices follow:

39-inch, 68-72s... 9¾c	38½-inch, 60-52s.. 7½c
39-inch, 56-44s... 7c	38½-inch, 60-48s.. 7¼c
38½-inch, 64-64s.. 9c	27-inch, 64-60s.. 5¾c

Summer Coat Business Starts.

The demand for Summer coats and capes has gotten into its stride, and manufacturers are assured of a profitable business. These coats come entirely within the novelty class, and, while the buying keeps up profits will be exceptionally good. The coats being shown are designed along rather simple lines in general, with the pointed shoulder collar as the dominating note. High colors are the rule rather than the exception, and three shades particularly are desired—rose, gold, and apple green. Tans and grays are also good sellers. The fabrics incline in the better class of garments to the soft finished variety, usually velours.

Government Orders Secret.

A rather strict injunction is laid down, upon those who have been given Government goods to make, regarding the secrecy that shall be maintained regarding such orders. It is understood in the woolen trade, which is the first to which the buyers go, that some business has already been placed. The order for 30,00,000 yards of cloth reported to have been placed with the leading factor has now been whittled down by rumor to 10,000,000 yards. Another order is said to have been placed for a certain amount of goods at a stipulated profit of 7½ per cent. to the maker.

Wide Use of Pile Fabrics.

From the business taken by the pile fabric manufacturers, the volume of sales for the next Fall season will probably aggregate the biggest in the history of the industry. The chief factor in the demand is the need found by the garment manufacturers of substituting imitations of fur for the real article, which is very high priced. The fact, too, that importations are less than they have ever been is swinging additional business to the domestic makers. A variety of goods are obtainable, ranging from the ordinary plush and velvet to cloths so processed that they would be taken at a glance for the best skins. Prices have been advanced, but they are still at levels that make the fur imitations preferable from a price standpoint.

Separate Skirts Moving Well.

While repeat business is still being done on separate skirts for seasonable street wear, the bulk of the present good volume or orders calls for wash and sport goods. Wash skirts are especially good, with white heading the list of popular shades. The favored materials at the moment include plain and fancy taffetas, striped effects and plaids, tussahs, wash satins, jersey cloth, gabardines, alpacas, and special fabrics that are said to be linen substitutes. The style features include less width at the bottoms than heretofore, novel treatments of belts, pockets and pleats, shirring at the waistline, and Russian stitching.

Waist Demand Picks Up.

Despite the continuance of overcoat weather, buyers of waists appear to be backing strongly their belief that Spring will get here some time by placing liberal orders for this merchandise for prompt delivery. Silk, linen, and cotton models are all doing well, especially in white and in such shades as gray, pale pink, ecru, coral, &c. Waists are shown, both with and without collars, with sailor and other low effects leading the demand. There is said to be an improving demand for short sleeves, particularly in the better goods, and some betterment in the business done on back-fastening models is told of.

Laces Still Wavering.

While reports from various quarters of the trade indicate that a better business has been done on laces, especially those wanted for trimmings, than really had been expected at the opening of the season, it is more or less candidly admitted that the failure of the retail trade to take them up in a big way is keeping sales totals below last year's in more than one case. Aside from imitation filets and certain novelties there appears to be no real demand for anything in the line of laces, though real filets have had a fair run with the higher class trade. With Paris more favorably inclined than it has been, however, the trade is getting set for a nice Fall business. In the line of embroideries, the most active things are sports effects in attractive colorings and patterns.

Foodstuffs Dealers Uneasy.

These are not very pleasant days for sellers of canned and other prepared foodstuffs at retail, and the reason is the advance that has had to be made on such things as prepared soups, beans, olives, potato chips, &c. A housewife, after paying her favorite grocer 12 cents for a package of chips, is not very much pleased to learn from a friend that the latter's pet store, which has a supply on hand that was bought at the old wholesale price, is still selling them for 10 cents. The same is true of the soup, the beans, and the olives. In one case reported recently, a certain chain store sold for 10 cents the same brand and size of canned ripe olives that an independent store across the way sold for 18. In a third store the price was 15 cents. From all accounts, the chain stores seem to be the best supplied with old-priced stock. Either that or they are willing to stick to the old retail prices as "leaders."

Underwear Business All Taken.

Fall underwear has been practically sold up for the entire manufacturing season. Ordinarily the agents get busy in January and February, and by this time consider themselves lucky if 75 perkcent. of their production is taken up. The remaining 25 per cent. is booked throughout the period up to July. The local trade is usually the last to place its requirements in the hope of getting better posted on the demand and, if possible, to secure price inducements. This year, however, the local retailers have made sure of their supplies by early ordering.

DRY GOODS TRADE IS BUSY.

Road Sales for Fall Delivery Exceed Those of a Year Ago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 13.—Marshall Field & Co. in their weekly review of the dry goods trade say:

"Wholesale distribution of dry goods for the current week is running about even with the very heavy volume in this period a year ago. Road sales for immediate shipments are about the same as in the week 1916, while road sales for Fall delivery are much in excess of the corresponding period last year.

"Customers have been into market in smaller numbers. Collections for the week are larger than in the same period last year. The cotton market is very firm."

BUSINESS RECORDS

In Town.

PROSPECT FURNITURE CO., INC.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Prospect Furniture Co., Inc., of 768 Westchester Avenue, by these creditors: Max Druckman, $82; Jacob Druckman, $350; Chautauqua Cabinet Company, $200, and Tell City Furniture Company, $100. Liabilities are said to be $12,000, and assets, $8,000.

VICENZO BRESCEA, formerly merchant tailor at 447 East 116th Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities, $1,776, and no assets. This is his second time in bankruptcy. He filed a petition on April 20, 1915, which was dismissed without a discharge.

POKRESS BROS. & CO.—Judge Mayer has dismissed a petition in bankruptcy filed on March 5 against Pokress Bros. & Co., formerly manufacturers of ostrich feathers, at 8 East Thirty-seventh Street, on a settlement at 15 cents on the dollar, payable 7½ cents cash and 7½ cents in note at six months.

GREENWICH HAT WORKS.—Judge Mayer has dismissed the petition in bankruptcy filed on March 3 against the Greenwich Hat Works, manufacturer of women's hats, at 3 East Thirty-seventh Street, on a settlement with creditors at 15 cents on the dollar.

NEVEN SPARKS LAMB, INC., manufacturer of paints, at 149 Chambers Street, has filed schedules showing liabilities, $7,659, and assets $634, in accounts.

CHAS. BLANK, dealer in dairy products, at 102 East 105th Street, has filed schedules showing liabilities, $4,172, and assets, $715.

MORRIS BRAAF.—Judge Mayer has appointed Francis L. Kohlman receiver for Morris Braaf, shoe dealer at 198-200 Rivington Street; bond $5,000. It was alleged that on April 12 he removed forty-six cases of shoes, worth $4,000, which were delivered to his brother, Abraham, also in the shoe business, and when questioned by creditors he said they had been given in payment of a debt of $2,500. It was also alleged that on March 1 he paid to his brother $1,500 in repayment of a loan.

EMILY SAVING, doing business as the Paris Model Millinery Company at 2,684 Broadway, has made an assignment to Julius A. Newman.

Weekly Failure Report.

Bradstreet's reports 251 business failures during the week, against 214 for the previous week and 297, 379, 238, and 290 for the corresponding weeks of 1916 to 1913. The Middle States had 48, New England 35, Southern 51, Western 69, Northwestern 26, and Far Western 22. Canada had 16, against 19 for the preceding week. About 90 per cent. had less than $5,000 capital and 7 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

NO WOOL FOR GOVERNMENT.

Whatever Will Be Had Must Be Obtained by Manufacturers.

The latest development in the wool situation is the statement, made on the authority of a man prominently connected with the work of the Textile Alliance, denying that the United States Government had arranged to obtain from Great Britain 100,000,000 pounds of Australian wool. He said, furthermore, that the matter of wool imports is one that will be handled not by the Government, but by trade authorities in the woolen industry soon after the representatives of the British Government reach Washington.

Arrangements for the release of the wool purchased for American account at the last sales have not yet been completed. The sale of this wool to the domestic dealers was permitted to the extent of 10,000 bales. Only about one-third of this was bought by the American representatives, owing to the high prices prevailing at the auction.

An explanation of the action of the National Defense Council in refusing to accept the offer of the wool dealers to hold all material in their hands for the use of the Government was forthcoming yesterday from a member of the committee of wool manufacturers who conferred with Government officials in Washington. First of all, he said, there was no one authorized to accept the offer; secondly, there is no money available for the purchase of the wool; and, thirdly, the committee of the National Defense Council, to which the matter was referred, thought it would be a dangerous precedent to have the Government accept the offer of a combination of wool dealers and take over all the wool in the country. He added that the probability of supplies being obtained from Australia also entered into the decision of the council in refusing the offer.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Rise in Prices Carried Further—Freight Rate Increase Prospect.

Trading on the Stock Exchange was much lighter yesterday, but prices showed a good deal of strength. There were net gains in the majority of issues, and while desultory liquidation among inactive issues resulted in some net losses, amounting to as much as several points, these were adequately counterbalanced by large net gains in other quarters of the list. The market was not called upon to appraise very much that was new in the situation, but the process of accommodating market sentiment to a more hopeful, and it would also seem a more reasonable, estimate of war finance probabilities was still under way.

In the early dealings many of the railroads took a conspicuous place, being favored among traders because of the expectation that a rate increase will be allowed. Reports from Washington, which were given some weight in influential banking quarters, suggested that a substantial advance in rates would be allowed to take effect June 1 in the event that the Interstate Commerce Commission investigation of the proposed increase were not finished by that time. The prospect that the benefits of the doubt, so to speak, would in this instance be given to the railroads was responsible for the more cheerful market attitude toward railroad stocks.

The bill which would give the Government the right to direct the operation of the railroads during war time was for the most part regarded in Wall Street as a measure whose effect would be to give legal support to the plan contemplated in the appointment of the committeee of five rather than as a measure designed to place the Government in direct control of the railroads. The purpose in naming the committee of five was to make possible the operation of the railroads of the country as a unit so far as that might seem necessary to provide for national needs. More than that, the Street argued, hardly seemed necessary, though it was considered natural that a law should be proposed which would give the Government power to act in any emergency in the unlikely event of co-operation between the railroads and the Government failing of its purpose. The plan of co-operation already outlined was incidentally regarded as likely to have favorable, albeit indirect, bearing upon the request of the railroads for higher rates. Co-operation by the railroads with the Government might well find a counterpart in co-operation by the Government with the railroads in the shape of a rate increase which would make them all the more effective instruments of national service.

Discussion in the House of the probable scope of war taxation was followed in the financial district with keen interest. This is a matter closely related to the plan for Government financing. Just what the bearing of one upon the other is likely to be is currently a matter of discussion. It seems obvious that the prospective increase in income taxes would stimulate the demand for tax-exempt bonds, but there are some who argue that investors confronted with the prospect of heavy additional taxes will subscribe less largely than they otherwise would to a low interest bearing Government bond. In practice it will probably be found that the fact that United States bonds will be free of tax will greatly stimulate the demand for them.

TRADING DULL IN LONDON.

American Securities Irregular, with U. S. Steel Strong.

LONDON, April 13.—Money was in good supply and discount rates were harder today.

With the issue of the prospectuses of a Commonwealth loan and an offer of Exchequer bonds, the stock market's surplus funds have a momentarily fresh outlet, and a majority of the standard shares were somewhat neglected today. Home rails and colonial bonds, however, were well supported, and Argentine rails advanced further, but Brazilian and Argentine bonds were easier and Spanish issues uncertain. Oil shares, especially Mexicans, had a good tone.

American securities moved irregularly, with United States Steel strong.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Canadian Shell Orders.

Despite the enormous consumption of shells on the Western battle lines in Europe, further evidence is appearing that the British and French factories in the home lands are providing abundantly for the appetite of the cannon. It was learned yesterday that so complete was the munition-making business across the seas that a number of contracts placed in Canada several months ago were being switched to British works. Also, reports come from across the Canadian border that some orders on which considerable work has been done have been definitely canceled. New shell orders in this country, of course, have been a rarity for a long time. France and England were described by a local munition maker yesterday as "vast arsenals," whose working forces have been trained to the highest stage of skill and deftness. A theory expressed in regard to the transfer of orders from Canada was that the British authorities desired to release as many men as possible to work in the grain fields.

The Trader's Lament.

Of thirty active stocks eighteen showed moderate advances at the close yesterday and twelve were down a small distance. Such a market supplies little ammunition for the trader who seeks to get in and out several times in the course of a day. The poor qualities of the market as a "trading" proposition have for some days been the subject of discouraged comment by those who live by the tape. Reactions and recoveries have occurred aplenty, but it has required more luck than wisdom for a man to make profits consistently.

Russian Cars and Locomotives.

A dispatch from Petrograd yesterday said that the new Russian Government had decided to buy 40,000 cars and 2,000 locomotives in the United States, to be delivered July, 1918. If this program is carried through it will not require negotiations from the initial stage with manufacturers. Last year the market contained Russian inquiries for thousands of cars, part of which were placed and the greater part allowed to drift along without contracts being closed. A stimulation to the locomotive market will be appreciated by the producing concerns. The American Locomotive Company expects to complete the last of its shell contracts at the Richmond, Va., plant by July 1 next, and will then be in position to take on extensive orders for locomotives to keep the plant busy.

A 250,000-Mile Railway System.

There is plenty of evidence coming out to show doubters that the United States, having signified its willingness to go to war when forced to in defense of its rights, is going to make war in earnest. The appointment of the committee of five railway presidents to direct transportation, throwing all of the mileage of the country into one vast system, is not a meaningless expedient to be availed of only in time of actual necessity. It is the understanding of railway directors that the committee will get actively down to work, and that most of the members must live in Washington until the end of the war in order to be able to devote nearly all of their time to the management of the carriers. It was reported yesterday that Howard Elliott, who has been expected to relinquish the actual operating control of the New Haven, will shortly resign to give all of his time to the Government's work.

Canadian Pacific Financing.

Bankers have been conferring over the plan to offer in the United States dollar bonds of the Canadian Pacific Railway to allow the cancellation of a like amount of sterling bonds held in Great Britain, and the offering may be ready for announcement next week. Lord Shaughnessy was in the financial district yesterday in connection with the arrangements being discussed. It is expected that $175,000,000 of 5% bonds will be offered for subscription at 97.

Guarantee of Bank Deposits.

Senator Owen, Chairman of the Committee on Banking, has introduced a bill providing for a plan for indemnifying depositors in member banks against loss in the event of the failure of the bank. The fund to be used for this purpose is to be created out of the proceeds of the tax on national bank circulation received since Jan. 1, 1914. The Federal Reserve Board is authorized by the bill to adopt regulations governing the administration of the fund. Local bankers do not take Senator Owen's bill seriously, and they feel quite confident that it will not be adopted by Congress. They doubt whether it has the indorsement of the Federal Reserve Bank, and say that if it lacks the board's support the measure is surely doomed to failure. Bankers regard the guaranteeing of deposits as unsound, and they had hoped that with the exit of William Jennings Bryan from the Cabinet, the country would be saved from the agitation of this proposal.

Waiting for Washington.

Very little was heard yesterday in Wall Street regarding the forthcoming American war loan. Bankers have stopped discussing it. They were all waiting for Congress to adopt the bill and for the Secretary of the Treasury to anounce the detailed terms of the offering. It is hoped that within a few days or a week the final arrangements will be definitely determined, and that they will then be in a position to go ahead with their educational campaign, be that conducted on a large or small scale.

Munitions Company Earns $372,319

The Steel and Radiation Company, Ltd., of Canada has issued its report for the year ended Dec. 31 last, showing profits from munition contracts and other operations of $372,319. After allowing $68,717 for bond interest, $46,529 for dividends on the 7 per cent. preferred stock, and $6,403 for reorganization expenses, the report shows a balance of $252,000, equal to $13.50 a share. Of this, $100,000 was set aside for depreciation and $100,000 for amortization of the plants and equipment.

THE CONDITION OF TRADE.

Commenting on the condition of trade and the business of the banks, Dun's Review says:

Changing conditions in business result from the national exigency, but thus far the economic readjustments have been effected with a minimum of unsettlement. Both producing and distributing interests give precedence to Federal requirements, and in banking circles action has been taken with a view to facilitating the proposed extensive financing. The leading industries, as expected, receive additional stimulus from Government contracts of magnitude, allotted at special figures, and most of the works are pushed to the limit of capacity, with further heavy demands foreshadowed.

It is discouraging to those who have hoped for general reaction to see the commodity markets go still higher. All know that recoil from the present extreme levels must inevitably follow, but in only one week of the last fifteen have recessions outnumbered advances in a list of over 300 wholesale quotations, and none can say with certainty when the upturn will culminate.

Extensive payments through the banks continue at the leading centres, and total clearings this week amount to $4,871,876,361, an increase of 20.7 per cent. as compared with the same week last year and of 61.2 per cent. as contrasted with the corresponding week in 1915.

Bradstreet's says:

Aside from the developments created by the war, there is an admixture of factors, some favorable, with others of a perplexing character. Thus, at a few centres the war has made for unsettlement and produced a certain chariness about buying for future delivery at soaring prices or entering into new commitments, but, on the other hand, country merchants and consumers in general, fearing a shortage of foodstuffs as the result of the serious turn in events, are stocking up irrespective of the extraordinary prices prevailing, while yet other sections are going ahead with buying for Fall delivery.

REPORT ON ENEMY FUNDS IN

Estimates on Total Amount Range from $15,000,000 to $50,000,000.

Stock Exchange firms had their reports on accounts in securities and cash with alien enemies lodged with Secretary George W. Ely on time yesterday, but no information in respect to their contents was made public. The Stock Exchange authorities held that the Government, which had requested the statements on Thursday, had complete authority over what the reports contained, and it was not within the Exchange's province to discuss the matter.

Various estimates were heard in Wall Street as to the value of German and Austrian owned stocks and bonds and cash involved in the Government's search for facts. The leading international bankers who were asked for figures stated that there was no possible way to form an estimate, but as a guess, they said, they would make the total from $15,000,000 to $30,000,000. In other quarters as high a sum as $50,000,000 was picked out. In the opinion of bankers and brokers who did an extensive business for clients in the Central Powers before the war, a substantial amount of the securities owned abroad, but held here on Aug. 1, 1914, is still intact.

Communication between New York and Berlin for many months, it was stated, had been so difficult that much business could not be transacted at all. This tended to prevent Germans from selling securities in many cases. It was also suggested that a round amount of American securities owned abroad had been left undisturbed by the owners because they desired an "anchor to windward" if the war did not turn out as hoped for.

Would Cut Service Board Pay.

At a meeting of the Board of Estimate yesterday Controller Prendergast objected to an application by the Public Service Commission for an issue of $1,000,000 of special revenue bonds to meet the expenses of the Commission until July 1. He said that $500,000 ought to be sufficient. Action on the application was delayed until next week. The expenses of the Commission for the current year have been estimated at about $3,000,000.

DECLINE IN COTTON

General List Closes Irregular at Net Loss of 5 to 26 Points After Nervous Day.

The cotton market yesterday was again nervous and irregular. An early advance reflected a renewal of Thursday's buying movement and carried July contracts up to 20.47c, or 21 points net higher. Offerings then increased, however, and that delivery broke 50 points from the best, selling off to 19.97c and closing at 20.05c. The general list closed irregular at a net decline of 5 to 26 points.

Uncertainties as to the economic measures that might be adopted by the Government for the prosecution of the war appeared to be largely responsible for the unsettled sentiment noted around the ring. In addition to that liquidation was hastened by the appearance of old crop selling orders in the hands of spot house brokers, which naturally led to rumors of free offerings in the South.

The market opened steady at an advance of 1 to 11 points and sold 13 to 21 points net higher right after the call. Demand then tapered off, as though the buying created by peace rumors had been pretty well supplied on the advance from the low level of Wednesday. Prices were sustained for a time by unsatisfactory weather reports, but the market became very weak and unsettled during the middle of the day. Stop orders were uncovered on the break, which carried active months 9 to 29 points net lower. After their execution there were rallies of several points on covering, but advances were not fully maintained.

Following is yesterday's range of prices:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Close.
April	..	..	20.45 bid	20.69

The local market for spot cotton was quiet and unchanged at 20.85s for middling upland. Southern spot markets were as follows: New Orleans, 19.81c; Savannah, 20½c; Augusta, 20.44c; Galveston, 20.05c; Memphis, 20.50c; Houston, 19.80c.

Liverpool cables: Spot cotton dull; sales, 4,000 bales; speculation and export, 500; American, 3,000. Imports, 25,000, all American. Middling upland, 13.08d. Futures opened quiet, at 17 points advance. Closed steady at a net advance of 13 to 17 points. May-June, 12.52d; July-August, 12.39d; October-November, 11.86d; January-February, 11.77d; March-April, 11.75d. Manchester: Yarns firmer; cloths quiet.

Yesterday's port receipts were 12,416 bales, making 61,925 bales for the week, which compares with 107,669 for the same period last year. Exports for the week amounted to 61,259 bales against 74,542 for the same week last year.

The weekly movement figures of the New York Cotton Exchange follow: Port receipts, 61,925, against 107,669 last year; overland to mills and Canada, 11,478, against 19,580 last year; Southern mill takings, 80,000, against 70,000; loss of stock at interior towns, 26,062, against 48,453; brought into sight for the week, 77,341, against 148,796 last year.

Total crop movement: Port receipts, 6,558,969, against 6,339,763 last season; overland to mills and Canada, 1,113,438, against 1,089,664 last year; Southern mill takings, 3,440,000, against 2,950,000; stock at interior [illegible] excess of Aug. 1, 655,075, against 504,105; brought into sight thus far for season, 11,567,482, against 10,883,532 last season.

Prices Steady on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, April 13.—Prices were steady on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 61 francs 85 centimes for cash; exchange on London, 27 francs 21½ centimes; 5 per cent. loan, 88 francs 45 centimes.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The New Niquero Sugar Company has declared an extra dividend of 10 per cent. on both the common and preferred stocks.

The City of Worcester, Mass., has sold a serial loan of $255,000, consisting of 4 per cent. bonds, to R. L. Day & Co. at 100.669.

The New York Stock Exchange has stricken from the list and called for redemption American Ice Securities Company 6 per cent. twenty-year debenture bonds, due 1925, and has admitted to the list the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company new 7 per cent. preferred stock, "when issued"; new 6 per cent. preferred stock, "when issued," and new common stock, "when issued."

The American Glue Company has declared a regular semi-annual dividend of $3 a share on the common and an extra dividend of $2.

The Directors of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis have elected Whitefoord R. Cole Chairman of the board, to succeed the late Major E. C. Lewis. Judge Claude Waller, General Counsel of the road, was elected a Director at the stockholders' annual meeting.

R. P. Stevens, President of the Mahoning & Shenango Railway & Light Company, and Robert Lindsey, Vice President of the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Company, have succeeded Samuel McRoberts and George A. Galliver on the Executive Committee of the Republic Railway & Light Company.

The West End Street Railway Company has petitioned the Massachusetts Public Service Commission for authority to issue $1,581,000 bonds to refund a similar issue of bonds dated Aug. 2, 1915, and maturing Aug. 1, 1917. The new issue is to bear interest at not to exceed 6 per cent. and to run thirty years. Excess realized from sale of these bonds is to be applied to permanent improvements.

L. F. Rothschild & Co. have removed their office to the Equitable Building, at 120 Broadway.

A notice issued relative to the modified plan of reorganization for the United Railroads of San Francisco should have stated that in addition to the 66 2-3 per cent. in new 6 per cent. bonds to be exchanged for the 4 per cent. bonds, the holders will also receive 8 1-3 per cent. in first preferred 6 per cent. stock and 3 per cent. in new common stock.

In accordance with their profit-sharing plan, Chisholm & Chapman have divided among their employes a bonus equal to two months' salary, covering the last half year.

The Atlantic National Bank has engaged C. D. Marlow, formerly assistant manager of the Bronx Refrigerating Company, for its new business department.

WHARTON FURNACES REOPEN

Special to The New York Times.

WHARTON, N. J., April 13.—The blast furnaces of the Wharton Steel Company, which have been shut down for more than six years, were "blown in" yesterday afternoon. There are three furnaces at the plant, each with a capacity of between 125 and 150 tons every twenty-four hours.

J. Leonard Replogle, President of the American Vanadium Company, and for a short time owner of the Cambria Steel Company, which he sold to the Midvale Steel and Ordnance Company, acquired the Wharton properties last October, in order to get the iron ore lands in Northern New Jersey.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

It was a market which backed and filled on the Consolidated Stock Exchange throughout the day. A moderate bulge in prices in the forenoon was succeeded by a setback, but there was a recovery in the afternoon. The railroad stocks quite generally displayed special strength. United States Steel common, as usual, the most prominent of the industrials in the trading, its sales exceeding 22,000 shares, displayed a good deal of irregularity.

COMMODITIES MARKETS.

WHEAT.

There was another excited session in the wheat market, and prices sold at the highest point yet reached. The May position in Chicago sold at $2.25 and July sold at $1.94¼. Subsequently there was a sharp reaction from the top, and at the close of the day the new crop months were ¼@½c net lower, while May was 3¾c net higher. In the local cash market No. 2 hard Winter wheat was quoted at $2.52½, free on board, New York; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $2.41½, and No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $2.37, opening navigation, free on board, New York.

CORN.

New high levels established by corn prices early in the day attracted considerable unloading which kept up through the latter part of the session, especially in late positions, so that the close was unsettled with prices from 1½ cents net higher on May and ½ cent higher on July, to ⅛ cent lower on September. For feeding and manufacturing purposes it was contended by some that corn was worth even more than it is now bringing, although others look for some relief if there should be a break in the railroad situation. No. 2 yellow corn in the local market was quoted at $1.58 cost, insurance and freight, New York.

OATS.

After a higher opening oats advanced a little, and then developed weakness, which lasted throughout the day, final prices showing ½c to ⅝c decline. Most of the selling was for long account, and did not materially change bull sentiment, as it is believed in some quarters that oats will be used to a considerable extent as a substitute for high-priced corn. Cash oats were quoted as follows: Standard, 79c; No. 2, white, 79¼c; No. 3, white, 78½c; No. 4, white, 77½@78c; fancy clipped white, 81@83c; ordinary clipped white, 79½@81c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

A tendency toward a reaction was shown in the provision market, and, while prices showed some improvement after a lower opening, the weight of liquidation carried prices off quite sharply in the afternoon, from which there was a little rally near the close. Receipts at Chicago amounted to 18,000 hogs, with 10,000 expected on Saturday. Of about 62,000 hogs at Western points, Kansas City had 2,000 and Omaha 8,000.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market for cottonseed oil was firmer, with considerable buying, part of which was thought to be by leading refiners and by manufacturers, but when the lard market developed heaviness longs sold freely. This pressure brought about quite a sharp reaction, and at the close the market was easy, with net losses of 3 to 14 points. Total sales were 30,400 barrels. Range of prices:

COFFEE.

An early decline was followed by rallies in the market for coffee futures, with July selling up from 8.33@8.45c and December from 8.63@8.74c. The close was off from the best under realizing, but the tone was considered steady, with prices net unchanged to 4 points higher. Sales, 73,250. The local spot market was quiet and unchanged at 10c for Rio 7s and 10⅝c for Santos 4s. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

Prices in the market for sugar futures worked irregular, and after opening at gains of 3 to 7 points values slowly advanced on good buying by Wall Street and local operators, due to reports that local refiners had practically cleared the spot market of all offerings of raw sugar at 5⅝c cost and freight. The market closed firm at net gains of 5 to 11 points, with sales for the day 23,250 tons. Range of prices:

The local market for refined sugar was firm, and prices were unchanged at 7.50c to 8.25c for fine granulated, although most of the refiners were out of the market entirely. The inquiry continued good, but refiners were not accepting orders, only the American taking a limited business at 7.50c. Raw sugar was strong, with prices advanced to 6.46c, duty paid, or close to the record of last October, when Cuban centrifugals sold at 5⅝c cost and freight, equal to 6.64c duty paid. At the close there were only very moderate further offerings at 5 1/16c cost and freight. The uncertainty in the Cuban freight situation was thought to have influenced refiners in making heavy commitments at this time. The spot quotations follow: Centrifugal, 6.46c; molasses, 5.58c; cost and freight, 5 1/16c.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 6,384 packages. The shortage of medium and low grades of butter continues quite acute. In creamery there is very little stock now available at 43c or less, either fresh or held. Renovated has held very firmly. Ladles and packing stock are extremely scarce. The higher grades of creamery make up a somewhat larger proportion of the offerings. Holders have advanced asking prices on these another fraction, but trading is not very brisk at the advance, and while there is no surplus, there is not much snap to demand. Creamery, higher scoring than extras, per lb., 47@47½c; extras, 92 score, 46¼@46½c; firsts, 88 to 91 score, 44¾@46c; seconds, 83 to 87 score, 43@44½c; thirds, 40@42c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 48@48½c; extras, 46¾@47½c; firsts, 44½@46c; seconds, 43@44c; creamery, held, extras, 44½@45c; firsts, 43¼@44c; seconds, 42@43c; thirds, 40@41c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 46@46½c; good to prime, 44@45½c; common to fair, 37@43c; renovated, extras, 38c; firsts, 36@37c; lower grades, 34@35c; imitation creamery, firsts, 37@37½c; ladles, current make, firsts, 36½c; seconds, 36c; lower grades, 34@35c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 35½@36c; No. 2, 35c.

EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 40,877 cases. Arrivals heavy yesterday and the week's receipts will doubtless exceed any previous week this season. Western advices, however, continue very strong, and it is difficult to replace on country purchase eggs sold at recent values here. The regular distributing trade is affected somewhat by a Jewish holiday today, but there is a pretty good demand for lines for storage purposes and a free movement into storage warehouses, under which the market is fully maintained with a firm tone. Nearby white eggs are quiet in regular distributing channels, but there is still considerable call for storage purposes, and prices are fully sustained, the market showing a slight hardening tendency, although much of the supply is still selling around 35@36c. Fresh gathered, extras, per dozen, 35½c; storage packed firsts, 34½@35c; fresh gathered, firsts, 33½@34c; seconds and lower grades, 32@33c; dirties, No. 1, 32@32½c; No. 2 and poorer, 31@31½c; checks, good to choice, dry, 31c; undergrades, 30@30½c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western, hennery whites, fine to fancy, 36@37c; ordinary to good, 34½@35½c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 34½@36c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 34@35½c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, hennery browns, 35@35½c; gathered brown and mixed colors, firsts to extra firsts, 34@35c; duck eggs, Baltimore, 38@39c; Western and prime Southern, 35@37c; ordinary, Southern and Far Southern, 32@35c; geese eggs, 60@75c.

REFINING COMPANIES EARN $72,625,963

Seven of Standard Oil Group Report an Increase of $32,372,773 in 1916.

DUE TO USE OF GASOLINE

Seven of the refining companies of the Standard Oil group, those which have made reports to date, earned in 1916 a net income of $72,625,963, in contrast with $40,253,190 the year before. Four producing concerns whose statements have been issued earned $35,458,006, against $26,542,169 in 1915, and the pipe lines, according to Dow, Jones & Co., had an aggregate net revenue of $27,069,720, against $25,965,377 in the preceding year.

The profits of the refining companies were the greatest in their histories, chiefly due to the enormous consumption of gasoline at home and abroad. The Atlantic Refining Company earned more than 192 per cent. on its outstanding stock, and the Standard of Indiana, the biggest producer of gasoline in the world, reported slightly more than 100 per cent. on the shares. The results of the refining group, with comparison with 1915, are presented in this table:

	Net Earnings. 1916.	% on Stock. 1916.	% on Stock. 1915.
Stand. Oil of Cal.	17,605,804	23.62	19.18
Stand. Oil of Kan.	1,270,314	63.51	28.00
Stand. Oil of Ind.	30,043,615	100.00	53.00
Stand. Oil of Ohio	3,751,936	53.30	40.00
Vacuum Oil	9,221,937	61.47	45.74

The Standard of California's report for 1916 involved earnings on $74,529,983 stock, against $49,689,655 the year before. The capital of the Standard of Ohio in 1916 was $7,000,000, compared with $3,500,000 the preceding year.

Among the producing concerns, the Prairie Oil and Gas Company stood high, with a net of $15,844,754, against $4,590,000 in 1915. The Ohio Oil Company earned 98.9 per cent. on its stock, against 110.75 per cent. the year before, and the South Penn Oil Company's profit was equal to 37.9 per cent., in contrast with $5,314,150. The pipe line companies, although worked at capacity, did not do much better than in 1915, with 60 per cent. of facilities in operation, largely because of lower rates. The lines were operated as common carriers, under findings of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Another important Fifth Avenue residence will soon change hands, it was reported yesterday, as a result of negotiations now pending for the purchase of the former Charles W. Harkness dwelling at the southeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Fifty-fourth Street, adjoining the Criterion Club. The house is a five-story structure covering a plot 28.5 on the avenue by 125 on the street, and is assessed for $540,000, of which $495,000 is land value. William G. Warden is executor of the Harkness estate, and it is said the deal will probably be closed within a few days.

Washington Heights Purchase.

In the Washington Heights district the vacant lot occupied by a wooden structure recently used as a chapel, on the south side of 141st Street, 120 feet east of Broadway, was purchased by Ennis & Sinnott from Jane Purcell of South Norwalk. The plot is 50 by 100 and lies between two apartment houses at 552 and 572 West 141st Street. The deal was a cash transaction and is the first sale in twenty-four years. It is assessed at $36,000. J. S. Maxwell was the broker.

Resale of Old Eldridge Street Police Station.

The Riggs Estate has resold to Arthur A. Goldstein the former police station at 105 and 107 Eldridge Street, a four-story building on a plot 50 by 100.4. This parcel and a group of properties in the lower part of the city were taken in trade recently from the city in exchange for a twenty-acre tract on Inwood Hill.

West Third Street Loft Sale.

The four-story loft building at 47 West Third Street, between Wooster Street and West Broadway, on a plot 32.6 by 104.6, has been sold by Jesse C. Bennett & Co. for James Millot to an investor. It will be altered for lease to a single tenant.

Tenement Investments.

William A. White & Sons have sold for Virginia Coyne 543 West Fifty-seventh Street, a five-story tenement house on a lot 25 by 100.5, to Stephen H. Jackson, who owns the adjoining fifty feet to the west.

Harry Sugarman sold for Ray Newman 1,487 Fifth Avenue, near 119th Street, a five-story double flat with two stores, on a lot 25 by 91, to the Coosa Realty Company.

To Mortgage Fraunces Tavern for $65,000.

Justice Pendleton of the Supreme Court has granted permission to the Sons of the Revolution to place a mortgage of $65,000 on the historic Fraunces Tavern. Of this $15,000 is to be used to pay off a mortgage and buy the adjoining property, 101 and 103 Broad Street, which the Sons of the Revolution recently contracted to purchase from the heirs of A. Maynard Lyon, in order to provide a museum and a larger meeting-room for the 2,300 members attached to the New York Chapter.

Bronx Sales.

Several good deals were closed in the Bronx, one involving two new five-story apartment houses, 2,471 to 2,477 Davidson Avenue, on plot 125 by 100, which were purchased by the Nassau Realty Company, Max N. Natanson, President, from the Hopewell Building Company. The houses are within one block from the subway station at Jerome Avenue and Fordham Road. They were held at $175,000.

At the southeast corner of Fordham Road and Cedar Avenue, a plot 100 by 100 was sold by McLernan Brothers to the Picken Building Company. The immediate corner plot, 25 by 100, was sold for J. E. L. Beals.

J. E. Bowen resold to Maybelle Merz, for investment, 1,195 Boston Road, a five-story double flat, on a plot 40 by 96 feet. The property was held at $47,000. K. A. McFarland negotiated the sale.

Brooklyn.

Howard C. Pyle, sold the four-story brick dwelling at 417 Clinton Street, near Carroll Street, on a plot 25 by 100, to a client for occupancy; also, the three-story and basement brick dwelling house at 86 Joralemon Street, near Garden Place, for the Wells estate, to an investor.

Tutino & Cerny sold for Rufus T. Griggs, to a client for investment, the four-story double brick store and apartments, on a plot 25 by 100, knowns as 4,010 and 4,012 Third Avenue.

Long Island.

The Dellano-Smith Company, Inc., sold to the Southern Queens Realty and Development Company 130 lots at Springfield Terrace, Springfield.

Minnie M. Koepel sold to Frederick Jaeger two plots at Richmond Hill, one fronting 90 feet on the north side of Chestnut Street and the second with a 20-foot frontage on Spruce Street.

Westchester County.

Steven B. Ayres and Harry T. Hamilton sold for the Wheeler Corporation to Albert Haase a tract of six lots on Brookside Avenue, Vernon Park, Mount Vernon, in a cash transaction.

Herbert A. Sherman sold for George C. Case, executor of the estate of Sarah Berry, the house, garage, and grounds on Milton Point, Rye, facing Christ Church. The buyer will enlarge the house and make general alterations for his occupancy.

Commercial Leases.

William A. White & Sons have leased for S. C. Alger the building at 366 Washington Street, northwest corner of North Moore Street, to J. Kutsukian & Co.

Pease & Elliman have leased for the New York Taxicab Company to the Detroit Cadillac Motor Car Company the four-story garage, 50 by 100, at 622 and 624 West Fifty-seventh Street, formerly occupied by the Mason-Seaman Company.

John Francis Smith has leased for the estate of Peter Billigmeier the building, on plot 50 by 100, at 626 and 628 West Forty-eighth Street to Jacob A. Zimmermann.

Shaw & Co. have leased the buildings at 48 and 50 West 125th Street to Hansel Hicks.

Henry Hof has leased from the plans to Archibald A. Thompson the garage to be erected at 317 East Thirty-ninth Street for a term of years.

Private House Leases.

Douglas L. Elliman & Co. have leased for Mrs. Morton Schwartz her residence at 16 West Fifty-fifth Street to Mrs. Ida S. Smart.

Pease & Elliman, as agents for Charles E. Rushmore, have leased to the Proudman Realty Company the four-story dwelling at 46 East Sixtieth Street.

Realty Notes.

The Executive Committee of the Real Estate Association of the State of New York will hold a meeting at the Hotel Ten Eyck, Albany, today to discuss legislative matters.

Emil Schmidt was the buyer of the property at 3,349 Third Avenue, Bronx, for $7,200, sold at auction by Joseph P. Day on Thursday.

Steinman & Steinman have placed a first mortgage of $22,000 on 1,048 Bryant Avenue for H. Moeller.

The M. Morgenthau Jr. Company has placed a first mortgage loan of $42,000 for William Burns on his property at 153 Vermilyea Avenue, a five-story apartment, on plot 50 by 100.

Harry D. Lott has leased to Mrs. Annie Dickert for the estate of William Rowe the three-story Hotel Ethel Rita on Third Avenue, Rockaway Park.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Low barometric pressure prevails throughout the Atlantic States, while high barometer covers practically all interior districts east of the Rocky Mountains. The low pressure in the Eastern States has been attended by more or less general rains throughout the Atlantic and East Gulf States, Tennessee, and the Ohio Valley, and snow flurries near the Great Lakes. Rains have again set in on the North Pacific Coast.

The weather has become considerably colder over much of the country east of the Mississippi River, and Friday night there was freezing temperatures in the lake region and the Upper Ohio Valley. Moderate temperatures prevailed in all Western districts.

Indications are that the weather will be fair Saturday and Sunday east of the Mississippi River, except that rains are probable Saturday on the South Atlantic Coast.

Temperature will fall Saturday in the South Atlantic States and rise Saturday and Sunday in the Ohio Valley and the lake region, and Sunday in the Middle Atlantic States, New England, Tennessee, and the East Gulf States.

Winds for Saturday and Sunday along the North Atlantic Coast will be fresh northwest, generally fair weather; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate to fresh north, fair; South Atlantic Coast, fresh north and northwest, showers, followed by fair.

FORECASTS TODAY AND SUNDAY.

Eastern New York, Southern New England, New Jersey, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair Saturday and Sunday, rising temperature Sunday.

Western New York—Fair Saturday and Sunday, rising temperature.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

3 A. M.	46	40	4 P. M.	51	46
6 A. M.	44	37	6 P. M.	50	46
9 A. M.	44	38	9 P. M.	46	38
12 M.	46	42	11 P. M.	46	36

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 42; for the corresponding date last year it was 47; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 47. The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 38; at 8 P. M. it was 40. Maximum temperature, 48 degrees, at 5 P. M.; minimum, 36 degrees, at 4 A. M. Humidity, 90 per cent. at 8 A. M., 46 per cent. at 8 P. M. The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 29.68 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 29.70 inches.

The Civil Service.

City.

Applications for pathologist will be received until 4 P. M. on April 25. The subjects and weights of the examination are: Experience 3, technical 3, practical test 4. A qualifying physical examination will be given. The duties are the performance of autopsies, microscopic diagnosis of tissues, bacteriological diagnosis, and clinical pathology. Candidates must have the degree of M. D. from an approved institution. They must be at least 21 years of age on or before the closing date for the receipt of applications.

State.

The commission announces that an examination will be held on May 5, in various cities throughout the State, for the position of Canal Traffic Agent, State Department of Public Works, salary $3,500 per annum. The position requires a thorough familiarity with all-rail, rail-water, and rail-water-rail rates, a knowledge of all the factors that go to the making of such rates, and demonstrated executive ability. Any one desiring to take this examination should write to "State Civil Service Commission, Albany, N. Y.," for application form and detailed circular of information.

United States.

The commission announces for April 17 an examination for senior land appraiser, for men only. Vacancies occurring in the Interstate Commerce Commission, under the act providing for the valuation of the property of common carriers, at $1,800 to $2,700 a year, with a reasonable allowance for expenses when absent from headquarters in the discharge of official duties, will be filled from this examination. Certification for filling the higher-salaried positions will be made from those attaining the highest average percentages in the examination. Appointments will be principally for duty in the field, but some appointments will be made for duty in the headquarters offices of the several valuation districts. It should be understood, however, that appointees will be subject to assignment wherever the exigencies of the service may require. Competitors will not be required to report for examination at any place, but will be rated on education, training, experience, and fitness. Applicants must show that they have attended a high school or a school giving equivalent instruction for at least three years. They must have reached their twenty-fifth but not their fiftieth birthday on the date of the examination. Further information may be obtained from the Commission, Washington, D. C.

Education Notes.

There will be a meeting of the Bookkeeping Section of the High School Teachers' Association today at 10 A. M. at the Washington Irving High School. Mr. W. E. Bartholomew, specialist in commercial subjects, of the State Board of Regents, will address the meeting on "Gain and Loss Statements and the Balance Sheet." Mr. Duncan McInnes, Chief Accountant of the Department of Finance, will also address the meeting. The object of the meeting is to determine, if possible, on uniform forms of statements. All teachers of bookkeeping, elementary school as well as high, are invited to attend.

A military corps has been organized at the Commercial High School for pupils more than 16 years of age.

Four hundred and thirty-four persons took the examination this week for license to teach various subjects in the high schools.

The Teachers' Interests Organization at a meeting on Thursday afternoon at Terrace Garden Hall decided to write letters to Governor Whitman and Mayor Mitchel opposing the Lockwood-Ellenbogen Pension bill. Special committees will be appointed to wait on those officials.

High school teachers assigned as administrative assistants in schools having fifty or more teachers in one building will receive hereafter a bonus of $300 in addition to their regular salaries.

The Mothers' Club Committee of the Federation for Child Study will hold a conference at 3:45 P. M. on April 25 at 2 West Sixty-fourth Street.

INDICTED PAPER MEN TO PLEAD TUESDAY

ACCUSED MEN ARE SILENT

News Print Association Had No Agreement with Federal Trade Board, Counsel Says.

The six news print paper manufacturers and Alexander Smith, a Chicago banker associated with them, who were indicted on Thursday will appear before Judge Cushman of the Federal District Court on Tuesday and plead to the charge of violating the Sherman anti-trust law by combining to raise the price of news print paper. The only one of the defendants in the city yesterday was Philip T. Dodge, President of the International Paper Company. He had nothing to say about the indictment, remarking:

"There has been too much talk already."

Of the other defendants, George H. Mead was reported to be at his home, in Dayton, Ohio; Edward W. Backus, who lives in Minneapolis, is said to be somewhere in the North Woods; George Chahoon, Jr., is in Grand Mere, Canada; G. H. P. Gould is in Lyons Falls, N. Y.; Alexander Smith is in Chicago, and Frank J. Sensenbrenner is in Neenah, Wis.

Bainbridge Colby, the special Government prosecutor, explained that counsel representing the indicted men had been in communication with him and that plans for their pleading here were being made. This will be on Tuesday next, at the earliest.

"I do not expect that it will be necessary to have recourse to the bench warrants which the court, as a matter of form, ordered," he said. "The trial will be set at as early a date as is consistent. It is possible that the case can be tried at the June term."

In reply to a question as to whether the practices charged in the indictment would now cease, Mr. Colby said:

"I can only say that it seems to me that none of the defendants would venture to persist in practices so gravely characterized by the Government and which are the subject of such serious charges."

George F. Steele, Secretary of the News Print Manufacturers' Association, who was named in the indictment, but was not made a defendant, refused to talk for publication, but L. B. Lochhead, the association's Treasurer, said:

"The Federal Trade Commission began an inquiry into the news print paper situation about a year ago. During the investigation by the Department of Justice we turned over all of our books and records, and some of them have not yet been returned."

He added that the association had nothing to do with the discussions in Washington between the Federal Trade Commission and some of the paper manufacturers, conferences which resulted in a tentative price-fixing agreement. "Only a few members of our association took part in those talks. As an association we knew nothing about it," said Mr. Lochhead.

PRICE AGREEMENT HELD UP.

Trade Board Feels That Indictments Have Had a Deterrent Effect.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 13.—The indictment of the members of the Executive Committee of the News Print Manufacturers' Association and others has apparently had a deterrent effect on the price-fixing agreement proposed a month ago and accepted by the Federal Trade Commission. When the manufacturers made their proposal there had been in progress for several weeks an investigation by the Department of Justice based on a mass of information tending to prove the existence of a combination in restraint of trade.

While there was said to be no connection between the offer then made and the activities of the Department of Justice there was at the time much talk of an effort to get a "gentleman's agreement" behind the acceptance by the Trade Commission of the manufacturers' price proposition. At the same time members of the commission said that the matter of prosecutions under the Sherman anti-trust law must be left entirely to the Department of Justice. It was a matter of common report in Washington, however, that efforts would be made by the commission to have the proceedings against the paper men discontinued on their compliance in good faith with the efforts to break the paper famine.

At the Federal Trade Commission offices today it was said that the commission could not say whether the price-fixing agreement would go forward or not. The commission will do all in its power to make the agreement a success, but until the manufacturers are heard from the future cannot be indicated.

DRAFT ENEMY TRADE ACT.

War Bill Is Intended to Give President Discretionary Powers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The Trading with the Enemy act being drafted by the Department of Justice simply will be declaratory of what the recognized rules of international law are on that subject, putting them in force for the United States during the war with Germany, it was asserted authoritatively today.

In one respect it will be enabling legislation, because it will empower the President to suspend the operation of the act in certain circumstances and to make such exceptions in its application and enforcement as to him may seem fit and proper.

The broad purpose of the legislation will be to prevent trade, either direct or indirect, with Germany, and to this end the use of American shipping facilities will be denied to persons and firms which engage in such trade. The drafting of the act has not yet been completed, but it is understood that the burden of proof that trade being carried on or contemplated is not with the enemy will be upon those engaged or intending to engage in it rather than upon the Government.

Another consideration in the construction of the bill is the fact that alien enemies cannot go into court, so that the President's discretion will have to be relied upon to insure such persons against injustice and to protect them in their legitimate commerce.

MOOSE WILL AMALGAMATE.

Convention Votes to Join Forces with the Prohibitionists.

ST. LOUIS, April 13.—The Progressive National Convention today ousted the National Committee which last Summer indorsed Charles E. Hughes, the Republican nominee for President, and named a new National Committee to carry out the plans for amalgamating with the Prohibition Party. The plans for this amalgamation were approved this afternoon by the convention.

Victor Murdock of Wichita, Kan., who presided over the Progressive National Convention in Chicago last June, was elected Chairman of the Executive Committee of the party, and Matthew Hale of Boston was elected National Chairman. Other officers chosen were F. H. Chase, New York, National Secretary, and J. A. H. Hopkins of New Jersey, National Treasurer.

The Executive Committee is composed of Victor Murdock, John M. Parker of Louisiana, D. H. Carroll, North Dakota; F. M. Ingersoll, Idaho; John Taylor, New York; Albert D. Nortoni, Missouri, and C. D. McClure, Georgia.

DOCTORS IN WAR SERVICE.

Action Taken Toward Support and Protection of Those Who Enlist.

Resolutions looking toward the support and protection of members of the medical profession who shall volunteer or be conscripted into the nation's servise have been passed by the New York State Committee of American Physicians for Medical Preparedness. The committee met Thursday at the office of Dr. George D. Stewart, at 616 Madison Avenue. The resolution follows:

Be It Resolved, That the New York State Committee of American Physicians, acting as the recognized State Auxiliary of the Medical Section of the Council of National Defense, does hereby declare it the fixed policy of this committee to protect by every possible measure the public place and private practice of those members of the medical profession who may volunteer or be drafted into the military service of the State of New York or the United States for any period of the present war, and

Resolved, That it will urge through the auxiliary county committees of the State the local enforcement of such policy both relative to private practice and public and hospital appointment, and

Resolved, That it will countenance any financial and personal agreements between members of the profession that may protect the private practice and financial returns of those members who may be drafted under conditions which each County Committee may deem expedient in its locality.

Those who attended the meeting expressed themselves as in favor of a plan whereby physicians taking the practice of others who are following the colors should turn back to the absent physicians a certain percentage of the fees. Such an arrangement, it was thought, would not come within the category of fee-splitting, a practice considered unethical among the profession. The committee, so far as possible, will discourage physicians taking patients from doctors who are away with the colors.

Plans have been perfected for a survey of the physicians of the State in order to give the military authorities an index of the qualifications of every member of the profession. The Executive Committee is made up of Dr. Karl Connell, Chairman; Dr. George D. Stewart, Colonel William S. Terriberry, Dr. George D. Stevens, and Dr. Charles H. Peck.

WAR HALTS COURT HOUSE.

Site to be Leveled and Used, Possibly, for Military Purposes.

In deciding formally yesterday to abandon for the time being, on account of the war, the scheme to build a new county Court House, a project which has been before the Board of Estimate for several years, at a cost of approximately $12,000,000, the Court House Board's suggestion that the site be filled in temporarily and used for military purposes, if necessary, was accepted. The members of the Court House Board also tendered their services to the Mayor, as well as the use of their offices in the Municipal Building, and agreed to accept no compensation for further services until such time as it is decided to again take up the question of erecting the structure.

"This means," said the Mayor, "that, until general conditions are settled, the Court House Board will not ask for the erection of the building, and they tender the site to the Board of Estimate for whatever use we can make of it. I think this board ought to avail itself of the offer of the site, and see just what can be done with it. It may be that the site can be put to advantageous use."

Chief Engineer Lewis was directed to report on the cost of filling in and leveling the site, and the Commissioner of Accounts was directed to make a study of the buildings now on the site to find out of they could be rented.

CLOSE SCHOOLS FOR FARMS.

Ohio State University Graduates' Plan for Service in Summer.

The New York Association of Men and Women Graduates of Ohio State University met at the Ohio Society Rooms at the Waldorf-Astoria last evening to discuss plans as to the part which members should take during the present war Resolutions were adopted strongly favoring compulsory universal service under Federal control, and recommending that the high schools of the State be closed from May 1 to Nov. 1, so that the boys and girls could help in farm work throughout the State.

On May 30 all the colleges and universities of the country will be urged by the Ohio State University Association to hold patriotic rallies making Memorial Day this year the greatest since the civil war. Speeches were made by ex-Congressman Newton W. Gilbert, formerly Vice Governor of the Philippines; Colonel Bernard Wall, Commander of the Spanish War Veterans, and Major Ernest K. Coulter, of the Officers' Reserve Corps.

TO EXPLAIN CENSUS PLAN.

Whitman Calls a Conference of Representatives of Counties.

ALBANY, April 13.—Governor Whitman issued a call today for a conference of the delegates from the Home Defense Committee of every county in the State to be held on Monday at the Capitol. The Governor and Adjt. Gen. Louis W. Stotesbury will address the conference and explain the plan for taking the census of the State's military resources during a period of fifteen days in May, the exact time to be announced by the Governor in a proclamation.

The Adjutant General, through the Resource Mobilization Bureau, has asked all defense organizations, patriotic bodies, social, civil, political, and women's organizations to supply 50,000 volunteers for this work.

CHURCHES TO AID IN CENSUS

Federation Asks Pastors to Encourage Women to Work.

The aid of 10,000 churches in New York State will be given to the National League of Woman's Service in its task of assisting in the taking of the military census of the State, according to an announcement made last night by Mrs. Goelet Gallatin, Chairman of the Military Census Committee of the league.

The New York Federation of Churches sent a letter to pastors yesterday urging them to ask the women of their congregations to assist in the census and suggesting that the churches be used as registration places.

Mrs. Gallatin said offers to serve were coming in rapidly to the league headquarters at 33 West Thirty-ninth Street.

HIGH SCHOOL YELLS GREET BILLY SUNDAY

"BACK TO THE FARM" PLEA

Attacks Sunday School Teachers as Card Players, Beer Guzzlers, and Theatregoers.

Several thousand high school students came out to hear Billy Sunday last night and were treated to a sermon on the forces that win. The forces, as Sunday catalogued them, are blood, environment, sand, education, and Christianity. The sermon ended with a panegyric of Abraham Lincoln, delivered with one foot on a chair and the other on the pulpit in symbolism of Lincoln's physical and moral stature. "The Star-Spangled Banner" closed the meeting. "America" had opened it.

The hall again was comfortably full, and there was much applause when the schools gave their yells and cheered for Sunday in the preliminary exercises. Rodeheaver played "The Rosary" on the trombone and introduced Sunday as the Ty Cobb of his day.

There was less slang and profanity than usual in the sermon, but it carried variety enough to please the audience. The mother-in-law joke, almost extinct in recent literature, was brought out and drew a laugh. When Sunday, after a burlesque description of how a woman mixes a cake, said the only reason they usually made good cakes was because "most women are good-looking and all good-looking women are lucky," he was cheered with enthusiasm, but perhaps the most determined applause of the evening, except that drawn out by the mention of Lincoln, was accorded to his statement that "cigarettes are made out of cigar stumps picked out of the gutter." He varied the latter part of his sermon by delivering Joaquin Miller's poem on Columbus with dramatic gesture and intonation, a feat of elocution which found much favor with the audience.

Sunday warned the students against attaching too much importance to themselves or to honors they might win in a small field. "Some of you are like the grasshopper," he said. "He sat on a sunflower swelled up with pride, and he said, 'I am the big noise, the main squeeze, the head cheese, and when I strike the ground it will tremble as from an earthquake.' And he leaped to the ground right in front of a big turkey gobbler, the earth did not tremble, but along came a big fat hen, and she said to the turkey gobbler, 'Did you see a fat-legged grasshopper pass along this way?' And the turkey gobbler gulped as he said, 'He didn't pass; he stopped here.' And when the grasshopper tried to adjust himself comfortably in the craw of the turkey gobbler he said, 'How little and dried up and useless I am in here, and how big I thought I was out there.'

"A dwarf in body can be turned to financial account in a dime museum, but a dwarf in morals is a carbuncle on the neck of the body politic.

"Somebody said to a boy, 'Kid, how did you learn to skate so well?' He said, 'By getting up every time I fell down.' If you itch for fame you'll have to keep scratching.

"What is education? Education is knowing what you want, knowing where to get it, and knowing what to do with it after you get it. You fellows would rather wear a clean white shirt and patent leather shoes and work for $10 a week and call it a salary than to put on overalls and a flannel shirt, go back to the farm, work for $25 a week and call it wages. You have reversed the rules. You started on third base. Your run don't count. Go back to the farm; study expert dairying and help save the lives of 200,000 babies that die every year from impure milk.

"Aim high. It's no harder on your gun to aim at an eagle than to shoot a skunk. Men who rise from obscurity from hard work are the kind that hang their mugs in the Hall of Fame, for mutts like you and me to look at.

"But don't be conceited. Don't think you're the whistle when you're only a cog in the machinery. It's a sad day for a young fellow when ex-President Taft's overcoat wouldn't make a vest for him."

Five or six thousand people, including a delegation of elderly women, attended the afternoon service, where Sunday spoke on personal work. "Why are so few people coming into the kingdom?" he asked.

"It is because there is not a definite effort put forth to persuade a definite person to receive a definite Saviour at a definite time, and that definite time is now. No political campaign is won by stump speakers. It is won by a man-to-man canvass.

"Half of our Sunday school teachers are card players, beer guzzlers, theatregoers. They don't know anything about Jesus Christ. No wonder our youths are running wild."

So far about $2,800 has been contributed to the expenses of the campaign since the meeting started. There is still more than $91,000 to be raised to meet the budget of $150,0000, despite heavy preliminary contributions.

At a meeting of the Central Federated Union in the Labor Temple on East Eighty-fourth Street last night W. B. Joyce, delegate of the Bartenders' Union, said that he heard that non-union cooks and waiters were being employed at the Y. W. C. A. cafeteria in connection with the tabernacle. It was voted to have the report investigated by a joint committee of the Cooks and Waiters' Union and the Central Federated Union.
